Then the fingers are loosened around the teat and the hand raised slightly to allow THE PACIFIC BRIDGE CO. the teat to assume its original form and position, while the other hand squeezes and pulls slightly downward on the other teat. Thus each hand alternately gives a downward squeeze in rythmic order.

Getting Rid of Bacteria

It is wise to milk about two squirts out of each teat before allowing any milk to go into the pail. Bacteria appear to accumulate around the end of the teat, and to be got rid of largely in this way.

Then clasp the small-top milk pail between the knees, with the covered portion of the top nearest the milker. If held in this position the covered portion will prevent hairs and dirt from falling into the milk.

Milk quietly but rapidly. The milker makes use of the mother in-stinct in his cow. Harshness is against that instinct and the cow does not secrete as much milk as she would if she were milked and handled quietly.

It must be remembered that not all the milk is in the udder when the milking process is begun. The cow secretes milk more rapidly during the milking process; and the milking to be successful, must be done in such a way as to promote that secretion. If it is done so as to give pain to the cow or to alarm or disquiet her, she will not give so much milk.

Keep milking as long as it is posoffie of my attorney, J. S. Cook, in Burns, Harney County, Oregon, with-in six months from the date of this notice. Dated this 6th day of December, 1919. sible, and
