Christmas day brought us more snow and now we have about 12 inches and the sleighing is fine. It has caused feeding of stock generally but this is expected at this season of the year and the white covering is a benefit to feed yards. It is also nice for hauling as now the stages should make good time on runners when the road is once broken and teamsters can haul heavy loads.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK

CAPITAL AND SURPLUS $100,000.00

Burns, Ore., Dec. 20, 1913

To our Friends and Patrons:

The year now drawing to a close has been one of the most satisfactory and successful of our career. During the year of 1913 a larger volume of business was transacted through our institution than during any previous year in our history. Within the past sixty days more new accounts have been opened with us than in any like period heretofore, while our books now contain a larger number of depositors than ever before-- a silent tribute to the fact that our business methods have met with the public's generous approval, and that our banking policies have proven right under the exacting test of time.

During the past year we have increased our office force, have further perfected our carefully devised system of handling the large volume of business committed to our charge, and have added the newest and latest office equipment, so that we are now enabled to render better and more efficient service to our patrons than at any time in the past.

With the approach of the holiday period we extend to our many friends the season's greeting. We desire to thank you for your past patronage, for the kindly words of commendation that have brought us new friends and patrons. That the New Year may bring you one and all prosperity and plenty is our sincerest wish.

With best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year, I am,

Very sincerely yours,
J. L. Gault,
Cashier.

Secretary of the Interior, Lane has made a fine report on needed changes in the land laws and other matters under his direct care that should be read by the people of the West. Expresses Satisfaction With Currency Law

J. L. Gault, cashier of the First National Bank, states that he considers the changes made in the new currency bill before its final passage are such that it will make the new law quite acceptable and satisfactory to the National Banks generally. It is his belief that very few of the National Banks will surrender their charters when the new law becomes operative, and he further states that whatever steps are necessary for his institution to continue under the new system will be taken in due season. Mr. Gault expresses gratification that the bill has finally been passed and it is his opinion that it was greatly improved and strengthened during the closing days of its consideration and that it will prove beneficial to business conditions generally.
