FUTURE OF ADVERTISING.

Everything is changing and progressing, and everything has a future. There is a future for business and nothing in connection with business has a greater future than advertising.

Advertising is fast approaching an exact science. The successful merchant today knows what advertising is, what it does, and what it will do for him. But we must remember that only 5 per cent of merchants are successful.

The successful merchant plows his ground deep, harrows it well, selects the best seeds and plants it carefully, cultivates the soil regularly and reaps a bountiful harvest. He knows like the farmer, that to reap a good harvest you must prepare the soil before planting the seed.

Some merchants expect spontaneous results from a small amount of advertising, and if they are not forthcoming they say advertising doesn't pay. What would we think of a farmer who planted his seed today and expected his harvest tomorrow. The seed must germinate, grow and mature before harvest, and the right kind of advertising will produce just as certain a harvest if planted in well prepared soil and given a chance to germinate, grow and mature.

The future of advertising is no different from the future of farming or any other business. How can a merchant expect much from his advertising unless he puts well established scientific principles into play in the preparation of his advertisements, and then gives the advertising time to produce results.

The future will call for more system in advertising and more interesting advertising and more instructive advertising.

It makes no particular difference whether a merchant has a monopoly or competition in his community. He will advertise if he wishes to retain the confidence and good will of the people for he thus gets ahead and stays ahead of competition.—Geo. E. Patterson.]

these contests and every boy and girl may have an opportunity to compete for some of this money.

Another novel feature of the late afternoon is the "Plug-ugly" parade that will be given special attention by the committee. Masks will be provided and a team furnished for this occasion and it is the intention to secure as many as possible to take part in this part of the program. The rig will be taken to the fair grounds where the "Plugs" may make up in whatever character they desire and then they will be

"All of a Sudden Peggy."

The Canyon City Dramatic Club presented "All of a Sudden Peggy" at Tonawama last Saturday to a well filled and appreciative house. Several of those taking part are quite well known to the people of this city and this made the entertainment all the more interesting.

Mrs. Perry Chandler in the title role was a decided success. She played her part to perfection and was well supported by Mr. Whitfield who played the lead. Mr. Chandler as the "Major" was typical in both make up and expression. His lines were well in keeping with the character and he sustained it well. It was a very difficult part. Miss Velma Guernsey as "Mrs. O'Mara" mother of "Peggy" was most favorably received and praised for her excellent work, as was also Mr. Anderson in the part of "Anthony". Miss Bertha Boyce, who is well known here, being a cousin of the Gould boys, played the part of "Millicent" in a most creditable manner. Mrs. Slater as "Lady Craekenthorpe" was everything the part required. Miss Denny played the "neighborhood gossip" in a very fetching manner and Mr. Clay and Otis Patterson each sustained their characters well.

The play was very much enjoyed by the people of this city and the comment following the production was most flattering. They compare favorably with the players who come to our city as professionals and we have some pretty good ones. The party departed for their home the following day quite well satisfied with the manner in which they had been received by the play goers of Burns and the praise of their friends and admirers. They may be assured of a big house at any time in future they may decide to visit us.

Mrs. Dodge's orchestra of little players added much to the evening's entertainment, as they rendered several selections during the intervals between acts and before the curtain raised.
