The Green Ribbon

Not a Patent Medicine Ad.

Sure, the Green Ribbon is a home industry.

It has been a long time since The Ribbon was printed.

A whole week.

Some weeks last longer than others—a week in jail, for instance.

This one seemed long because we were waiting for answers in the reason-guessing contest.

A party of hunters saw a snow white deer near Roseburg.

Wouldn't he be too sweet for anything with a nice green ribbon around his neck?

This isn't the first time we have heard of the effects of that Roseburg brand, however.

Pink elephants and green mice have been laid at its door before now, so why worry about a white deer?

Read about a dust storm at La Grande. Flour bins and other supposedly dust proof receptacles were lined inside with gray dust, it was so thick.

That was "news" in La Grande.

Some railroad terminus we know of have quit thinking of dust storms as news, but wire the big city papers when they haven't one.

That British railroad strike must have to the O. & E. from Ontario. No mail Thursday morning.

The Cheerful Idiot says this is a kind of a "no" town, anyhow.

"No" mail.

"No" lights.

"No" irrigation.

If we could fix it so there would be "no" winter, think of the fuel saved.

George Fry's custom of "three sleeps" wouldn't be bad for some others. Wouldn't have so much explaining to do.

Might even save one's reputation, too.

Or at least, not place one in a suspicious light.

That saying "nothing surer than death and taxes" can't be denied.

But taxes repeat and even double. A man is dead just once—at any rate that is the way it is doped out.

'Course, that doesn't apply to some people.

GOES UP ON HIGH

Wealthy Chinese Has Novel Trip From This Life to Next.

There was a pretty custom among some of the ancients when a prominent citizen died, to send his valet along with him on the road to Paradise, and it was oftentimes necessary to resort to extreme methods to insure this company for the departed. But in the territory of the China-American Trading company, Ford dealers in Tientsin, China, they have discovered a much better aid to the deceased over the rough places on the trip to the Promised Land.

It is a custom of the Chinese to burn various kinds of effigies at the funeral ceremonies of the rich, the more wealthy the departed the more elaborate the figures burned over his grave. These effigies represent every manner of thing, such as human figures, horses, sedan chairs, tables loaded with money, etc. The figures usually conform to some of these stereotyped fashions, but at the funeral of a Mr. Li, who died a short time ago in Tientsin, and who was a very wealthy man, the bereaved family outdid themselves and made an imitation of the deceased gentleman's Ford car to be burned at his grave.

This Ford effigy was made entirely of strong Chinese paper stretched on bamboo and reed frames. The car was complete in every detail, the pedal accurately placed, and all made of paper and bamboo. The interior of the car was also accurate in detail, being carefully upholstered in paper. The effigy of the driver was a work of art. The car was carried about three miles through crowded streets to the graveyard where a match was applied and it was consumed in a few minutes.

This is the first time a motor car has been burned at the grave of a

Chinese, and there is every reason to believe that the deceased went up "On High."
