Permanent Land Products Exposition Opens In St. Paul, Minnesota.

With a comprehensive display of the grains, grasses, fruits, minerals and forest products of the State of Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, the permanent land products exposition of the Northwest Development league has opened its doors to the world in St. Paul, gateway to the great and productive American Northwest.

This exposition of the soil brings together a faithful representation of what the states of the Northwest have produced and can produce.

No better evidence of the productive qualities of the soil could be had than the five and six foot samples of wheat and oats in the sheaf. Shelled grains are also shown and the display of grasses best ever assembled for exhibit purposes, every known variety in the Northwest being attractively arranged.

More than 1,800 square feet of wall and floor space have been utilized for the permanent exhibit. The windows have been used for transparencies showing beautiful and highly colored agricultural and industrial scenes in the seven states.
