Horton & Sayer road ordered open.

SOME MORE REGRETS.

Again the Harriman people must delay the proposed invasion of interior Oregon as the approval of the maps for the road up the Deschutes has been delayed in the Interior Department according to advices just received by Portland officials.

A. A. Hoehling, an attorney at Washington acting for the Harriman interests, wired Mr. Cotton as follows:

"The secretary says that after a full conference with Director Newell, he has decided to refer the Deschutes River Railroad situation to two special agents of the reclamation service for examination in the field as to the conservation of water resources at that place and to ask for a speedy report, thus passing the matter over to the next Administration. I regret that this is so but have feared it for some time."

Portland commercial organizations are going to get behind the Deschutes railroad and do all they can to remove the obstacles before the project. Influence will be brought to bear with the department at Washington to secure favorable action on the matter. It is hoped this may facilitate matters and leave the way clear for the construction of the road.

A SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.

Last Tuesday Drs. Marsden and Griffith performed a very difficult operation removing a very large tumor from Mrs. Augusta Johnson. It was most successful and one that deserves much credit as it proves the skill of our local surgeons.

Mrs. Johnson arrived here last week from Radium, Minn., in company with her son William. She is a widow 46 years old and the mother of nine children. Mrs. Johnson knew of her condition before starting on the journey and had intended stopping at some of the larger cities and have an operation performed, but upon reaching Spokane she felt well enough to make the journey on in to look for land, but the stage ride was very severe and harder than she expected. The day following her arrival here she was quite sick and consulted Dr. Marsden. The doctor found the tumor was growing very rapidly and advised her to have it removed. She asked if he would remove it with the result that the operation was done last Tuesday. She is now at the home of Mrs. Tom Allen in this city and doing well. Her convalescence has been smooth in every respect with no complications.

Her son William felt so satisfied that he left this morning for the former home to attend to settling affairs preparatory to moving here for their permanent home, having made application for land in this valley. The mother will remain here and not likely return to Minnesota at all.
