BE FAIR TO HOME INDUSTRIES

The Times-Herald has had it brought to its attention the past week that there are people who do not investigate rumors to find whether facts justify repeating them. It was reported that there was good milling wheat being fed to hogs and chickens and that it should be stopped. The assertion was then made that one could not blame farmers for feeding it to stock when the local mill would not pay what it was worth.

An investigation of this assertion brings out the fact that the Burns Milling Co is not only paying just the price that others places are paying but are offering just a little better proposition. The same wheat that is quoted at $2.05 in Portland brings $1.82 at Pendleton and less at Baker. The Boise papers quote wheat at even less; some 30 cents less in fact, than is being offered for best milling wheat in Burns.

The Times-Herald is reliably informed by men connected with the mill that they are paying 3 cents a pound. Furthermore, the secretary is making weekly reports to the Federal Food Commission and he is fully advised of the transactions of the local mill, the price paid for wheat, what flour is sold for, the amount disposed of, what is on hand and all the details. The have met the approval of this officer. In fact, according to government regulations the local mill is paying more than the federal authorities would ask them to pay. Further, outside flour is being sold at $2.00 per barrel more than the local product, although they are not paying any more as much for the wheat. The large mills are now working on a basis of a fraction less than 75 per cent of the wheat goes into flour, this under government regulation, but the local mill is working on a basis of 80 per cent, because the equipment makes it necessary. Mr. Wilcox of Portland, is quoted in a recent issue of the Oregon Journal as saying that the mills of that city are making flour at a loss under those conditions. Compare the output of those mills to the local plant, figure the cost per barrel and see whether the local mill is treating the public right or not.

THE PAYROLL DOLLAR

No money moves so rapidly as the payroll dollar.

It comes back into all channels of business and professional activity very soon after it is earned by the employee to whom it is paid.

In these extraordinary days of high costs, the payroll dollar is a boon to the community that is fortunate enough to have industries and payrolls.

Oregon has no patent on the movement to stimulate interest in behalf of home industries.

On the contrary, Oregon is way behind in the big activities along this line.

All over the country the effect is noticeable and the doctrine that Uncle Sam is now preaching to "Buy Local Products" is being practiced with a right good will.

The communities to the North and South and East of Oregon are especially loyal to their local factory goods.

It is now a patriotic duty of every local citizen to use the goods produced by Oregon factories and the merchant or consumer who fails to follow the request of the Government in conserving resources is in the slacker class.

Millions of money is going out of Oregon for many worthy causes, such as Liberty Bonds, Red Cross,

Y. M. C. A. and other war activities.

Most of this money will never find its way back to this community. Therefore, it is a serious duty that confronts every Oregonian in every nook and corner of the State; and that is to buy local products and buy them from local dealer or through him.

Every means to sustain our business fabric should be employed, in order to enable them to carry the extra burden that business is called upon to assume.

Keep ever before you in your purchases that you are to "TRY OREGON PRODUCTS FIRST."

LOANS AND SAVINGS

All over this broad land, from ocean to ocean and from lakes to gulf, thousands upon thousands of men, women and children have entered upon a life of frugality that has for its object the accumulation of one of more Liberty Bonds. Millions of dollars of these bonds are being paid for in monthly installments the terms of which will run for many months to come.

It is all but impossible to estimate what this self-enforced economy will do for our people. Viewed merely in the light of the financial benefit to the different individuals, the results must necessarily be stupendous. But going further and considering the stabilizing effect upon the nation as a whole the result assumes the proportions of an economical revolution.

No nation of people ever yet succeeded in building stable national edifice upon extravagance. It matters not how vast the resources, they must in time succumb to the lavish hand. Only prudence and frugality can lay a substantial foundation for the national life.

We are aware that the life of our people has heretofore been tending toward prodigality and that our phenomenal successes would tend to disprove the foregoing assertion. But there is a reason, and it is found in the comparative newness of the country. Heretofore it has been easier to reach out after untouched resources than to conserve those already in hand. But that day is past.

We are face to face with a demand for all and more than is available, and the smallest fraction of waste will tell in the net result.

THE INVISIBLE OPERATOR

You enter the store. The clerks are all busy, as most of them are in Burns now-a-days. You wait. There are things to look at, perhaps a friend to greet. Time passes swiftly while you wait for those ahead to be served. You do not demand that the clerks drop everything instantly to wait on you. You expect to await your turn. It is customary.

Are you as patient while waiting your turn at the Telephone as you are while waiting it in the store? As patient as you are while you wait for the street car, or while you stand in line at the ticket window? Are you? Think it over.

A knowledge of this fact is the great legacy that will be left to the American people when the war shall have been fought to a successful end. And that knowledge, with the habits of thrift now being enforced, will have effectually changed the American character from a spending to a saving people.

STANFIELD TO MANAGE HIS OWN CAMPAIGN.

That he will be his own campaign manager and have neither headquarters nor assistants but will depend upon the news and advertising columns of the press of the state and personal visits to reach the voters, was the announcement of R. N. Stanfield today in assuming the active work of his campaign for the nomination for United States Senator on the republican ticket.

He declared he intended to make a very active and vigorous campaign and would devote practically all his time from now until the primaries to the work.

The old political campaign manager system does not appeal to him, he is going to break away from it entirely. So far as possible he will personally visit every community and locality in the state and use the newspaper quite freely.

His statements of principles, or platform, will be made public about the middle of the month and he expects to conduct his campaign strictly on the principles therein enunciated.

In his statement today he said he was more than satisfied with the outlook and was confident that with the efforts which he intends to devote to the work during the next three months he would be able to secure the nomination. His first work will be a trip through the Willamette Valley and then Southern Oregon, and then back to Portland. He will attend the Irrigation Congress in Portland January 2nd, and the remainder of the week he will spend at Corvallis where he will deliver an address before the Farmers' School on the Wool Industry of Oregon.
