STARTING A LIFE HABIT

This Pollo, probably a liaison sergeant attached to an American regiment, is about to try, not without evident trepidation, the great American doughnut. Probably future generations of Marie Celestes and Madeleine Fantines will not think of serving up supper without doughnuts. The scene is in a Red Cross "hut" near the front lines, very likely in imminent danger of a shell upsetting things. Back up the Franco-American courage that jests in the face of death with an over-subscription to the Fourth Liberty Loan.

LITTLE SOUNDS THAT DISTURB

Strange How Ordinary Noises of the Night Affect One Who is Alone in the House.

When you are alone at home and the night comes on, and the noises begin—say, it is a lonesome feeling, isn't it? Uncanny like; ghostly; uncomfortable. You had not thought much about the family, one way or another, when the family was present. Accepted the family as a matter of course, and went about your way. Sat down after the evening meal and read the newspaper; paid no attention to the swishing of a curtain, nor to the whispering of the wind, nor to the creaking that forever takes place about a house. Nothing disturbed you, when the family was at home, but now, with the family away, everything disturbs you—and startles you.

There is nothing to fear, of course. You are not afraid; it is not that. But as you sit there alone, reading, and a shutter rattles a little, how it startles you, says a writer in the Columbus Dispatch. The furnace clicks, as furnaces will, and you wonder what it is in the basement. A vine scrapes the lattice at the back door, and it sounds for all the world like a burglar trying to unlock the door. You know it is not a burglar; you are not afraid, understand. But, some way, every little noise about the house startles and astounds you.

And then you get up to go to bed. You had never before noticed that it made any sound whatever as you walked across the floor when the family was at home; but now, it's different, to say the least, when the family is away.

On the Channel Patrol.

"The weather round about here has been too damnable for words lately, and life on a patrol boat has been no picnic. Came down harbor yesterday in a regular blizzard—could barely see fifty yards ahead at times, about three inches of snow all over the ship—freezing like the devil. There's an infernal no'westerly wind blowing, and this racket rolls about like a sick-head-ache. It's no joke monkeying about in a tiny craft of this size, hunting 'tin fishes.' In daylight it's bad enough, but at night it's extremely dangerous, as one can't see the seas and one's liable to half swamp one's self in turning. And as far as any comfort below goes, there isn't any. Everything is damp and cold, and the steward loses the greater part of your food in bringing it to you, and what you finally receive is a cold unpalatable mess. Yet by Heaven! it's something to be out here having a chance to bag a bally German swine."—Atlantic Magazine.
