me systematized and generally em ployed in offensive operations against fortified positions the military work of sapping and mining was combined and nstead of being done by peasants or vivilian" labor was committed to special troops. These troops became adept in this important work, and be-cause of the extra labor involved and the hazard of this duty these, called sappers and miners, were given high er pay than other troops. As the years and the centuries went by other duties were put upon these troops-erection of field fortifications, erection of many forms of obstacles to upede an aggressive enemy and hold him under fire at a known range, de-struction of bridges, construction of bridges, demolition of buildings and many other things. Gradually the anppers and miners' duties became greatly enlarged and refined, and in many armies they came to be called engiеста

In all armies every soldier today does work that formerly fell to the laboring and hard working sappers. Every sol-dier today knows how to handle a pick and spade as well as to shoot a rifle. stol, magazine gun or cannon. All fike, but construction work, requirof the engineers, successors to the saption the engineers may be aided by troops of other branches and by civilins, hired or impressed .- Washington
