Want Changes in Game Laws.

The Harney County Rod and Gun Club held a meeting at The Times-Herald office last Monday and with other business considered was some changes in the game laws. The president and secretary of the club were asked to write the State Game Commission respecting such changes and asked for their consideration. Among the changes desired are: Uniform deer laws or open season throughout the state.

Bounty on cougars large enough to exterminate them.

Water fowl unchanged.

Sage hen season to open 30 days later, but remain open the same length of time as at present.

These are all good suggestions and should have the attention of the commission in its recommendations to the legislature. The law should be more uniform over the state than at present as it gives undue advantage in some parts. Game Warden Mace has just received a letter from State Game Warden Finley in which he says: "Any matters which your section of the country desires to place before the legislature can be addressed to this office and the same will be turned over to the Board of Fish and Game Commissioners who have the revision of the laws under consideration at time. Any changes which your section of the state desires will be gladly received by the commission for their consideration."

It would seem from this letter the suggestions of the local Club will meet with the proper spirit and no doubt have some weight. The local club has been working harmoniously with the State Warden during the entire season just past and it is likely their demands will be granted.

J. F. Mahon and J. B. Johnson were elected to membership in the Club at the last meeting.

More Demonstration Farms.

Believing that the back-to-the-farm movement can be advanced through the establishment of more demonstration farms, Colonel "Bill" Hanley, the land and cattle baron of Harney County, is planning to work for legislation to that effect "Bill" has been in town a few days and will remain a while and see how the political warriors and state lawmakers feel about the subject. Hanley's desire is that such a demonstration or experimental farm should be established in every county in the state and he feels confident that the coming session of the Legislature will realize the value of such a plan.

Oregon, particularly Central Oregon, is going to shoot ahead farther along the lines of scientific farming in the next 10 years than any of the other states in country," said Hanley. "The majority of new settlers who will locate in the interior will start out right. By that I mean they will educate themselves as to the very best scientific methods of developing their land so that it will produce the largest and best crops.

"We have been making long strides forward in the matter of educating the farmers in the latest approved methods and at the same time there is room for a great deal more missionary work of this kind. That is why I believe we should have demonstration farms in every county in the state. I am going to do everything I can to persuade the Legislature that I am right."—Telegram.

WEST'S CRUSADE TO BE BEFORE LEGISLATURE

Governor Expected To Ask For Laws Giving Him Greater Power

A recent Salem dispatch says: "With the time fixed for the convening of the Legislature rapidly approaching, the presidency of the Senate and speakerhip of the House apparently settled, assurances that the election of a United States Senator will be but a mere formality, the prediction made here by those who have sounded the sentiment among the Legislators is that the big fight of the session will occur when Governor West seeks to have the Legislature enact his crusade legislation.

Generally the friends of the Governor would have it appear that the introduction of his crusade to have the legislature will occasion no clash, but they, as well as most of the Legislators, fully realize, say those who have taken soundings on the subject, that these measures will be a signal for a clash between the Governor, and that it will be the battle of the session.

Since his inauguration the Governor has had two dreams—his prison reform policy and his law enforcement crusade. With the hope of seeing these dreams materialize, he has made every sacrifice in the past, and recently announced that to bring about their realization he is prepared to make every sacrifice in the future. That declaration was made when he declined to extend clemency to the four murderers hanged here this month, and the opinion voiced here is that had the Governor not felt that to extend clemency to them would be to postpone the day when capital punishment could be abolished, and also that it would operate as a barrier to his law enforcement crusade.

The Governor's crusade in Portland clearly demonstrated, it is claimed, that if it is to be crowned with success and be made state-wide in its application, his hands must be strengthened materially by legislation. Portland's crusade demonstrated, it is further asserted, that the Governor is practically without appointing power when it comes to naming special prosecutors and sheriffs to carry on his crusade, and that there are no laws whereby breweries and distilleries can be prevented from shipping liquor from wet into dry territory, and by which the express and railroad companies can be prevented from transporting it.

Already the Governor has prepared a bill to give him power to appoint special district attorneys and sheriffs, and providing for appropriations for the remuneration of them whenever they shall be pressed into service. Contending that to give the Governor authority to appoint special district attorneys and Sheriffs whenever he shall take the notion to do so would be to clothe him with the power of an autocrat, many of the Legislators will fight the measure to the last, declare those who are conversant with their feelings on the subject.

What the attitude of the Legislature will be with relation to bills prohibiting the shipment of liquor into dry territory, should the Government ask it to pass such a measure, as he undoubtedly will, is problematical, it is declared. Many, it is believed, would be in favor of such a measure, but that it would have opposition is certain. Among other powerful factors to wage a fight on it would be the liquor dealers, and possibly also the express and railroad companies.

In addition the Governor will have a lot of other legislation to propose. He believes that the state should take over the Columbia Southern project, and appropriate money to reclaim the lands embraced within this project. He has also drafted a bill to make the salaries of county officials uniform and equal, and to provide for an accounting system for county clerks. Another bill drafted by him relates to county and district fairs, his real object being, he says, to place appropriations made for them on such a basis that the usual log-rolling attendant upon the passage of individual appropriation bills may be obviated. He has also drafted a bill to consolidate all state boards, save those having jurisdiction over educational institutions, into one board.
