assures us that some day a woman will sit in the presidential chair. Not a doubt of it. And in all of the days we have been burdened with such an animal as a president we'll wager that the wife of every one of them has surreptitiously deposited her avoirdupois in that same old overworked chair.

THIS ONE GOT CAUGHT The conviction of Senator Newberry of Michigan brings to mind the old days when Senator Lorimer of Illinois was expelled from the senate for having purchased his seat. Lorimer was caught and paid the penalty. Newberry was caught and is in process of sharing Lorimer's fate, with a prison sentence added if the supreme court sustains the verdict of the lower court.

Wise and Otherwise

In looking around we can call to mind a number of excellent gentlemen who have not as yet shied their hats into the ring.

Today we note that spring is quite springy.

Yes, it takes a mighty strong mirror to withstand the strain of some faces. But not yours—oh, no, not yours.

Strange, isn't it, how amiable the other fellow's wife always seems to some men?

Yes, times certainly do change. Speak of a chicken now and a fellow immediately thinks of the prettiest girl he knows.

Some folks say "politics is" and others say "politics are," but so long as they are both connected with politics one is as bad as the other.

William A. Pinkerton, noted detective, says crime in the United States is general. Pinky is too modest. Judging from the columns of the daily press it is something more than general—it is an overflow.

Time was when we Americans were a remarkably healthy people. But judging from the number of those who have developed acute "stomach trouble" in these "dry" times, one is forced to the sad conclusion that we are a disintegrating and vanishing race.

Our office devil asserted yesterday that it is quite easy to make money. All one has to do, he said, is to induce the other fellow to hand it over. And the impudent little cuss looked hard at us!

Mr. de Valera, it appears, is president of Ireland everywhere except in Ireland.

Yes, the "world do move," but just now it appears to be the tail that is doing the wagging.

And the balmy days of spring are deliciously balmy—when they are balmy.

France wants Germany disarmed and wants Uncle Sam to help do it. Having failed to disarm the Germans when they had the opportunity, they would now do it when they are impotent. Opportunity, once spurned, does not intrude itself a second time. Nothing doing for us.

Cupid slyly whispers to us that there is a local wedding on tap for the near future. Who is it? Sure—of course—they're both a walking advertisement of the fact.

When you speak a kind word to a child on one of our streets it soon passes from your memory. But not so with the child. That kind word and others like them are remembered and treasured, and exert a beneficial influence in moulding the future character of that child. Big things grow from little beginnings, and we can do much to improve the future of our community by using kindness and friendliness in greeting the little ones when we meet them.

The town man who cultivates every inch of his garden space realizes a valuable dual crop from that ground—Inexpensive food and an improvement in his constitutional development.

No matter how indifferent a man may be toward his wife, there is one time when she becomes his haven of refuge—when he wants to put his property in her name.

Sorry, dear reader, but this town is getting distressingly good. We haven't a single scandal to dish up this week.

A diffident young fellow in the town hall recently approached a com-community dad and asked for his daughter's hand. But 'twas no go. The old boy didn't care to have it amputated.

If you want to live in days of perpetual sunshine just convince the profiteers that every cloud has silver lining. They'll reach up and pull 'em down.

NO LIMIT TO RANGE IN SPRING MILLINERY

As usual, the turban has found its way into favor with many for early spring wear. In the center the Bulgarian turban of black straw trimmed in black satin is quite popular. From monkey fur to uncurled ostrich and on to tiny buds are used—as may be seen by studying the models shown in the grouping.

Will SOMETHING Happen to make you rich?

A rich uncle may die and leave you a roll, but few rich uncles have this habit. If you get rich the chances are you will first have to save enough money in order to make an investment that will pay.
