

They Meet where there's Music

That's where the young folks flock of an evening—In most neighborhoods there's some hospitable home where the EUPHONA PLAYER-PIANO attracts guests like a musical magnet.

RIGHT WELL! They know where they'll hear the latest popular songs, and dance to the newest waltzes and jazes.

THE PURE BRILLIANT TONE OF THE EUPHONA PLAYER-PIANO makes it the ideal instrument for the home—Informal Party or Dance. The best music, the best fun, and the best dancing are always waiting to welcome guests in happy homes made musical by the Euphona.

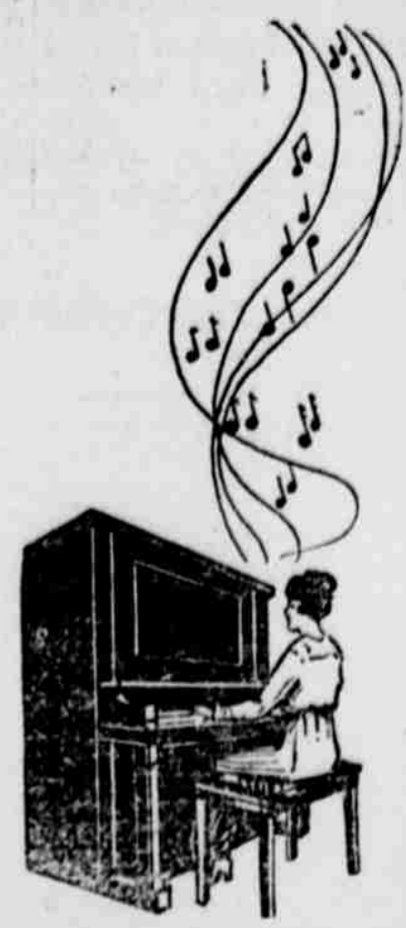

TO MAKE A GOOD PIECE GREAT, play it on the Euphona Player-Piano.

The Euphona Player Piano

is used in more than one hundred homes of prominent Eastern Oregon families.

Sold on reasonable payments to responsible parties.

Will be in Burns only a few more days.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Miss Hazel Haines is over from her home at Diamond.

Ira Davis is back from his hunting trip in the mountains and is again at his place of business.

G. W. Clevenger arrived home last night from a business trip to outside points.

Wm. Welsh and his brother John were over from their home in Bear valley yesterday on some land business.

The chicken pie supper of the Presbyterian Ladies Aid will be held on October 9th at the Commercial club rooms.

A. K. Richardson and Dr. Smith made a trip to Silvies valley last Tuesday, where they found two children of Mrs. McCue quite sick and brought them to town with their mother. They are at the W.T. Lester residence.

Mrs. Asal Walkup returned from Portland last Saturday. She had been before the state board of embalmer examiners while away, and passed with an average very much to her credit. Only two out of six candidates before the board were successful. Mrs. Walkup has had practical experience in her profession with her father, G. W. Clevenger, and also secured some valuable assistance through the courtesy of Portland embalmers. She found some hard studying was necessary in the theory of the work, but her success more than justified. A visit to friends in Payette was made before returning home, going back with her aunt, Mrs. Short, of the Idaho city, who had met her in Portland.

While discussing the anarchy that prevails in Mexico, let us not forget the same brand that is rearing its head in our own country. House cleaning at home is a good policy at times.

This continual reading of the high cost of living is becoming about as painful as paying the bill.

Reverse the ancient order of things. Save the dollars and the pennies will take care of themselves.

The high cost of babies, it seems, is interfering seriously with the marriage market.

The soap box oracle idles away a deal of time, but he dispenses many a gem of wisdom in his idling.

Now that feminine hosliery is constantly on display, just where do the fair ones carry those bulging powder puffs?

No, we have no objection to price fixing by the government, provided the prices are such as to meet our individual approval.

Uncle Sam has received a good many jolts in his day, but he generally manages to land on both feet with his head up.

Even the H. C. L. can not prevent Old Santa Claus ambling along at the schedule hour. Save the dollars this time.

If the president and the senate can not get together on the league of nations they might call in one of our local cracker box experts to referee the mill. The question is fought out and settled daily in this town.

In the good old days many a man thought he was marrying a woman with a form divine, only to find that he had annexed a bunch of pads instead. But now, however,—oh, well, you know!

About every nation of Europe is looking to the United States for assistance in one way or another. And the fellow who relies on another to care for him seldom evinces any particular desire to do something for himself. Europe should go to work.

At least one good result has come out of the war up to date. American designers of women's gowns are coming to the front and Paris styles are rapidly being relegated to the rear. We protest, however, that this does not necessarily indicate that the Paris product is too modest for the ultra-socialized American taste.

Here Comes the Pride of Bakery Goods from the best bakery in town. Our pastries are always delicate dainties of the oven which cannot be surpassed anywhere. Fresh bread daily with that home like material in the dough and the right bake on the inside and out. Leave your order for cakes or other specialties. And do not forget to remember that it is cheaper and much more convenient to buy your bakery goods in this warm weather than to cook them yourself.
