This section has experienced some of the hardest rain storms for this season of the year in its history. The precipitation for the week is in excess of an inch and a half, and almost two inches for the month. It began raining on Monday of this week and a heavy shower was experienced on that evening and again on Wednesday night it began raining and the next morning the measurement showed almost an inch. It has interfered with the hay harvest and considerable was ruined that will never go into the stack. It has caused heavy grain to fall, but with warm sunshine this will likely raise up again, so that at least most of it can be cut by the binder.

Water Permits Filed With State Engineer.

The following is a report of the water filings in the State Engineer's office:

During the quarter ending June 30, 1913, twenty-one permits have been issued by the State Engineer for the storage and appropriation of water in Harney County. Among these are the permits of C. B. McConnell and Leonard and Emory Cole, covering water rights for a large irrigation project in the vicinity of Riley and Burns. It is contemplated to construct two or three reservoirs on Silvies River where there are some excellent sites. What is known as the Lower Reservoir on Silvies River will impound 96,000 acre feet, while the upper reservoir will impound 106,000 acre feet and the proposed reservoir on Emigrant Creek will store 67,600 acre feet. In addition to these reservoirs for the Silvies River unit, it is proposed to store 2,380 acre feet of the waters of Poison Creek. The Silver Creek unit will be supplied with water from the Silver and Nichols Creeks reservoirs which will have impounding capacities of 97,700 acre feet and 2,215 acre feet, respectively. The Silvies River unit of the project includes the irrigation of about 27,592 acres and the Silver Creek unite 26,701 acres. Thomas and Walters of Chicago have secured a permit for the irrigation of 663 acres of land with the waters of Colony and Van Horn Creeks. Making Berry Juice

The following simple and effective way of bottling berry juice was employed by Professor C. I. Lewis in the laboratory of the Oregon Agricultural College, and is a sure way of saving loganberries at a good profit on the rainy day: Heat the berries to as nearly the boiling point as possible and strain out the juice. Mix juice with one-third its measure of sugar, heat as before pour into sterilized soft drink bottles, shove the cork about two inches within the neck of the bottle, and pour melted paraffine to the top. This process preserves the flavors and aromas and keeps the product indefinitely. Diluted with four times its measurement of water it is a delicious drink.

LATEST DEVELOPMENT LEAGUE NOTES

(From Our Portland Correspondent)

That the policy of the Portland Commercial Club to continue the campaign of farm development throughout the state is in high favor with the business interests of the city is evidenced by the fact that the present campaign has met with more prompt and favorable support among property owners of Portland than any movement of like nature that has been conducted in the past.

A few weeks ago the Commercial Club set out to raise a fund of $150,000 to be expended in development work throughout Oregon during the next three years and so successful has been the effort that at the present time the fund is well above the $100,000 mark and it is believed by those having the campaign in charge the full sum will be pledged within the next month. In the list of those who have given definite sums are 160 firms and individuals representing virtually every branch of business activity in the city.

The fact that onions from Texas, potatoes from California and eggs and poultry from points outside of Oregon are being received in Portland in carload lots while the farmers in the immediate vicinity of the city, as well as those tributary to the railroads leading to this market, cannot find a market for their produce at any price has led the Portland Realty Board to actively take up the question of establishing public markets where gardeners and farmers may dispose of their products direct to the consumer with great benefit to both. It is stated that the fact that farmers cannot sell their own crops in Portland without a license, and the further fact that the commission men will not buy from him except at their own prices, is causing many farmers to allow fruits and vegetables to go to waste rather than dispose of them at a loss.

That the dairy business in the coast counties has been established on a paying basis is evidenced by the fact that the Clatsop County Co-operative Cheese Association has recently been paying 7c more per pound for butter fat than the market price. The average amount of milk now being received is nearly 6,000 pounds per day with a prospect of greatly increased supplies in the near future. An ice manufacturing plant will be installed before the advent of hot weather next season.

Attention has recently been called, by the Oregon Agricultural College, to the fact that many farmers who are so unfortunate as to have hay injured or spoiled by rain are making the mistake of either burning it in the field or allowing it to rot in piles. It is stated that spoiled clover or alfalfa hay is worth $8.50 to $10.00 per ton as fertilizer if evenly spread over the fields and plowed under, and that every ton of hay so worked into the soil is approximately worth four tons of fresh manure. A ton of clover hay contains 40 pounds of nitrogen, 5 pounds of phosphorus and 30 pounds of potash, which, if purchased in the open market would cost the farmer about $10.50, and as clover and vetch is yielding about 2½ tons per acre this season, the plowing under of the spoiled hay adds a fertilizer value of not less than $25 to each acre.
