

CHANGE IN PUBLIC SCHOOL TEXT BOOKS

School Supt. Clark has received a circular from the State Board of Education announcing the changes in the text books to be used by the public schools of Oregon. As many of the teachers are making inquiry as to these changes we give a list following of the changes:

Agriculture—changed—Davis: Productive Farming, published by J. R. Lippincott Co.

Arithmetic—changed—Hamilton: Essentials of Arithmetic, book one and two, published by the American Book Co.

Civil Gov't.—changed—Hughes: Community Civics with Oregon Equipment, published by Allyn & Bacon. Geography—not changed.

History—changed—Gerdy: Stories of American History; American Beginnings in Europe, published by Chas. Scribner's Sons. Mace: School History, 1919 edition, published by Rand, McNally & Co.

Language—changed—Potter, Jeschke & Gillett: Oral and Written English books one and two, published by Ginn & Co.

Physiology and Hygiene—changed—Winslow: Healthy Living, books one and two, published by Chas. E. Merrill Co.

Reading—changed—Fassett: Beacon Method of Reading is for the primary work, published by Ginn & Co.

U. S. WAR SILK INTO PEACE FROCKS

Eighteen million yards of silk at a bargain price makes it seem probable that the fall will be a season of "rustles." This silk has been thrown on the market by the War Department—a special silk made for wrapping cartridge bags but not now needed. Col. E. E. Garrison of the department had this frock of the silk made up for his secretary to prove its dress uses. It will likely retail at about $2 a yard. The bids were opened at Washington July 10, after which it will be decided how the millions of yards will be marketed. So it may be expected that women should prepare for a silk year when wholesalers dictate the fashion for fall, winter and spring.

Is It Father and Son?

SENATOR NEW AND HIS SON, HARRY NEW JR.
The young man, Harry S. New, Jr., alleged to have confessed to the murder of his sweetheart Freda Lesser in California, claims that United States Senator Harry S. New of Indiana is his father, but admits that he was born out of wedlock. The inserted picture is of the married girl, who it is claimed, broke her engagement with young New, resulting in her death.

There are many others in the list for the higher grades including Natural Methods, published by Chas. Scribner's Sons; Baker & Thorndyke: Every Day Classics, published by Macmillan Co.; Literature Readers published by Row, Peterson & Co.; Young and Field: Readers published by Ginn & Co.; Merrill Readers, published by Chas. E. Merrill Co.; Riverside Readers, published by Houghton-Mifflin Co.

Spelling—changed—New: Word Speller, published by World Book Co. Akin: Word Mastery, published by Houghton-Mifflin Co.

Writing—not changed.

Office Force Are All Again On The Job

The Times-Herald force is again on the job. Fess arrived home Sunday night from his vacation trip to California, and Albert Swain, who recently returned from Ashland, has resumed his position in the office and with Miss Vella Parker on the Linotype the boss feels relieved and ready for anything that may turn up in the line of work for the shop. It is some satisfaction to have a force that is dependable and who know the shop, the only worry is to keep them busy and hustle enough money to pay them on Saturday night. The last proposition is the hardest part of the game, so if you are one of those fellows who haven't paid your subscription for a few years and have disposed of your horses at one of Smith Crane's sales or sold your hay for a big price, you might drop in and see how much we can relieve you of.

OVERSEAS VETERAN GOES TO NATIONAL BISON RANGE PARK

Frank Triska and his wife leave this week for Dixon, Montana where he has been instructed to report for duty by the government on the National Bison Range Park. Frank was in the service of the Department of Agriculture as a warden on the bird reserve at Malheur Lake before he went to help whip the Hun. Upon his return he was again given a place in the service and has been tendered the position in Montana. He is going to investigate the place and if it is to his liking he will remain, otherwise he will return here. Mrs. Triska accompanies him.

A TOUCH OF ANCORA FOR COOL WINDS

The pattern of gray angora at hem and throat gives this new green tricolett a rakish fall appeal which with light wrap or fur can well travel on into the first chilly days of Indian summer. The big hat—modified a bit in size but decked in sharp angles of airy plumes still rules in milady's hat world. Perhaps the velvet and heavier models will later arrive but for early wear lighter materials prevail.

Cattle Raising and Dairying Advocated in General Farming

Twenty-nine countries each have more than 2,000,000 cattle. The United States has not the greatest number, as many people suppose, but ranks second to India by more than 100,000,000. During the last 33 years Guernseys led by far all other breeds in numbers of pure-bred cattle imported into this country, and of the five breeds leading the importations four were distinctly dairy types.

More than 8,750 Guernsey cattle were imported Jerseys ranked second in numbers, with Durhams, including Shorthorns third, Holsteins fourth, and Ayrshires fifth. The volume of pure-bred cattle importations has been extremely variable.

These are a few of many facts about the dairy industry that are brought out in Circular 7, recently published by the United States Department of Agriculture, which shows chiefly by graphic charts, the trend of the industry in this country and its relation to the world trend.

The circular reports statistics of cattle in the various countries as far back as 1850, when the earliest dependable information was recorded. Compared with other decades the world has had more cattle in recent years than ever before, although, it must be remembered, population has increased also. Owing to the wide variations in the quality of herds in the different countries, the circular says, the charts must not be considered as an indication of relative meat or dairy resources.

The circular says the general trend of cattle development is, first, work animals; next, raising cattle for commercial beef; and, finally, commercial dairying in addition to the business of meat production.

Throughout the world the cattle industry shows general growth, but has made its greatest advance in regions where pasturage and feeds are more abundant.

The recent trend of cattle development indicates that beef production and dairying are progressing generally outside of the immediate war area.

Countries which depend largely on imported feeds appear to maintain relatively few cattle in addition to their dairy cows, which have gradually replaced other cattle.

Dairy cows have shown less fluctuation in number than total cattle. This condition is noteworthy throughout the world over long periods including adverse conditions, such as disease, drought, and war.

European experience indicates that when a country has reached the practical limit of cattle the land will maintain, further increase of milk production is obtained by improving the yield per cow.

It appears logical that the United States can best meet changed world conditions, first, by increasing simultaneously both the number and quality of its cattle; second, by constant attention to economy of production; and, third, by maintenance of cattle raising and dairying in conjunction with general farming, thus reducing dependence on purchased foods.

Senators have again been complaining of the foul air in the senate chamber. Recommend a mouth wash immediately after debates.

No, my hungry friend, we will never be able to "cook" prices back to normal again. We are laboring at the wrong end of the critter. The earth, they tell us, is becoming more inflammable each day. Ouy in spots, brother, only in spots. Some countries are still very wet.
