GRAND JURY REPORT.

During the session of the grand jury at the April term of circuit court considerable complaint was heard about the liquor traffic in this county, especially in respect to Sunday closing, gambling and selling liquor to minors and Indians. The following paragraph from the report is published by request of the court:

"Word comes to us that the saloons in many parts of the County to-wit: Drewsey, Harney, Lawen, Narrows, Albersson, Andrews, Denio, Diamond, Oroville and Fields Station are not observing the law and are particularly violating the law in keeping open on Sunday, and other days provided by statute for their closing, in allowing gambling in said saloons and allowing minors and Indians in said saloons and in selling, bartering and giving intoxicating liquors to Indians and minors.

"While we have not sufficient evidence before us to return indictments against such parties at this time we are strongly of the opinion that this information is true and we therefore most respectfully recommend that the Sheriff of Harney County, the Dist. Atty., and any and all other officers whose duties it is to enforce the laws of the State of Oregon see that these laws are enforced as well as all other violations of the law."

A Happy Gathering

Quite a large gathering of celebrities was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. Schwartz last evening, the occasion being the annual party given by the Ladies' Five Hundred Club which marks the closing of the club for the season. At these gatherings the men are invited and it was no exception to the usual good time last night.

Tables and partners to begin the hands were found by cards on which the names of celebrated men and women were written such as President and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Pankhurst (but that should be reversed to Mrs. Pankhurst and her husband) at any rate in this party each gentleman found his partner for the first hand at cards after which they progressed in the usual manner.

The honors of the evening went to Mrs. J. L. Gault and Mrs. I. S. Geer, Mr. H. J. Kaliske and Mr. John Gilcrest, both gentlemen being visitors invited to participate by friends. The prizes were very handsome and appropriate. The refreshments which followed consisted of sandwiches, salad, pickles, olives, cake and coffee, most charmingly served. The evening was most thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Kodak time is here.

Usual picture program at Tonawama tonight and tomorrow night. Three reels tonight are entitled: "Lena and the Geese," a picture that has the reputation of being exceptionally good; "A Stern Destiny," in which a little girl figures conspicuously, and "The Shadow on the Blind," a comedy of unusual merit.

Tomorrow night the reels of the high character maintained by the house and all good. "Max Sets The Fashion," is a comedy in which Max, the favorite funny man takes the leading role. It's good. "A Romance of the Boarder" promises to be one of those thrilling dramas of great action and full of excitement with good climaxes. "The Cylinder's Secret" is another good drama and "Half a Hero" is a good picture.

Feature films are going to be received from time to time for the mid-week shows and announcement will be made when they are received. It is the intention of the management to add vaudeville and short one-act comedies to the picture programs in a short time. This will be a welcome change to patrons and they will be given some good entertainments from time to time along this line. This will not likely be taken up until the first of next month.

Tonawama is going to have some good bills on during the summer months as it has secured the services of a talented young lady to take charge and direct some plays during the entire season. Some fine new scenery has been provided with appropriate furnishings and stage settings which will be introduced when arrangements are completed. This assures a season of good entertainment for the people of this place.

He had to phone to Bend and bring his drivers back and then went with them in person to Prairie City to receive them. They are expected in with them tomorrow evening. It was quite a disappointment and considerable expense to him but the cars will be here for those who have ordered them.

Railroad Forfeits Lands in Oregon

Lands in Oregon aggregating 2,373,000 acres, held by the Southern Pacific, by virtue of grants made by Congress to its predecessor, the Oregon & California Railroad Company, in 1866 and 1879, were declared forfeited to the United States Government yesterday in a decree pronounced by Judge Charles E. Wolverton, of the United States District Court, says the Oregonian.

The decree was based on the fact, which Judge Wolverton assumed to have been proved, that the railroad company violated the terms under which the grant was made, in not selling the lands to actual settlers at $2.50 an acre, in selling lands at a higher price than $2.50 an acre, and in selling more than 160 acres to one person.

Judge Wolverton's decision is another step in the upward march of the celebrated case toward the United States Supreme Court. The entrance of the decree will be suspended for a few days to allow for the clearing up of some minor matters connected with the case.

As soon as the decree is formally entered the Southern Pacific will appeal the case to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which means that it will be tried in the Ninth Circuit District at San Francisco. This court convenes the first Monday in October, 1913, and the case probably will be assigned to a hearing for the following November.

Whichever way it is decided in this court, an appeal will be taken to the United States Supreme Court, and if things move as expeditiously as the attorneys for the Government and any railroad hope, it will reach the highest tribunal in the country in October, 1914. No decision may be expected before the following Summer, so that it will be more than two years before the case is finally settled.

Central Oregon Grass Abundant.

"Tell me, if you will why, with more grass going to waste in Oregon than is grown in any single state east of the Rocky mountains, the railroads have hauled carloads of butter from that poorer grass section that you may have butter to spread on your bread."

The question is asked by Professor A. E. Chamberlain, agricultural commissioner of the Great Northern, says the Portland Journal.

"Tell me, with your climate, why you are paying freight on the eggs you use on your tables?" he continued.

"It is because your people have been overlooking the little advantages that nature gave you over everybody else in this country, and have been looking to doing some great big thing instead of availing yourselves of the greatest resources God gave to man grass, plain grass!

"I have always believed that the greatest asset of the state of Oregon is grass.

"While you are struggling with the development of orchards, the fruit lands and irrigation projects, there is going to waste each year in the state of Oregon grass that has been provided by nature without any aid from man, that if consumed by livestock would produce more net wealth for your people than is produced from the fields of some states in this union that have three, four or five times the rural population you have in Oregon."
