VIVIAN MARTIN CHARMING IN "UNCLAIMED GOODS"

Dainty Paramount Star Seen to Excellent Advantage in Her Newest Comedy at Liberty Theatre.

In her latest photoplay in which comedy and drama are congruously blended, Vivian Martin, the dainty Paramount star, will be seen to splendid advantage in "Unclaimed Goods" at the Liberty Theatre on next Wednesday, April 2. There are few of the younger women screen stars whose following is more emphatically enthusiastic than that which fills the motion picture playhouses whenever any picture starring Miss Martin is shown, and that her admirers in this city are loyal to their favorite, is manifested during her former appearances at the Liberty.

As Betsy Burke in "Unclaimed Goods," Miss Martin has a thoroughly enjoyable role, the artistic requirements of which she fully understands and which she sustains with marked ability. Betsy is the daughter of a sheriff who is obliged to go east on important business and who is compelled to send Betsy to her Uncle Murphy at Gold Center in order that she may have a home during his absence. There is a gold rush on at the time and the sheriff is unable to find accommodations for her on the train. So he sends her by express, and this is responsible for the amusing, as well as tragic developments that ensue.

It happens that Gold Center has been captured by a band of ruffians under the leadership of "Gentleman Joe" Slade, a notorious gambler. They have locked up the reputable citizens, including Uncle Murphy, so that their looting and other unlawful operations might not be interrupted. Hence, when Betsy arrives at Gold Center, duly labeled as an express package, Uncle Murphy is unable to claim her, and pending the arrival of the consignee, Betsy remains in the charge of Danny Donegan, the express agent who is compelled to feed, water and exercise her periodically, a task they mutually enjoy, and in the per-

FARM RECORDS DETECT PROFIT-LOSS FACTORS

Farmers, Like Merchants, Can Know Stocks and Transactions Only When Put on Paper

From records kept in the Oregon farm record book will not only detect leaks in the business but disclose the most and the least profitable phases of farm operations.

Does your farm produce the usual home supplies—milk, meat, butter, eggs, fruits, and vegetables, as well as breadstuffs and livestock feed? If not, how can you know whether any of them can be home-grown at a profit, except by trying and keeping records of cost and value? If so, the records will show which are the most profitable.

If the farm as a whole is paying, it is certain that the farm crops, the livestock, the poultry, dairy, garden formance of which Cupid gets in his deadly work on the hearts of both.

"Gentleman Joe" observes Betsy one day and when he learns that she is an unclaimed express consignment, it occurs to him that she might prove very desirable property for a lonely gentleman with a taste for beauty like himself. He calls Danny's attention to the law which provides that unclaimed express goods must be sold to the highest bidder at the end of thirty days, if not claimed, and he sternly insists that the law must be rigidly carried out in this individual case.

Danny postpones the sale as long as possible and as the date approaches, "Cocoph Kid," whom Betsy had at one time befriended, rides to a neighboring town and wires Sheriff Burke of the peril that menaces his daughter. Burke starts westward at once and "Cocoph Kid" returns to Gold Center which he reaches just as the auction sale of unclaimed express goods, of which Betsy is by far the most precious package, has commenced, with "Gentleman Joe" as the auctioneer and the only bidder.

Slade's bid of thirty cents for Betsy is about to be accepted as final, when "Cocoph Kid" enters the bidding lists against the outlaw. This provokes a fierce battle, which Danny, "Cocoph Kid" and Betsy holding off "Gentleman Joe" and his followers. Slade and the Kid are slain and things are looking badly for Betsy and Danny when Sheriff Burke reaches the scene at the head of a posse. Then Betsy and Danny fall into each other's arms.

The photoplay is one of unusual interest, many of the scenes being highly dramatic.

Other attractions of this same evening at the Liberty will be a comedy of two reels in which "Fatty" Arbuckle appears at his best. The title of this is "Moonshine" and it is one of the funniest creations of this popular fat comedian.

This is "Dollar Day" entertainment and out of town visitors will find it a most amusing and enjoyable diversion. No, it won't cost a dollar, it is to be regular priced show but a little better than the usual one.

each returns part of the profit? Possibly the money made on corn is lost on wheat, or vice-versa. Rightly kept farm records will tell you.

Is provision made for permanent fertility through diversification with livestock, rotation and green manure? Records will show.

Are quality and yield of crops, livestock and produce on the up or down grade? Is the farm business a better or worse money-maker this year? Every live farmer wants to know and can know.

Oregon farmers who want to begin keeping records may apply to their farm bureau and county agent, ask their banker, or write to R. V. Gunn, Agricultural College, Corvallis.

Gen. Leonard Wood ought to be an admirable candidate for president. The newspapers would find material in his name for so many good puns and jokes.

DON'T KILL GAME IN SPRING; WILD FOWL NEED FAIRNESS

Birds which have survived the fall hunting season and have successfully withstood the winter months should be allowed to pass in peace to their breeding grounds in the Spring, say officials of the Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture, in a statement just issued urging hunters to observe and enforce existing game laws.

One of the most important and necessary steps in the conservation of wild game, the specialists add, is the prohibition of Spring shooting of wild fowl. Sportsmen should refrain from hunting at this season, not only from a sense of fairness but because such action is absolutely necessary to the continued existence of wild fowl. The Spring-flight birds are the stock from which must be derived the annual crop harvested in the fall gunning season, as well as a surplus to furnish the next year's breeders.

A great victory for game conservation was won with the passage of the first Federal law for the protection of migratory birds, the department specialists believe. Instead of separate statutes for each State, often conflicting in purpose and devised without special thought of the perpetuation of the game supply, the country now has a law applicable in the same form over large areas and having as one of its main purposes the stopping of the very destructive practice of Spring shooting. The benefits resulting from this law are unquestionable, for ever since it has been in effect reports have come from all parts of the country of a steady increase in the number of migratory game birds.

The migratory-bird law of 1913 has been superseded by the migratory-bird treaty act putting into force the treaty with Great Britain for the protection of birds migrating between the United States and Canada. Regulations promulgated under this law give more strict protection to birds on their northward flight than they have ever previously had. Prior to the passage of those laws the game supply had steadily decreased owing to the increasing number of hunters and the crowding out of the birds from their breeding grounds, which have been cleared for agricultural and other purposes. The remedy, Federal officials believe, is the best possible observance and enforcement of the existing game laws, an increase in the number of game refuges, and a great extension of game farming.

Since the last gun was fired on the 11th of November, 1918, a great deal of water has run under bridges. A peace conference has sat at Versailles, discussing alternately Utopian theories of internationalism and selfish projects of national aggrandizement. France wants an enormous indemnity from Germany, and England, through fear of losing commercial advantages, has not consented to the course which will alone make Germany a producer and enable her to pay an indemnity of any amount whatever.

HOW TO IDENTIFY PLANTS THAT POISON MEAT ANIMALS

The United States Department of Agriculture is directing attention to the great saving of meat that can be effected through prevention of stock poisoning by poisonous plants of the Western cattle range.

Bulletin 575, issued by the department, tells how to identify many of the plants that have caused thousands of animals to sicken and die, and also gives methods of treatment for animals poisoned through eating the plants. The bulletin also contains pictures of poisonous plants and aims to give help of such a nature that scientific knowledge will not be necessary in making use of the information contained.

Estimates made in many localities indicate the average loss of range animals must be as great as 3 to 5 per cent, while in some range states it rises to much higher figures. In Colorado, it is estimated the losses amount to $1,000,000.00 annually, while sheep growers in Wyoming have placed their annual loss as 14.6 per cent. These losses, too, to a large extent are of mature animals ready or nearly ready for market and for the rearing of which large sums have been spent.

The department's extended investigations of poisonous plants of the range is still in progress, but the definite results obtained so far have been sufficient to show that the heavy losses are due to a comparatively small number of plants. If the stockmen and herders can recognize these plants and will act upon the information contained in the new bulletin and others which have been published on the subject, it is believed that most of the heavy losses can be avoided.

GETTING DOWN TO BRASS TACKS

What the world needs now is PEACE.

And by peace we do not mean merely a cessation of war, but a peace of definite boundaries, plainly defined rights, restoration as nearly as possible of ante-war conditions in the countries so recently at strife.

Meanwhile, as the days pass, Germany becomes more unsettled, more self-extenuating and more sullen and resentful.

It is time for the peace conference to cease considering theories and begin on actualities—in other words get down to brass tacks!

What Germany and Austria-Hungary need is food and employment. All blockades should be removed, that these countries may receive food and raw materials. The central states, regardless of whether they deserve it or not, should be fed, given the chance to resume manufacturing, and so receive an opportunity for the restoration of normal conditions.

Otherwise, while the peace conference sits formulating the principles and by-laws of a league of nations, Bolshevism may raise its ugly head uncomfortably near the door of the conference. It is a time for hard practical sense—not for dreams.

The war department is apparently counting "seeny, meeny, miny, mo" to determine the order in which the soldiers shall be sent home and demobilized.

FARMER GOES MILES TO TELL OF RELIEF

Vinson Lived on Milk and Eggs For Months—Takes Tanlac And Gains 15 Pounds.

"I have come twenty-six miles to tell you what Tanlac has done for me," said Joe M. Vinson, a well known farmer of Love, Miss., while in Memphis recently.

"Three years ago," he continued, "my stomach got all out of order, I couldn't digest a thing and for eight months I lived on buttermilk and the white of eggs. I was too nervous to sleep well, gas on my stomach made me miserable, I had spells of dizziness, would almost faint and could hardly get my breath. I had splitting headaches and was so bilious that I would often vomit.

"Since taking Tanlac my health is as good as anybody's and I feel like a new man. I eat anything I want, sleep like a rock, all the misery and swelling has gone from my stomach, I have gained fifteen pounds and can do a hard day's work. I wouldn't be in the same fix I was before taking Tanlac for my farm and the stock thrown in."

Tanlac is sold in Burns by Reed Bros., and in Crane by Vale Trading Co. —adv.

Stopped Cough After Influenza.

"Foley's Honey and Tar is the best cough medicine I ever tried," writes E. B. McDowell, R. F. D. 1, Box 119, Arlington, Tenn. "My son had influenza. He had the worst kind of a cough. I tried everything, but nothing did any good. God sent me a friend with Foley's Honey and Tar, and in two days his cough was gone." Sold by Reed Brothers.

SHE IS PAID TO BE SUPERSTITIOUS

Geraldine Farrar, the famous Metropolitan opera singer and star of the screen, recently agreed to become extremely superstitious for the period of one month between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. each day excepting Sundays. In the way of remuneration for this she received a goodly sum. Many of us are afraid to walk under a ladder or look over our left shoulder for fear of seeing a black cat, but none of us ever thought of getting paid for it. However, in the case of Miss Farrar, superstition was only portrayed for the benefit of the motion picture camera, her new Artcraft picture, "The Devil-Stone," being based upon that old fashioned dispenser of gloom. Just to prove that the famous diva is not naturally superstitious we present above a picture of her with an open umbrella taken in her boudoir—so there!

Geraldine Farrar will appear at the Liberty Theatre tomorrow night in that big picture, "The Woman God Forgot." This is one of her best and should be seen by all the play goers of this city. A comedy will also be on this program.
