New People Take Over Caterpillar and Big Acreage.

A. B. Cooley, of Umatilla county, who was here recently looking over the country with a view of investing, has returned accompanied by his son George and M. E. Briggs. The Times-Herald has it on good authority that Mr. Cooley and associates have taken over the Ed. Holloway caterpillar plow and machinery that goes with it and also a big acreage of land, covering some two sections.

Mr. Cooley is a practical farmer and has had much experience in the wheat belt of Eastern Oregon and is also familiar with the big plow that is also a part of the deal and we predict success for him. Harney Valley has been needing just such men and with a few of his kind actually developing the territory in a scientific and practical manner means more prosperity than a dozen speculators buying our land.

With this big tract in the hands of practical men and the plow also at work it will make a decided change in farming conditions in this vicinity. We welcome Mr. Cooley and hope to have more of his kind.

"THEY ALL KNOW ME."

Every newspaper man in his experience soliciting advertising has had some merchant tell him, "They all know me, so why should I advertise?" Let us look at this. If the merchant meant anything by this assertion he meant that anyone who might be induced to trade in his town and with him knew him. That this is not true is apparent to every thoughtful person.

People in a community are constantly changing, coming and going, and are becoming more and more preoccupied with their own affairs, so a merchant need go but a short distance from home to find people who never heard of him. They may meet a merchant in a personal way, and at the same time know nothing of him in a business way and nothing of the goods he handles.

Meeting a man in a personal way and meeting a man in a business way are two very different things. John Smith may know Jones, the man, but Smith may not trade with Jones the grocer, for the very good reason that he only knows Jones in a personal way. He does not know him in a business way. He has not been educated to think of Jones as the possessor of some commodity that would give him greater comfort and happiness. He has not been educated to think of groceries when he thinks of Jones. If every time Smith thinks of Jones he thinks of groceries of a superior quality that he needs for his comfort and happiness then we might say that Smith knows Jones the grocer. The one way to bring Smith to know Jones, the grocer, better is to teach Smith more of the business side of Jones and the goods he sells. How else can this be done more effectively, economically and consistently than through newspaper advertising.—Geo. E. Patterson.

Eastern Star Grand Officer Visits Local Chapter.

Burns Chapter, No. 40, O. E. S., entertained Mrs. Dora B. Schulke, of La Grand, who is Associate Conductress in the Grand Chapter of this state and who came to this city Monday as the representative of the Grand Matron on an official visit. Mrs. Schulke proved a very entertaining visitor and instead of the usual feeling of "bashfulness" displayed by the local officers on such occasions the representative of the Grand Matron soon made them feel at ease and the work progressed nicely in the initiation ceremony, a candidate having been taken through the degrees during the evening.

In the remarks to the Chapter during the evening Mrs. Schulke complimented the officers upon the proficiency of the work saying that she found it much better than in the majority of Chapters visited. She also paid her enthusiastic tribute to this big, magnificent Valley and predicts a great future for this big territory. So well pleased was she at her reception here and the hospitable people that she insisted she would try and be the representative of the next Grand Officer in order to come and see Harney Valley again and enjoy the entertainment of the Star members.

The Chapter had a large attendance to meet with the Grand officer and a very enjoyable social time followed the ritualistic work with refreshments being served.

P. H. Gray and wife were in last Saturday to receive their new Ford car which they had just purchased and Mrs. Gray insisted she was going to stay in town until her husband learned to run it.
