CENSUS INTERPRETATION OF THE WORD "FARM"

Washington, November 3.—What is a farm? Seems a foolish question to ask, doesn't it? Almost anyone can tell you just what a farm is and how one when he sees it.

But do you happen to know the interpretation Uncle Sam places on the word "farm" for census purposes? No? Then read how his bureau of the Census defines the word.

"A farm for census purposes is all the land which is directly farmed by a person conducting agricultural operations, either by his own labor or with the assistance of members of his household or hired employees."

In further explanation of this definition the Census Bureau points out that the term "agricultural operations" is used as a general term referring to the work of growing crops, producing other agricultural products and raising domestic animals, poultry or bees.

From this definition it will be seen that a farm may consist of a single tract of land or of a number of separate and distinct tracts. And these several tracts may be held under different tenures as, for instance, one tract is owned by the farmer and another is rented by him.

Another question to be determined is how important does an agricultural enterprise have to be in order to secure recognition in the census as a farm? A small vegetable garden or a chicken yard accommodating a few hens will not be allowed to qualify as a "farm" in the census matter with what pardonable pride and satisfaction the proprietor may view his agricultural enterprise.

But if the garden or chicken yard expand until it covers not less than three acres of ground, or until it requires for its care the continuous service of at least one person, or yields products annually to the value of $250 or more, it comes within the census definition of a farm and will be recognized as such and counted.

The agricultural schedule contains many questions regarding farm values, expenses and live stock as well as the acreage and quantity of crops raised in the year 1919.

In this connection the Bureau of the Census emphasizes the fact that the information furnished to census takers is absolutely confidential, made so by Act of Congress, and that under no circumstances can any such information be used as a basis for taxation.

The Green Ribbon

Not a Patent Medicine Ad.

We have found The Optimist. Heard him complaining that he was worrying because he didn't know what to do.

Seemed to be having trouble with his wife. Or water rights. Or something.

But when a friend dropped in and asked him "How are you? How is everything?" he answered "Fine. Just fine."

That's our idea of an Optimist.

The whole world was wrong for that lad.

But he didn't tell everybody—the world was "fine" when you came to ask him.

No use complaining and growling and whining all-the-time.

Now, The Ribbon could whine and growl and complain a lot if it wanted to.

Lights. But that leaves a DARK brown taste in the mouth.

It looks like someone is trying to encourage an adequate lighting supply in Burns—by the use of reverse English.

Think of the Yellow Ribbons, Red Ribbons—even Blue Ribbons—that would spring into being in the columns of our contemporaries if we fell down on our job.

Think of the competition we would have, if we failed to disclose regularly, each week, a pearl of thought that would make someone sit up and take notice!

As said above, it looks like someone is trying to encourage an adequate lighting system in Burns.

Which would mean 24 hours service, as far as The Ribbon is concerned.

YOU ARE JUDGED BY YOUR CLOTHES

We are fond of quoting the old saying that "clothes do not make the man," but experience tells us that this is not true. Clothes DO make the man—in the eyes of the other fellow.

CORRECT CLOTHES ARE A NECESSITY

It is impossible for a shabbily dressed person to command respectful attention except where he is well known.

When you want clothes that are ABSOLUTELY CORRECT we are ready to show them to you. You will want them when you see them.

And, better still, you will not complain of the price.

Did you notice we avoided the mention of White Ribbons above?

We are afraid some of our alleged friends might take exceptions to a White Ribbon (W. C. T. U. brand), and think we were inviting a supply of Irish confetti.

See you there. S'long.
