

HART HAS STRONG LEADING WOMAN

Wanda Hawley Supports Star in "The Border Wireless"

Pretty Wanda Hawley, who has been seen in many excellent pictures, most notable of which has been C. E. deMille's "We Can't Have Everything," is leading lady for William S. Hart in "The Border Wireless," his newest Thomas H. Ince-Aircraft picture. Miss Hawley possesses exceptional beauty as well as personality and histrionic ability.

This is a patriotic story by Howard E. Morton, the photoplay being by C. Gardner Sullivan. It deals with an attempt by German spies on the border to send wireless messages to Berlin via Mexico and South America and shows how their nefarious schemes were frustrated by the bravery of one man, Steve Ransom, portrayed by William S. Hart.

"The Border Wireless" is to be the attraction at the Liberty on next Sunday, Oct. 26. This production was staged during the closing days of the war and is associated with the world war.

HOUDINI IN NEW FEATS

Third Chapter of "The Master Mystery" is Thrilling.

The second episode of the new Houdini serial, "The Master Mystery," ended by showing the emissary of the Automaton throwing Houdini, bound and shackled, overboard. The third episode, which will be projected at the Liberty Theatre on next Friday night will repeat this action, followed by an uninterrupted close-up view picturizing Houdini's escape. The feat furnishes the third episode with one of its many thrills.

After gaining the dock again Houdini, as Quentin Locke, rescues Eva (Margaret Marsh) from the Automaton's snares and returns with her to her home.

Learning from Zita (Ruth Stonehouse) that Brent has made a statement and confession which, if it falls into the hands of Locke, will incriminate Balcom and dissolve the International Patents Company, the Automaton goes to the graveyard of genius to seize the papers. Locke endeavors to trap the Automaton but fails.

An emissary of the Automaton is arrested and jailed. To further his plans, Locke occupies the adjoining cell. The emissary is to be released, but before this action is accomplished

Locke breaks into the emissary's cell, renders the emissary unconscious, appropriates his clothing and when other emissaries of the Automaton arrive to take their confederate away, Locke joins them in the guise of the real emissary. They make their way to a meeting place, to which Eva has been lured upon a promise of an antidote for the "Laughing Madness."

The Automaton discovers Locke's ruse and orders his enemy seized. Locke is bound with ropes by the emissaries and carried to another room where he is suspended head downward, over a large vat of seething acid. The emissaries tie the end of the rope to the knob of the door and leave. Eva is left alone in the adjoining room. If she opens the door Locke will descend into the seething acid. Eva begins to open the door slowly as the episode ends.

LOW COST OF LIVING
Demonstration
30 DAYS Only SALE of Merchandise
'How can I reduce my living expenses?'

DEMONSTRATION SALE OF MERCHANDISE—In answer to the question at the Weinstein Merc. Co.—The enormous buying power secures for us the largest discounts. Owning our merchandise for less than our competitors—having no rent, managers, clerks, freighting or other expenses to pay—it is therefore good business for us to sell at low prices. Our merchandise moves faster—Our merchandise is fresher, and the great volume of business makes us a very satisfactory, if small, profit. All goods offered have been first subjected to the acid test of "Quality" and can be depended on to give satisfaction. Be in at the first, if possible, as we have on hand a good supply of every item offered, but our experience has taught us that people are very alive to take advantage of savings today.
