Livestock Market Brisk.

such admission prices every day in the larger cities. The rental of these films was considerable in advance of what the regular service of Tonawama costs each week, therefore it was impossible to produce the pictures for a less price.

The vocal solo by Mrs. Chester Dalton added much to the entertainment and the lady was most generously applauded. She responded to an encore very gracefully. This was Mrs. Dalton's first appearance as a soloist and she won the admiration of the entire house.

The ladies are quite well satisfied with the performance, however, and since it did not entail so much work and worry on the part of the Library Club, it has brought them quite a neat sum. It is possible another picture program will be given for the library before the winter is over, and should this be decided upon definitely it is the intention to secure some well known production that will appeal to all.

Pleasant Social Affair.

Mrs. Chas. Rohn and Mrs. C. B. McConnell were hostesses to a large company of their lady friends at the home of the latter Tuesday afternoon when ten tables were surrounded by guests at 500. The home was appropriately and nicely decorated for the occasion and the favors were red carnations.

The honors at 500 went to Mrs. L. M. Brown, Mrs. Frank Davey, Mrs. Ed. Egli and Mrs. Ed. Eggleston. Mrs. Gault was awarded the consolation prize. Seven more ladies joined the company following the hands at 500, for luncheon. A contest followed this in the character of a "New Fashioned Tea Party" the successful ones in the contest being Miss Josephine Locher and Mrs. Dan Jordan.

The tables were assembled for luncheon in four groups with Mrs. Davey, Mrs. Farre, Mrs. Gamberling and Mrs. Foley presiding at the coffee urns. The guests expressed their appreciation of the lovely entertainment provided by the hostesses.

New Game Acts in View.

In view of the following from the Oregonian respecting proposed changes in the game laws of this state, The Times-Herald would suggest early consideration of such changes as are desired by the local Rod & Gun Club. The Oregonian says:

Revision of the state game laws will demand much attention from the next legislature.

Several members of the Multnomah county delegation already are preparing tentative drafts of changes they want made in the existing laws. A few up-state legislators likewise are figuring on what they think are much-needed revisions.

John Giff, of Portland, will introduce a bill prohibiting net fishing in the Willamette river between the mouth of the Clackamas and the falls at Oregon City.

Members of the State Game and Fish Commission are working over the present law for the purpose of recommending to the legislature the changes they think are necessary.

"RICHELIEU"

The picture program given at Tonawama last night as a benefit to the public library under the management of the Ladies' Library Club, was not attended as largely as the production deserved, especially as it was a benefit. "Richelieu" is truly a great production and while the story was not made entirely clear to those who had never read the story or seen the play, it was nevertheless a fine production and one that was particularly appreciated by those who care for that character of play.

The writer has heard it intimated that the price was too high but such productions command

Among other things, the Commission probably will ask that the deer season be opened a month later than at present, or September 1 instead of August 1, and close about ten days later, or on November 10. This would cut down the season about 20 days, but the Commission would ask that the restriction against killing doe be removed.

It is probable that the Commission also will ask the legislature to allow the killing of Chinese hen pheasants. They point out that many hunters kill the female birds anyway, and that if the killing be legalized the slaughter would be reduced, inasmuch as the hens would have to be counted in the hunter's bag with the male bird.

In Sunday's issue, the Portland Oregonian devotes an editorial to comment upon the faith in Central Oregon's credit shown by the recent sale of the five per cent interstate bridge bonds at a premium. That, and other indications, point to the sound condition of the state, and of rapidly bettering condition of financial affairs. An easier market and considerable industrial expansion in Oregon are the predictions of the Portland paper.

The editorial continues: "Many such enterprises await capital and the energy to apply it. As soon as the litigation involving the Southern Pacific and Central Pacific railroads is ended money will be needed to complete the Natron-Klamath cut-off. When returning prosperity has put the interurban trolley lines on a paying basis their extension to new points in the Willamette valley, Southern Oregon and the Coast belt should become financially possible. The same statement is true of the extension of the O. W. R. & N. line now building through Central Oregon to a connection with the Deschutes Railroad at Bend and with the Southern Pacific at Natron; also of the extension of the Oregon Trunk road from Bend to Klamath."

Public Land Being Settled.

As an answer to the impression which seems to exist that all the public lands of any value have long ago been taken up, Secretary Lane, in an advance statement from his annual report, calls attention to the fact that since March 4 1913, settlers have made entry on nearly 20,000,000 acres of public lands—an area equal to that of Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and New Jersey combined. During the same period practically as much more coal and other mineral land of the west has been examined in detail in 40-acre tracts by the Geological Survey, and most of it has been thrown open to settlement or purchase. Some of these lands, such as those which include workable deposits of phosphate or oil, are still withdrawn pending suitable legislation for their disposal or use. Another important activity in public-land classification to which the Secretary calls attention is the designation of lands for entry as "enlarged" or 320-acre homesteads. Designations under this law approved by him cover 33,453,056 acres.

The extract from the Secretary's report contains a series of maps of twelve public land states showing in graphic form (1) the areas withdrawn from entry in these states between March 1913, and July, 1914, (2) the area restored to entry, (3) the designations under the enlarged homestead law, and (4) land taken up by settlers. Thus, for example, the map of Montana shows the total area of the state, 93,000,000 acres; lands withdrawn from entry, 67,741 acres; lands restored to entry after examination, 3,171,558 acres; lands designated under the enlarged homestead law, 11,022,854 acres; and lands entered by settlers, 7,417,291 acres. The other states in which public land activities have been large and which are discussed by the Secretary are Utah, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, North Dakota, Arizona, California and Nevada.

Best Cough Medicine for Children.

"Three years ago when I was living in Pittsburg one of my children had a hard cold and coughed dreadfully. Upon the advice of a druggist I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it benefited him at once. I find it the best cough medicine for children because it is pleasant to take. They do not object taking it," writes Mrs. Lafayette Tuck, Homer City, Pa. This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. Sold by all dealers.
