State Aid Favored.

County Judges and Commissioners of Oregon in their annual session at Portland last week recommended that the 1915 Legislature levy a one mill tax for permanent state road purposes. The resolution also asks that the Legislature delegates to the county courts the right to say what kind of traffic is injurious to the roads.

Recommendations to the next Legislature were in part as follows: That the present law regulating the payment of widows' pensions be amended that no money shall be extended unless approved by the County Judge and Commissioners. That the Legislature appoint a committee to revise, simplify and systematize the road laws and that the law requiring the several counties to take a census every ten years be repealed.

More Stock Victim of Rabies.

Leo Fisher returned this week from Alvord where he took a deputy state veterinary on application of Frank Clerf to ascertain the cause of his loss of stock. The veterinary found several head of his cattle afflicted with rabies, Mr. Clerf having lost about 20 head and more were afflicted with the malady.

This is a serious loss as the ranch is stocked with pure bred animals and it isn't known yet how many more will die from the effects as several others showed symptoms before they left.

Mad coyotes are reported in many districts and considerably loss of stock is resulting. The county in general is becoming aroused to the necessity of eradicating this danger all over Eastern Oregon and it is likely state aid will be asked to get rid of it.

There is a peculiarity in the manner in which this disease affects animals, it not showing symptoms that had been considered indicative in former years. It had been the theory that an animal afflicted with hydrophobia would not attack anything unless it would come with in its path. That a dog or animal when attacked with the disease always took a straight course and did not deviate for anything. It would bite anything within its reach if in its way but that was all.

It seems from description brought in that the mad coyotes will wonder around in all directions and would attack animals and show fight.

Illustrated Lectures at Short Course.

(Contributed)

A feature of the Short Course which will be held at the High School during the month of February, will be a series of illustrated lectures occurring in the evening at intervals during the session.

The management of Tonawama has kindly consented to give the use of the hall and the picture machine, and other arrangements will be made for the accommodation of those in attendance. The lectures will cover a variety of subjects, but it is planned to take up relates topics on each occasion. Thus one evening will be devoted to Home Economics, taking up such phrases of the subjects as Farm Homes—their construction, care and conveniences.

During another evening livestock will be the topic, taking up such subjects as hogs, dairying, etc. Pictures of the best specimens of the different breeds will be shown, as well as modern methods of caring for the animals and disposing of the products. Crops and dry-farming will be another subject for discussion. Slides picturing every phase of grain growing will be shown, beginning with the germination of the seed and showing every step in its growth and every process through which it passes until it is marketed. Tillage methods and implements for dry-farming will also be shown.

The lectures will be free and the general public, as well as the students registered for the course are invited to attend. As these lectures occur in the evening, no doubt a large number of people will avail themselves of the opportunity to see and hear something which will be both entertaining and instructive.

There were but few needy in this city and those few were provided for in the way of nice Christmas dinners, gifts of toys for the children and clothing, therefore it was a happy Christmas time for all those in Burns. Tonawama gave a picture matinee during the afternoon on Christmas Day and all the little ones who did not have the privilege of admission were given the privilege of the house and while the crowd was not large it more than paid the expense of the entertainment and was appreciated.

A dance was given on Christmas night and a large number of young people took part. Programs were used the first part of the evening, a custom established some time ago at Tonawama. The Masonic and Eastern Star organizations will hold joint installation of officers tonight at the Masonic lodge room. The officers elected last Monday evening in the Masonic lodge were Ludwig Johnson, W. W. A. O. Faulkner, S. W.; E. C. Eggleston, J. W.; J. E. Logan, Secy.; J. C. Welcome, Sr., Treas. The Times-Herald did not get a list of the officers elected by the Star.

WELCOME GEESE.

An Unexpected and Badly Needed Feast in the Arctic.

Noah like ark could not have been more delighted upon the return of the dogs than were the members of Edna Mikkelson's party, in the desert of Greenland ice, with the sight of a flock of wild geese. In "Lost in the Arctic" Captain Mikkelson tells of their need of food, of the fatigue of a long sledge journey and of his own illness. He had become so weak that he was obliged to ride on the sledge. Consequently their progress was very slow. We drive on between a lot of little islands or banks of glacial ice. Badly Iverson makes a snatch at the sledges, causing the dogs to halt in astonishment, and whippers eagerly to something that looks like a potato round stones, and I can scarcely believe my eyes. It is a big flock of geese, sitting there sound asleep. Iverson is on his way toward them. I of course remain where I am on the sledge.

He takes aim, fires and the whole flock rises. Stop a minute! Isn't there on the ground? I snatch up the sledge, and after following the shrieking flocks a little way Iverson returns, beckoning with joy, a big fat goose in either hand. We are delighted and drive off southward in the best of spirits. Iverson even stops every now and then to feel the splendid fat bodies of the birds, and we do nothing but talk of what a feast we are to have when they are cooked. The dogs are doing their best. Iverson marches at the rear of the sledge, singing at the top of his voice, and even I feel a little better.

To Register Breeding Animals Free From Disease.

The spread of tuberculosis by the sale of pure-bred cattle for breeding purposes has led the department to propose a plan for encouraging the breeding of registered animals free from that disease. It is unfortunate that tuberculosis exists in many fine pure-bred herds. It often happens that a man who wishes to improve the breeding of his herd will buy an animal from one of these diseased herds and unwittingly introduce tuberculosis into his herd. The department is undertaking to establish records of pure-bred herds that are free of tuberculosis, so that people who wish to buy fine stock will know where they can be assured of getting healthy animals.

After applying the tuberculin test, which will be done free of charge, an official public record will be kept showing all herds which can be certified as free from tuberculosis, and it is proposed to publish the names and addresses of the breeders whose herds are on this record. The plan is purely voluntary. Herds will be tested only when the owners desire it and agree to the conditions. Publicity may also be given to these herds at exhibitions and fairs by placards upon the pens, and it is expected that separate exhibition classes will be established for such cattle.

Owners of tested herds will be expected to slaughter animals that are affected seriously, as such are apt to be dangerous disseminators of tuberculous infection. Some States provide for reimbursement for animals slaughtered under such circumstances. Arrangements may be made for retaining animals showing no clinical evidence of tuberculosis in quarantine for breeding purposes when it is desired to preserve and perpetuate certain strains.
