wice as much to spray large, high, unpruned trees, as it does to spray low-headed, thinned out trees.

High-priced novelties are often disappointing, but it is interesting to try a few each season. For main planting, however, stick to the time-tested standard kinds.

Why not give those trees a decent meal this year? Try 1,000 pounds per acre of any good complete commercial fertilizer. Or apply stable manure, bone flour and muriate of potash (400 pounds bone, 200 pounds muriate, per acre.)

Pruning raspberries and blackberries: Cut out all canes that fruited last season (should have been done last fall); also all winter-killed canes. Shorten remaining canes to three or feet, and cut off at least a third of the long side shoots. Rake up and burn all brush.

In March, before the buds swell, spray fruit trees for fungous troubles, such as peach leaf-curl, scab of pear and apple, fruit rot, leaf blight, etc. The Bordeaux mixture is the standard fungicide. (But remember the lime sulphur mixture is also a fungicide; so if you use it for the San Jose scale on your trees you will not need the early spray of Bordeaux.)

By a little care you can have tomatoes so early that they will be a luxury on the table, or will bring a big price in market. In February sow in a box some good seed and keep the box in a sunny window. When the plants are about three inches high transplant to small pots and set these in a shallow box. When the days are warm enough set them out-of-doors, bringing them in at night or if it turns cold. They can be easily handled in a box, and should make a good growth in time to be set out early.

Here are a few fruit tree pruning rules: Trim a little every year, rather than much in any one year. Peach trees require more pruning than most trees; at least one-half of the new growth should be removed each season. Cherry trees require the least pruning; merely cut out dead, broken or "crossed" limbs. Other trees need a judicious thinning-out and, sometimes, cutting back. If two branches interlock remove the smaller one. Avoid cutting so as to leave "stubs"; make neat cuts close to union; paint all large wounds. Be chary of cutting off large limbs; if it must be done, saw on under side first, partly through, and then saw from above. Prune now or in June. Spring trimming induces wood growth; June trimming induces fruit growth. Which do you want? (Note: On young trees you should want only wood growth until they are of good size and fully able to endure the strain of fruit bearing.) From March FARM JOURNAL.

Stiff Neck.

Stiff neck is caused by rheumatism of the muscles of the neck. It is usually confined to one side, or to the back of the neck and one side. While it is often quite painful, quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlains Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires internal treatment. When there is no fever and no swelling as in muscular and chronic rheumatism Chamberlain's Liniment will accomplish more than any internal treatment. For sale by all good dealers.

NEW CLUBBING PROPOSITION

We have arranged to offer in connection with this paper, the new monthly farm magazine just started at Lincoln, Nebraska, by Prof. H. W. Campbell and devoted to the subject of how to farm in the dry country and how to get best results from soil tillage under normal conditions. This Paper is Campbell's Scientific Farmer and we offer it clubbed with The Times-Terald both for $2.50 per year cash. Prof. Campbells' new paper is a monthly, chock full of good things, the only paper of its kind in the world, and it embodies the results of the editor's many years of painstaking investigation of the soil tillage proposition.

An Ideal Cough Medicine.

"As an ideal cough medicine I regard Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in a class by itself," says Dr. R. A. Wiltshire, of Gwynneville, Ind. "I take great pleasure in testifying to the results of Chamberlain's Cough Medicine. In fact; I know of no other preparation that meets so fully the expectations of the most exacting in cases of croup and coughs of children. As it contains no opium, chloroform or morphine it certainly makes a most safe, pleasant and efficacious remedy for the ills it is intended. For sale by all good dealers.
