Fatal Accident.

Wednesday forenoon Raymond the nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rush McHargue lost his life in a most distressing manner. It happened at the family home in Barren Valley and the remains were brought to this city for interment.

They were busy in the harvest and had hauled a load of hay but as it was quite windy the men decided to assemble a new binder that Mr. McHargue had just purchased and a neighbor was needed to assist. This man, a Mr. Dale, had been kicked on the knee by a horse and they sent over for him in a cart, the little boy having volunteered to go with his pony and his older brother went with him to open the gates. When they reached the neighbors he was grinding a cycle and said he would be ready in a few minutes so the older brother got out of the cart and while waiting the horse turned his head and evidently saw the boy in the cart and lunged forward so quick that Raymond was overbalanced and fell with one foot caught in the spring, the cart being a skeleton affair with only a little bed on it. The pony ran some distance and the boy's head was thrown against the wheel which crushed the back of the head, breaking the skull; his shoulders were also more or less bruised and the leg caught was broken. The pony ran into the plowed ground and soon stopped but when they reached the little fellow life was gone.

Eldon Johnson, an uncle, went to the company ranch near and phoned to Burns at once for Austin Goodman to come to meet them and as soon as they could they started by team for this place being met on Crane Creek by Austin who brought the family on in, the father and Eldon continuing the journey with teams, fresh horses being secured along the road and trip was made as quickly as possible. They left home about three o'clock in the afternoon and arrived in Burns about six.

The father states that the pony was considered gentle and had been driven and ridden a great deal by the children and it was never dreamed the horse would run away. The elder brother allowed his little brother to drive to please him and they all considered it entirely safe. Had there been no gates to open the unfortunate little fellow who lost his life would have been permitted to go alone as it was in sight of the home and no one thought it possible that an accident of any consequence should occur.

Raymond Dawson McHargue would have been nine years old next month. He was a bright and energetic child, very affectionate and lovable. His tragic death was a severe blow to his parents and many relatives and they have the deep sympathy of this community.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon from the residence of Austin Goodman, the service being conducted by Rev. Mrs. Lewis.

A SAD DEATH.

The sudden death of Mrs. Harry P. Witter which occurred in this city Tuesday was a sad blow to the husband and relatives as well as a large number of intimate friends. They had just come in from the farm home on Sage Hen during the afternoon that she might be near her physician but she was not thought to be in any particular need of a doctor at that time, although suffering from a slight cold. Her breathing was difficult and Dr. Carl was called. Shortly after the supper hour he was again called when he saw alarming symptoms. The immediate cause of death was eclampsia. Not only was her life taken most suddenly but also twin baby girls by premature birth.

Mable Savage-Witter was born April 28 1884 in Washington county, this state, and came to this county with her parents in 1905 where she has since resided. She was married to Harry Witter Sept. 25, 1911. She was one of the most lovable ladies in this vicinity and had endeared herself to many with whom she had come in contact. She was devoted to her home and husband and altogether an estimable lady. She is survived by her husband, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Savage, two sisters and one brother all of this vicinity.

The parents were in Portland where Mr. Savage has been for over a year on account of his health. The mother and sister came up from that place to attend the funeral, the father not being able to come on account of his poor health.

The funeral was conducted Friday morning from the Masonic hall by Burns Chapter, O. E. S. of which deceased was a member. The impressive and beautiful ceremony was listened to by many outside the Chapter members who wished to pay a last tribute to one whom they had known and loved. The bereaved husband and family have the deep sympathy of this entire community.

How Farmers Buy and Sell.

Farmers generally receive the lowest price that their produce is ever sold for, and pay the highest prices that their supplies ever command. This condition, according to economists at the Oregon Agricultural College, is but one of the evils of the present system of unorganized marketing. While it is natural that produce prices should rise as they travel from the producer, it is very burdensome when middlemen absorb, as at present, from 50 to 60 per cent of the cost to the consumer. Since nearly all the added cost is a result of wasteful methods of city distribution, consumers as well as producers should organize to eliminate the waste. High prices charged to the farmers are caused in part by the extravagant methods of city retail trade, since farmers pay a share of the small phone order, immediate delivery and other expenses although getting none of its benefits.

T. Arthur Jones Witnesses

Fight Between Bull and Deer.

The following letter appeared in the Long Creek Ranger and describes a fight that took place between a Jersey bull and a big five point buck deer. It says:

Wondering why my cows did not come I sauntered up the creek to find them; had not gone very far when I heard quite a noise a short distance up the creek. Leaving the creek and going upon the side hill to get a better view, I spied two does and only one fawn, just below them was my bull and the buck just tearing things up charging each other furiously. Not caring to venture nearer I got down on all fours and watched the combat. The buck charged often but the bull never gave an inch, the bull got several punctures but never flinched. Finally the bull got a little above the buck and made a quick charge and caught Mr. Buck broadside, tumbled him over and when he got up he jumped across the creek with the bull in hot pursuit. Going up to where they had been one of the does still hung around I discovered a little fawn caught in a log. I got it out and pretty soon it joined its mother and they joggled up the creek.

Law Now in Effect.

Practically 4000 employees engaged in industries classed as hazardous have come under the workmen's compensation act which became effective throughout the state on July 1. This is estimated at about 85 per cent of all the employees in the state engaged in these industries. Members of the industrial accident commission state that letters are still being received daily from employers who want to withdraw their rejections and become subject to the law. It now requires 30 days notice to withdraw a rejection.

The law provides for the employer, the employee and the state contributing to the industrial accident fund, out of which compensation for injuries to be paid to all injured employees or their families who come under the provisions of the law.

There will be seven traveling auditors who will spend their time visiting the various employers and the scene of their operations, explaining the provisions of the law and obtaining information needed concerning the number of men employed, amount of payrolls, etc. There will be 12 employes in the office.

Claims for compensation, which require special investigation, are to be given personal attention by members of the commission, who expect to take that opportunity to get into touch with the employers and employees over the state.

The Letter "E".

Some one has advanced the opinion that the letter "e" is the most unfortunate letter in the English alphabet, because it is always out of cash, forever in debt, never out of danger, and in hell all the time. For some reason he overlooked the fortunes of the letter, so we call his attention to the fact that "e" is never in war always in peace, it is beginning as existence and the end of trouble. Without it there would be no meat, heat, no life and no heaven. It is the center of honesty, makes love perfect, and without it there would be no editor, devils, on news.—Ex.
