

ARE YOU A BUSINESS FARMER?

Farming is a business, and the successful farmer must first of all be a business man. He follows his vocation primarily for the money he can make and, like other business men, should strive to get the greatest possible return for the money and labor involved. It is not enough to simply grow crops, but they must be so produced as to yield a profit on the capital invested. To succeed he must be thoroughly acquainted with every detail of occupation and must strive to stop all leaks and prevent needless waste. At the same time he must bear in mind that it is a good business principle to spend a dollar whenever he can see that it will come back to him with interest.

PORTABLE FEED RACK.

Roughage should always be fed in Racks and Mangers.

Here is a portable manger that one reader has found very beneficial in feeding roughage about the farm. Roughage should always be fed in racks and managers. Waste results from feeding on the ground. Such a rack as shown by Better Farming will pay for itself in one season in feed that is saved or that would be wasted from feeding on the ground. Any kind of boards may be used for making the rack, but it will last much longer if made from wood that resists the action of the weather. The runners are 2 by 8 inches, fourteen feet long, shaped at the ends like a sled runner. Six inches from each end is a 2 by 8, three feet long, set inside the center. On the top of the runners at the center pieces are nailed a 4 by 4, flat side down. In each corner a 2 by 4 upright three and a half feet high is made stationary, also one at the center of each side. Three four-inch boards are nailed to the uprights. Holes are bored in the ends of the runners and heavy wire inserted, to which a singletree is attached whenever it is desired to move the rack about the farm.

Every farm ought to be equipped with a crowder and a ton from tipped wooden spikes for moving heavy objects. They save time and take the place of muscle.

Light Cart For Quick Work.

For this light running cart two discarded bicycle wheels can be used, with a steel rod for an axle. The axle is fastened to a piece of 2 by 4, which serves to fasten the floor of the cart and as a shoulder to keep the wheels in place. The frame is made entirely of strips of flooring. This cart has been in use eight years and found good for moving anything about the place. A cleat on both ends of the bed keeps articles from sliding off.

Removing Mulch.

When growth begins in the spring the mulch is removed. Part of it may be worked around the crowns of the plants to form a clean bed for the fruit to rest on, thus keeping it out of the dirt. The remainder is removed to allow irrigation and cultivation.

LIVE STOCK AND DAIRY.

More cows are needed on our farms. No animals are better for soil improvement and the conservation of human food than cows. More cows should be kept and more home-bred animals supplied with milk and butter. A few pounds of butter a week or a few hundred pounds of butter fat per month would mean more cash in the home.

Milk cows will need succulent food this spring and next winter. Plant crops for early grazing and build a silo and fill it for winter feeding. Succulent food is indispensable to economical milk production.

Grain is a very important crop to sustain and fatten animals. Corn is the staple in the humid belt and Kaffir, milo and fetterita in the arid and semi-arid belt. Plant liberal acreage in grain.

Carrots, disregarding their cost, make the best succulent feed that may be given to a horse. They are very palatable to almost all horses and do much to tone up the system. This is particularly noticeable in the thrifty condition of the skin and hair of horses which are fed carrots regularly. Carrots are particularly prized by fitters of show horses, which are being fed heavily on grain. Ten pounds per day is generally accepted as the maximum feed for an idle horse of average size. Half as many pounds are sufficient for the worker. Unless one has an unusual supply three or four carrots thrown in the feed box will suffice. If large they should be split lengthwise or pulped.

BEEES AND POLLINATION.

It has been a matter of doubt until recently as to just what agencies were responsible for cross pollination in apple orchards. It was thought that the wind was a factor as well as the honeybees and other insects. This has been proved, however, that the wind has very little to do in adding cross pollination and that honeybees, wild bees and other insects are very necessary for the transference of pollen.

To determine the importance of the honeybee and other insects as factors in cross pollination an experiment was carried on by the Kansas experiment station under the direction of James W. McCulloch, assistant entomologist. Wind was not considered in the test, because it was found that wherever apples were grown far from an apiary only a small amount of fruit was grown.

It was found that tame bees were the predominant insects visiting the flowers. They visited the trees from early morning until sundown. Cloudy or windy weather seemed to reduce their number, and they did not begin flying until after the dew had left the

BUILDING POULTRY HOUSES.

Light, Ventilation and Sanitation Are Important Considerations.

By WILLIAM F. SCHOPPE, Assistant poultryman Montana agricultural experiment station.

Poultry houses are generally divided into two classes, the small colony house and the large stationary house. Colony houses are usually built on runners and can be easily moved from place to place. They are used where the birds are allowed free range. This keeps them on clean ranges and supplies them with an abundance of fresh green food.

The large stationary houses are used where a considerable number of birds are to be kept on a small area of ground.

As sunshine is very necessary to the health of the poultry, the houses should be arranged so as to admit the greatest possible amount.

Ventilation is another very important factor to be considered. It makes little difference how the poultry house is ventilated so long as it is thoroughly done and a draft does not blow on the fowls.

The straw loft furnishes a very convenient and successful method of ventilation. Its greatest drawback is that the straw collects a large amount of dust and dirt. If straw is used it should be cleaned every year or two and the house thoroughly disinfected before the clean straw is put in.

In ventilating a house with straw, boards or poles are laid loosely across at the desired height and about two or three feet of straw is laid on these poles. There should be a window at each end of the loft and these should be left open at all times.

The dirt floor is the cheapest and some authorities claim, the best. It is, however, easily contaminated by diseases, is hard to keep clean and fresh, and unless thoroughly drained it is damp in addition to the other disadvantages.
