A Curious Ball Game.
Theodore Roosevelt, writing in Scribner's of his Brazilian journey, describes a curious game of ball played by the Parecis Indians, in which the head alone is used
"There are, of course," he writes, "no such rules as in a game among civilized men, and I saw no disputes. There may be eight or ten or many more players on each side. The ball is never touched with hands or feet or with anything except the top of the head. It is hard to decide whether to wonder most at the strength and dexterity with which it is hit or butted through the air or at the reckless speed and skill with which the players throw themselves headlong on the ground to return the ball if it comes low down.
"Why do they not grind off their noses I cannot imagine. Some of the players scarcely ever failed to catch and return the ball if it came in their neighborhood and with such a vigorous toss of the head that it often flew in a great curve for a really astonishing distance."
Clever Reasoning.
Rather an original lesson in political economy was that once taught by the Japanese nobleman Awo and thus translated by Sir Edwin Arnold in "Sens and Lunds":
One evening as he was going to the palace to take his turn in keeping the night watch he let 10 cash drop out of his under case into the stream and then bought 50 cash worth of torches to search for the lost coin. His friends laughed at him for spending so much in order to recover so little, and he replied, with a frown:
"Sirs, you are foolish and ignorant of economy. Had I not sought for these 10 cash they would have been lost forever—sunk in the bottom of the Namerigawa. The 50 cash which I have expended on torches will remain in the hands of the tradesman. Whether he has them or I is no matter, but not a single one of the sixty has been lost, and that is a clear gain to the country."

Watch Your Shoulders.
When standing before a looking glass notice if your shoulders are the same height. Generally the right is higher than the left. The reason for this unevenness lies in the way one sits. You get into a comfortable chair at your desk, and at once you rest your right elbow on the arm of your chair or your desk, thus throwing one shoulder higher than the other. This is especially the case where one writes a great deal. When you notice that one shoulder is higher than the other the thing to do is to change your way of sitting at your desk. Two simple exercises will be beneficial. The arm of the lower shoulder should be extended upward, the hand grasping a dumbbell. That of the higher shoulder should be lowered and made to support a heavy weight.

Madagascar.
The great island of Madagascar, in the Indian ocean, lying off the east coast of Africa, was officially recognized as a French colony in 1894 after a war of occupation. The majority of the natives are not Africans, the Malayan element predominating in their greatly mixed blood. Of the total population of more than 2,500,000 by the last census, the Hovas, the dominant race, numbered about 850,000, and they are regarded as belonging to the Malayan stock.
The Sakalavas, whose negro affinities are strongly pronounced, rank next in numbers, and besides other indigenous races there are many persons of Arab and Indian descent. The seat of the government is at Tananarivo, which has a population of about 60,000.

Nature the Healer.
The influence of the forms and actions in nature is so needful to man that in its lowest functions it seems to lie on the confines of commodity and beauty. To the body and mind which have been cramped by noxious work or company nature is medicinal and restores their tone. The tradesman, the attorney comes out of the din and craft of the street and sees the sky and the woods and is a man again. In their eternal calm he finds himself. The health of the eyes seems to demand a horizon. We are never tired so long as we can see far enough.—Emerson.

Explained.
"Our air mattresses," said the dealer, "are filled in the months of April and May. That accounts for their remarkable resilient qualities."
"Is the air of those months better than others?"
"They are the spring months, you know."—Exchange

Remembered Him.
Uncle George—Come here, Willie. Don't you know who I am? Willie—You bet I do! You are ma's brother, who stayed here two months one time and never offered to pay a cent for board. Oh, yes; I've heard pa speak of you often.—Indianapolis News.

Argument Spoiled.
She—Too many men expect their wives to run their homes on practically nothing. They forget that no one can make bricks without straw. He—My wife does—out of flour.—Stray Stories.
Consoling Her.
Bess—I sometimes wish I might see myself as others see me. Nell—Oh, you poor dear! Why, you just couldn't believe your eyes!—Browning's Magazine.
No liberal man would impute a charge of unsteadiness to another for having changed his opinion.—Cicero.

TEETH MENDING IN CHILE.
Not an Easy Matter For Foreign Dentists to Practice There.
Not every foreigner who comes along with the claim of being a dentist can practice that profession in Chile. The government sees to it that any one who is to look after the health and preservation of the teeth of its people must first demonstrate his qualifications.
The law provides that before a license may be granted a foreigner to practice dentistry in the country the applicant must secure permission from the rector of the University of Chile to take the examination. His foreign diploma, duly certified and authenticated, must be attached to the permit, and a fee of 500 pesos (about $75 in United States money) must be deposited for the license in the office of the secretary of the university. If the applicant passes the examination successfully the license is issued, and he is authorized to open his office for business.
Any applicant who holds a dental diploma from a school not known or recognized by the Chilean authorities is required to complete the third year's work of the dental department of the University of Chile and must also pass a satisfactory examination before he can obtain a license to practice.—Pan-American Bulletin.

Name of the Saint.
St. George is always turning up on the Danube, from St. George, in Baden, which disputes with Donaueschingen the claim to possess the real source of the river, to the St. George's branch, the southernmost mouth at the delta. Gurzevo is one more of the places named after the saint. It began as San Zoro or San Giorgio in the fourteenth century, when it was founded by the Gengese. In modern times Gurzevo has twice made history. It was the terminus of Romania's first railway, the line from Bukharest, opened in 1869, and in the Crimean war it was defended with stubborn fury by the Turks, costing the Russians 30,000 men to take it.—London Standard.

Japanese Proverbs.
"Some insects feed upon smartweed" (There is no accounting for tastes).
"If in a hurry go around" (The more haste the less speed).
"Live under your own hat" (Let well enough alone).
"The mouth is the front gate of misfortune" (The tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity).
"When the clouds gather let the householder look to his roof."
