Dr. Marsden Dead.

The death of Dr. W. L. Marsden, which occurred at Whittier, California, on last Saturday night, March 1, has caused universal sorrow throughout Harney county where he had lived for over a quarter of a century. During his long residence here where he practiced his profession he became known to almost every man, woman and child in not only Harney county but portions of Crook, Grant and Malheur counties. It was not alone in his professional skill that endeared himself to hundreds of people, but as a man he commanded the high respect and regard of all with whom he came in contact. He was ever ready to make any sacrifice for the relief of suffering or for the benefit of his neighbors and friends in whatever capacity he was called upon as a citizen or otherwise. Dr. Marsden endured many hardships during his career in the discharge of his duties in the big field of his practice, without any regard for his own comfort or health. He gave his life to his work and the exposure and sacrifices he endured are no doubt to a great extent responsible for his untimely death.

During a long period of intimate association socially, fraternally and in business the writer has had an opportunity to learn Dr. Marsden's worth as a man in every respect. He knows the esteem in which Dr. Marsden was held by hundreds of fellow citizens; knows the high character of the man, his devotion to his profession for the sake of humanity rather than from mercenary motives; of his unselfish work in this field covering a period of over 25 years; knowing him thus and feeling keenly the loss of a most companionable friend with whom it was a delight to converse, advise and associate, he fully realizes the genuine grief of hundreds of others who held him in like esteem. Dr. Marsden will be missed in more homes in Eastern Oregon than any other man who ever lived.

Dr. Marsden became ill last year and had a very severe sickness lasting for sometime but recovered sufficiently to be out again. In June last year he and Mrs. Marsden went to Portland and spent several weeks there attending the Masonic grand bodies which were in session, prolonging their visit to the Rose Festival with congenial companions and friends of this place who were also there. Later they went to Eugene for a short time where their son George was attending the university and then on to Whittier, California, the home of Dr. Marsden's mother. In August he had a severe attack of pneumonia following this repeated absences formed on his lungs and his weakened condition prevented his recovery from this. Had he been in robust health no doubt he could have finally overcome these but his vitality was so sapped that he finally succumbed.

His grief stricken widow and son and also his aged mother who survive him have the heartfelt sympathy of this community. Nothing is known definitely of the plans of Mrs. Marsden for the future as to whether she will return here soon or not. Her father lives at Canyon City and her brothers reside in Bear Valley where they have large property interests in which Dr. Marsden was also associated.

A high tribute of respect was shown last Tuesday when it was learned by telegram that he would be buried at Whittier with Masonic honors that afternoon. Mayor Clevenger immediately asked that the business houses close from 1 o'clock until four and his request was complied with by every business concern in Burns.

Burns Lodge, No. 97, A. F. & A. M., of which Dr. Marsden was a past Master, and Burns Chapter, No. 40, O. E. S., of which he was a member, will hold memorial services at the lodge rooms on next Monday evening. The service will be participated in by many close and loving friends who mourn him sincerely. Sojourning members of either order are invited to attend.

Walter LeForest Marsden was born in Iowa June 20, 1868. The family came west when he was quite young and his early life was spent in Nevada and California. In the Centennial History of Oregon, published last year we find the following biographical sketch which is reprinted:

Dr. Marsden received his early education in various mining camps in California and Nevada. His schooling was limited and was received under very primitive conditions. His early life was spent in various occupations. He learned the telegraph business and was operator for the Overland Company which owned the first telegraph line across the continent. In this capacity he made his home at various points between Virginia City, Nevada and Salt Lake City, Utah. For two years he was manager of the Atlantic and Pacific Line, competitors of the Overland Company. In 1882 he took up newspaper work and his activities in this regard made him very prominent politically and led to his election to the Nevada state legislature. After his term expired he became acquainted with Dr. Bishop and was employed under him for some time in the state insane asylum. He grew interested in the science of medicine and attended the lectures in the California Medical College. He later studied his profession in the Kentucky School of Medicine, from which he was graduated with the degree of M. D. He started practicing in Bellevue, Idaho, where he remained until 1887 when he removed to Drewsey, Oregon, later moving to Burns where he has made his home since that time.

In October, 1891, Dr. Marsden married Clara A. Byram of Canyon City, Oregon, a daughter of a prominent pioneer of that section. They have one son, George Byram, a graduate of the Burns high school and is now a student in the medical department of the Oregon State University at Eugene.

Dr. Marsden is a prominent Mason. He has taken his thirty-second degree and is a member of the Portland Consistory. He is past master of Burns Lodge, No. 97. His wife has been grand matron of the order of the Eastern Star. Dr. Marsden is one of the leading men in his profession in the northwest. He specializes in surgery and has gained an enviable reputation for his skill in this branch of medicine. He has never let his medical knowledge become out of date. He supplemented his education by a post-graduate course in the New York Medical school and Hospital. For nine years he was the only doctor in Harney county. This meant that his life was practically devoted to the service of his fellowmen. His duties were arduous and his hours of work practically unlimited. He is an indefatigable student not only in matters connected with his profession, but also along various other lines. He is master of the Piute Indian language and is intensely interested in the grammar and history of that tongue which is now being published by the University of California. Dr. Marsden retains all the old-school ideas regarding the duties of a physician in conjunction with the most modern knowledge along medical lines. His practice has increased wonderfully year by year until he is now regarded as the leading physician in his section of the country.

Grange Wins a Prize.

(Communicated)
 In the edition of The Times-Herald of Dec. 21, 1912, there appeared an account of the Jennie Brice Mock Trial, held by the Valley View Grange, at the Valley View school house, Dec. 14, 1912.

The outline of this trial was published in the October, November and December numbers of Everybody's Magazine.

This magazine offered prizes to the amount of $11,540 to all who wished to compete in this contest.

There were 413 cash prizes in all, divided as follows:

3 National prizes; 381 State prizes; 29 Canadian prizes.

The various state prizes were to be awarded only to the contestants in competition within the limits of their own state.

The number of prizes for each state was based according to the population.

Oregon was allotted five cash prizes: 1st, $100; 2nd, $50; 3rd, $25 and two $10 prizes.

The following conditions governed the contest:

1. The Trial was to be held and report sent in not later than Dec. 20, 1912.

2. Every report was to be of a Mock Trial which was actually held, stating time and place at which the trial was held, with names and address of the persons taking part.

3. In awarding the prizes the judges were to consider points of comparative excellence on this basis:

a. The way the mock trial was held.
 b. The way you arrived at a verdict.
 c. The way you made your report.

All reports were considered individually, the judges selecting those which in their opinion seemed best.

The reports of the mock trials held by the various contestants were submitted to a committee of lawyers, consisting of Charles

Will Get Mail This Afternoon

Today makes the eighth day since Burns has received any mail over the Canyon route, which is the one that practically brings all the mail matter received from outside. There will be a mail in this afternoon, 3,000 pounds having left Canyon Thursday morning, but this is only a small portion of what should be received as we are informed there are at least four times that amount awaiting transit. There will be another mail leave Canyon tonight which should arrive here some time Monday.

The Commercial Club sent a telegram to Senator Chamberlain on Wednesday and it brought immediate response with instructions to the post master at Canyon to at once secure carriers and move the mail. Post Master Logan informs the Times-Herald that arrangements have been made to secure the mail over this route every other day at least from now until the first of April when a regular contract is to begin at the old schedule. This arrangement is better than being without mail as we have the past week and at an interval of the same length during January. The people of this big territory have not been given the service they should have had since the mail stopped the first of the year, that is a portion of the time the mail came in regularly, but it was not at all sure at any time. It seems that bonding houses are allowed to take their own time and convenience in making good on mail contracts.

WOODROW WILSON IS INAUGURATED PRESIDENT

Takes The Customary Oath Of Office And Becomes The Nation's Ruler With Out Any Mar To Ceremony

The Times-Herald has been fortunate in securing papers of the 4th and 5th from E. E. Purinton giving the details of the inauguration of President Wilson and also a correct list of his cabinet officers. The inauguration passed off without any mishap but the afternoon was windy, the gale starting directly after taking oath of office, therefore not more than 2,000 of the 75,000 people who witnessed the inauguration really heard his address.

We haven't the space to give details of the ceremony—in fact there is no occasion for such. There was nothing extraordinary about it, the ceremony being formal in every respect.

The Cabinet is made up as follows:

Secretary of State—Wm. J. Bryan of Nebraska.
 Treasury—William G. McAdoo, New York.
 War—Lindley M. Garrison, New Jersey.
 Attorney-General—James McReynolds, Tennessee.
 Postmaster-General—Albert Burleson, Texas.
 Navy—Josephus Daniels, North Carolina.
 Interior—Franklin K. Lane, California.
 Agriculture—David A. Houston, Missouri.
 Commerce—William C. Redfield, New York.
 Labor—Wm. B. Wilson, Pennsylvania.
