

OUR WHITE HOUSE IN FRANCE

An American "White House" in Europe has at last become a reality. It is the home given over to President Wilson by France during his stay there for the peace conference. It is the home of Princess Murat, who personally looked after the workmen in redecorating for the celebrated visitor. The home is located in a very fashionable part of Paris. Even though this home is of the old world, and built by Prince Joachim Murat, it has been modernized with all comforts.

and have given their time and services to the call of liberty bonds and War Saving Certificates. These great bodies of earnest and patriotic people, called together almost at the outset of the war and augmented continually by new recruits, have accomplished a task which seems almost superhuman. My admiration is great not only for the work accomplished, but for the spirit in which it was accomplished. It is my earnest wish to retain and continue these great organizations until the work has been completed. We face this work at a time when we are handicapped in many ways.

"There is no doubt that there is throughout the country a feeling of relaxation—a feeling of self-satisfaction at the work already performed and a strong and not unreasonable call to take up once more individual and business interest and activities. The organizations were prepared for the task which would have confronted them had the war continued throughout the year 1919, or longer, and I am confident that despite these handicaps they will not now relax their efforts and leave the task unfinished.

"Victory has come to us earlier than we might reasonably expect, but victory will not cause us to neglect the completion of that work which made victory possible.

CAMPAIGNED FOR PREMIER HUBBY

War did more for the women of England, looking toward equal rights, than could have many years of struggling along the old lines as used prior to 1914. Mrs. Lloyd George, wife of the premier, campaigned Wales for the return of her husband to Parliament, while the premier himself, in a London address, went on record as favoring equal rights for women—in everything.

"Our men on the other side still have their work before them and so have we. They will not leave until the task is fully accomplished, nor shall we. I am sure then that the Treasury Department can, with confidence, offer another liberty loan and continue the sale of War Savings Certificates knowing that the organizations will respond once more to the call for service and will at once prepare the ground and sow the seed so that the harvest may be abundantly fruitful."

The boom of the flat tire of German militarism heard around the world and maybe the rest of the planets that have been bothered by the suffocating atmosphere of the Bertha Corrupt gun pepper will make the new school histories the judgment books of the Hun for those who toddle at the nine o'clock bell. The maker of history should at least, in his defeat, serve the world something sweet to taper off on; but it seems as though the Hun must forever bear upon his bloody platter the crooked pretzel which is his family coat-of-arms, method of trying the world knot and symbolizing his nature of unsquareness.

"Christmas comes but once a year," and very fortunately Christmas bills follow the same custom.

The Wise Men of old followed the Star, but the wise men of to-day would look at it through a telescope.

It certainly takes nerve for a visitor, uninvited in the first instance to make a second visit without an invitation. Yet this is what the flu is doing throughout the country.

The statement is made that out of 2,500 American soldiers in France suffering from shell shock, 2,200 were immediately and completely cured by the news of the armistice. Please draw your own inference.

The news of Germany's bankruptcy will not be likely to surprise us when we realize that she not only had to support an army in Europe, but also an army of three hundred thousand propagandists in the United States.

The country has had three Wilson-less weeks and is beginning to look forward to the President's return. But we trust that the combination of much feting in Paris and a wintry voyage won't leave him a weakly Wilson.

The Public Health Association (just in convention) admits that "medicine is the art of entertaining patients while nature effects a cure." Is it not almost a pity that under these circumstances the doctors so often entertain us with castor oil?

RECOGNIZES CIVILIZATION.

Strongheart stands on the banks of his happy hunting ground and smilingly looks upon the people who have formed the United States of his country and raised it to the laurel rank of the earthy nations. He says: "Forgive me white brother; I thought you cruel to take my country from my people; my gods from their alters; my civilization from its barbarism; my place from among the nations of the world;—but white brother, the great white Father planned that for my people and that for your people. How could red man, unfit in arms, unlearned in science and unequal in intelligence have lifted his weak tomahawk with enough power to crush the more savage tribes of "Ich and dos" that was growing, growing in the beer fields across the big brook. Ah, mine was the abdication yours the ascension. To what better hearts or thrifths could I have left my country."

There will be no difficulty in resolving to get on the water wagon this year. Your only trouble will be that you will probably find it crowded.

We trust that wives and sweet-hearts will not object to the demonstrative affection shown by the returning soldiers at the sight of the first lady they meet in America. By the way, she carries a torch.

The government is perfectly reconciled this Christmas to having you buy extravagantly of one commodity:— War Saving Stamps.
