INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

(Portland Correspondence).

Swift and Company announce that they plan to begin actual packing operations in their new plant at Portland in July. This brings to the surface the necessity for the farmers of Oregon to grow more hogs. Pigs can be raised until they are three months old on vetch or other roughage at practically no expense other than for pasturage. A fat 200 pound hog in Portland today is worth $15.50 cash, live weight. The packers will have to get a supply, — must they send the money for the hogs to Nebraska, or will we raise them in Oregon?

The Livestock Sale at the Portland Country Club this week means a great deal to everyone in Oregon. Saturday and Sunday witnessed thousands of people visiting the grounds to inspect what is universally conceded to be the greatest gathering of blooded horses ever collected in the Pacific Northwest to be sold to the highest bidder. The sale will continue up to Friday night at the Country Club, Saturday being devoted entirely to cattle at the Union Stock Yards. Oregon is making a wonderful showing, and there is assurance that buyers will be here from all neighboring states and British Columbia.

While estimates as to the present population of Oregon vary, some men who have the right to be called well posted feel that the state today has upward of three-quarters of a million people. With every county in the state getting new settlers, some have attracted a greater immigration during the past year than for five years before.

A party of Illinois investors recently clubbed together and sent one of their number, who had visited Oregon during the Exposition, for a trip through the state. Upon his return to Portland, this gentleman said he had found Oregon people much changed. At that time they were intensely conservative, today they are enthusiastic, optimistic, and unanimously predict a great future. In fact, many of the communities are growing so rapidly that they imagine they have all the growth, but those who have seen the new orchards, the substantial farm houses and other improvements taking place everywhere, knew that the next decade will see record-breaking advancement along every line. Asked if he was satisfied, he replied: "I wouldn't return to Illinois, but shall remain here to receive my friends who are coming in parties of three, five and even ten."

SAYS BIRDS CAN REASON.

That many varieties of birds have what amounts to something more than instinct, which is in reality, the power of reasoning, was the statement made by W. L. Finley, lecturing before the Woman's Club yesterday. Mr. Finley was particularly at home with his subject. With the beauty of his stereopticon views no less than by his vivid power of description, the lecturer held his audience. He laid particular stress on the cruelty of caging animals and birds.

Mr. Finley described the gull as being the bird possessed of most brain sense or power of reasoning, although he admitted that the blackbird ran very close for second place.

"Some actual natural history has been described as fiction," said the naturalist. "How else can we interpret the actions of animals and birds observed in the field than by putting it down as actual brain use? If we believe in evolution at all, we must believe in the development of brain matter in the birds of the field."

Showing the same displayed by the young gulls in staying close to rock similar to their own coloring was a feature of the illustrations. The lecturer proceeded to discuss the cruelty of keeping performing animals. He said: "Such performances are blots upon our humane education. They educate our children in cruelty, and they are not even interesting."

Mrs. Abigail Scott Duniway proposed a vote of thanks to the speaker, suggesting that as he had such a thorough knowledge of the flight of birds he should be invited to discourse before the Wright Brothers and other exponents of aerial navigation.—Oregonian.

Best Treatment for Colds.

"Most ordinary colds will yield to the simplest treatment," says the Chicago Tribune, "moderative laxatives, hot foot baths, a free perspiration and an avoidance of exposure to cold and wet after treatment." While this treatment is simple, it requires considerable trouble, and the one adopting it must remain in doors for a day or two, or a fresh cold is almost sure to be contracted, and in many instances pneumonia follows. Is it not better to pin your faith to an old reliable preparation like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, that is famous for its cures of colds and can always be depended upon? For sale by all good dealers.

Rheumatism.

More than nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles, due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism. In such cases no internal treatment is required. The free application of Chamberlain's Liniment is all that is needed, and it is certain to give quick relief. Give it a trial and see for yourself how quickly it relieves the pain and soreness. The medicines usually given internally for rheumatism are poisonous or very strong medicines. They are worse than useless in cases of chronic and muscular rheumatism. For sale by all good dealers.
