The dove of peace appears to be again circling about our heads. By the way, when the Chicago Board of Trade was in session on the other day a dove flew in through the window and lighted upon a desk. Board of Trade men are great believers in signs and omens, and many of them immediately based their operations for the day upon the expectation of a falling market. When they usefully looked at their bank balances later they decided that the omens of the dove was simply that their money would take wings.

The self-denial of the American home, added to the efforts of the American farmer, have removed fear from the minds of our Allies, for this year, at least. Let's keep it up.

MAKE NEW CLOTHES FROM OLD CLOTHING ON HAND

Let no clothing become moth eaten or deteriorate because of lack of use. Make over the old garments for yourself, or if too much worn in spots make over for the children. At least pass them on to some person who will make use of them.

These suggestions are made by Mrs. Cora Platt Miller, instructor in household arts in the Oregon Agricultural College, in view of shortage of wool and other materials due to war conditions.

Material used in clothing for men may be used for suits and overcoats for small children, points out Mrs. Miller. It is usually better and will wear longer than the material in the clothing purchased for them. Shirts which have become worn in spots may be made into kimono dresses, aprons, or rompers for little children.

"Choose styles and patterns that are attractive and becoming," says Mrs. Miller. "add some little personal touch that makes it just suit you—make it as beautiful as you are able to see beauty, let it represent the very best taste and refinement that you are capable of, and then you will like and enjoy using what you have, knowing that you are doing your little part in the conservation of clothing."

"If there are college girls living in your town or neighborhood who have taken sewing or tailoring ask them to help you—it will not only help you but give them more experience and they will be glad to demonstrate certain problems to you or a group of women.

"For example if you are making a little boys suit from a man's discarded suit and don't know exactly how to make the tailore pockets, or put on a tailored collar and there is some one who does know how to do it—be quite sure she will be nly too glad to demonstrate it to a groupe of interested people just as, much as person knowing how would be glad to give a demonstration on the making of muffins out of substitutes.

WHEN PREACHERS CUSS

Sometime ago at Sandusky two hundred preachers attended the synod of the Reformed Church of America. The usual exercises formed part of the proceedings, which also included prayers for the success of the allied armies and for the overwhelming defeat of Germany.

The prayers were in German. Several arguments may be urged to show that English would have been more appropriate, of French—or the aged Japanese. But the arguments may be saved; many of the aged ministers could understand no language but their native German.

When venerable preachers feel that they will be trifling with the Almighty if they cuss the Kaiser in a tongue that they can't understand we need entertain no doubt as to their loyalty. Thank Heaven, we have many citizens of German blood, churchmen and laymen both; whose fidelity to the land of their adoption stands the acid test, and stands it daily.

The prayer-leader could easily have used English, and those who didn't understand could have signified concurrence by preserving that inert condition of torpid unconsciousness which so often characterizes a prayer-meeting. But they wanted to participate more intimately in the festival of malediction against Prussian tyranny. And it is no light matter to repudiate national traditions that have had less than a generation in which to become extinct.

THE AMATEURS

They have checked up on the war gardens. The crop estimate is placed at $525,000,000.00 according to the figures of the War Garden Commission.

National advertisers have a picturesque habit of expressing large totals in graphic form. "One year's output of Bunk's Chewing Gum stretched at full tension would reach to the moon." "The Stingo Soap Works ship enough carloads each day to shave the Bolsheviks." We would like to figure how many carrots and spinach can feed a given number, but it is more practical to guess how many gardeners contributed to the magnificent total.

The amount would have been much larger if the amateurs had known that a garden needs preparation in the fall as much as in the spring. Ignorance of this has meant failure for many of the novices, and now is the time to do the tilling and fertilizing that will atone for the omissions of last year.

The war industries board has reduced the production of talking machines 40 per cent. It is to be hoped that we shall not have to increase our own talking by a like percentage. Some of us would find it difficult.
