Some people are slow. In fact most of us are afflicted with that ailment. Mr. Hanley told some of the local railroad boosters at a conference last Sunday that the best thing possible to induce a railroad to this place would be to get behind the irrigation project and do everything possible to clear the way to a proper distribution of the water of Silvies River. The Times-Herald is not going to say "I told you so" 'in this matter but there are men who have thought just that thing for several years. In fact it might be recalled that when Judge Lovett, chairman of the board of the Harriman lines, was here a few years ago, he advocated it. Mr. Farrell has said as much on more than one occasion

There have been men in our midst who have worked hard to feet free at first. bring this very important project to the attention of capital and exploited its feasibility, but they didn't have the money to go ahead with it and there have been obstacles thrown in the way by local people when these very people knew it was the right thing to assist. Now that we're waking up to our own interests and men are getting together we may accomplish much that should now be past history.

The executive committee of the Burns Railroad Club have gone to Portland to confer with President Farrell of the O. W. R. & N. Co. Whatever the result of this conference is must be still for help but there was no one near. She attempted to climb the bank which was some 10 feet perpendicular but the soil was loose and she would slide back.

At last she noticed her suit case which was still partly above water, she used this as a step and at last succeeded in getting out. Her heavy skirt was covered with mud and she could not make any headway so she removed it and walked about two miles with her little son before meeting any one. She told some men of the accident and they at once started for the scene, but after finding the distance she had walked decided it would be useless to hurry with the hope of saving the life of the young man, therefore they took Mrs. Goyt and the baby to the grain camp where they secured more help and then recovered the body. The young man's arm was caught in the braces and they also found one foot fastened but

The timber lands must be made ready for development as soon as the market for lumber justifies activity in this direction.
