Many Inquiries About
Oregon Are Answered

Intense interest was manifested in the Oregon state exhibits at the Minneapolis and Chicago Land Shows, according to the report of O. E. Freytag of Oregon City, director in charge, and many inquirers were formed of points of interest to them by those in charge of the exhibit.

Mr. Freytag says in his report to the Portland Commercial Club that Louis W. Hill, director of the Great Northern railroad, and James Hannaford, vice president of the Northern Pacific, pronounced the Oregon exhibit to be the best and most comprehensive of the Minneapolis show. Thousands of these persons registered at the shows that might learn more of Oregon through having literature sent them, with the view of coming to Oregon in the near future. The Oregon exhibit at both shows was intensely practical, and for that reason proved of great value to the prospective settler. J. E. Rounseville and wife arrived here this week from outside points where they have been since last November.

Bill Makes it Easy to Get Two Homesteads

Relief to Western homestead entrymen from the hardship imposed by the so-called "John Day decision" of the Secretary of the Interior is promised by the recent action of the lower house in congress in passing the Taylor bill. This measure is an amendment to the enlarged homestead act, and provides that residence and cultivation of the original entry may be credited on the additional entry, the effect being to allow the entryman to make final proof on both at the same time.

Representative Mondell, author of the enlarged homestead law, fully intended that the original act should so declare, and still contends that it does by any reasonable construction of its language. Asst. Secretary Adams, however, declined to take this view of the Mondell act, and the result was that settlers who attempted to make proof on both entries were put to the additional expense of a second proof on their second entries, and in some cases compelled to wait two years or more before such proof could be offered. The first case appealed was that of John Day, and since this decision Western members have been flooded with demands for relief. The action of the house indicates the early enactment of the necessary remedial legislation.

Mrs. Simon Lewis has just received a letter from Miss Godfrey who had recently visited the Marsdens at Whittier, in which she says the Doctor has improved very materially but has had such a long illness that he appears more or less exhausted. She expresses the belief that Dr. Marsden will recover quite rapidly now. Mrs. Marsden, who has attended him constantly, has borne the long trial heroically and her health is quite good considering her close confinement and anxiety.

The Dollar Mark's Origin

Many people like to think that the American dollar-mark is a corruption of the symbol "U. S." Others have held to the old historian's idea that it is a replica of the pillars of Hercules. Prof. Florian Cajorio of Colorado, has knocked all these pleasing fancies in the head by proving, with ancient manuscripts, that the dollar mark is really a corruption of the old Spanish abbreviation for peso--a dollar.

Prof. Cajorio looked over thousands of manuscripts to get at his facts. He started with the idea that the dollar mark was an abbreviation of the word "dollar," but, as he says, "we had to throw our idea overboard as a useless burden."

Then he got the clue. When our Spanish colonist first wrote the word "pesos" one of which is about a dollar, they spelled it out in full. Then it got down to "ps." When it was written hurriedly, the "p" and the "s" were superimposed, as he shows from ancient writings, and gradually the dollar mark came into use--the "p" was written over the "s."

Says Prof. Cajorio: "It has been established that the dollar mark is the lineal decendent of the Spanish abbreviation "p" for "pesos," that the change from the florescent "ps" to $ was made about 1775 by English-Americans who came in business relations with the Spanish-Americans and that the earliest printed dollar mark dates back to the year 1797."

The Public School.

The monthly report of Principal Sutton of the public school for January shows a total enrollment of 229 pupils, 116 are boys and 113 girls.

Tardiness is improving as few compared to former reports were tardy during the month. Miss Hodder's room has the honor picture presented by the Ladies' Afternoon Club, "Sistine Madonna," as there were no tardies in her room for the month.

There were 19 parents who visited the school during the month and one member of the school board.

The Afternoon Club

The Ladies Library Club met last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. C. Foley--the subject for the day being "Great Publications and Their Editors." Mrs. J. W. Biggs read a very interesting paper on the "Development of Periodical Literature" in which it presented the history of the best known publications--dwelling particularly on the great American periodicals and the gradual development and progress made in such literature during the 19th Century. Each member responded to roll call with the name of some well known publication and its editor. The next meeting of the club will take place Feb. 8th at the home of Mrs. Julian Byrd.

Presbyterian Church.

Presbyterian Church tomorrow: Sunday school at 10 A. M., Christian endeavor at 6:30 P. M., Preaching at 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M. Morning Theme: "Forward March." Evening Subject--"Hell: How to Keep out of It."

This is the last of a series on this subject, but the pastor will continue the popular lecture sermon during the remainder of the winter months. Some of the subjects to be treated are: "Socialism and Christianity," "Wireless Telegraphy," "Aviation," "Now the Women Have the Ballot what May we Expect," "Universal Peace," and various interesting and instructive themes.

We hope the efforts of those to bring about greater results and efficiency in the education of "back to the soil," for which several bills carrying more or less appropriations, will not be carried to excess--that is that it will be practical in its application. There is such a thing as going too heavy and not doing just the good that the expenditure justifies.

Increased Interest in The Children's Industrial Contest Work Manifest

Among the many educational matters discussed by the county superintendents during their recent session at Salem in the capacity of State Board of Examiners, none was entered into with more interest than the school children's industrial contest work. With one or two exceptions each superintendent had introduced the work in his county, and was gratified with the results. In almost every county where school fairs were held last year for the first time, the exhibits were beyond the expectation of those in charge. The discussion was not as to whether the movement is a good one, and one to be continued. All were agreed and enthusiastic on that point. It was simply a matter of discussing method--how to conduct the work to get the best results. There was a unanimous sentiment in favoring a later date for the State Fair this year in order to make it possible to hold the local contests first, and then send the best of the exhibits to Salem. Some expressed their intention of sending their whole juvenile county exhibit to the State Fair, and unless there is a mighty sidetracking of enthusiasm, the Fair Board will need to build a roof over one corner of the State Fair grounds to take care of the children's department.

Many of the superintendents in their industrial work this year are going to specialize on poultry, believing that it is a good thing for every child to have the care of some sort of animal life and that nothing is more profitable nor practical to begin with than poultry. It is claimed by some of the superintendents that it is easily possible to meet the entire cost of our public school system by the increase in the production of poultry and eggs by the school children of the State.
