CHAMBERLAIN

Though defeated, Senator Chamberlain is to be congratulated. It is not he, but the state of Oregon, that is to be commiserated.

There is a wounded man in the White House. No record of ideal and progressive achievement more brilliant than his was ever given a country. But the election returns are as if Woodrow Wilson is rejected and forsaken. His vindication is postponed.

Not for any failure of his, not for any shortcoming, not for any flaw in his record was Senator Chamberlain beaten. Even those who conspired against him acknowledged his effectiveness. They knew what his place was in the senate. They know the distinction he had laid at the feet of his state. They knew the conspicuous standing he had given Oregon in the legislation of the war.

It was not for failure in these things, but in spite of these things, that Senator Chamberlain went down before the tide of post-war reaction. In soberer moments and in more peaceful times many a regret will be felt by some of those who laid aside their better judgment and cast a partisan vote against a senator whom the senate itself and the country acknowledged as of full man's stature, a citizen four square and of senatorial capacity full orb'd.

Senator Chamberlain is to be congratulated. The fickle public will come back to reason. Now and in the immediate hereafter, Senator Chamberlain will sense the great truth that the real appreciation is not in the election returns but in the quiet and well nigh universal acclaim of a commonwealth's citizenry.

Some day our people will more prize able and effective public service and prize less the mummery of party politicians. By and by we shall all realize that the way to get good service is to reward good service. In time we shall come to know that the way to induce the best men to accept high office is to support them and appreciate them when they add lustre to office. It will come to all in time that a distinguished service rendered in a public way is one of the most precious assets of a republic and that it is a conscientious duty to honor and reward it.

Oregon waited a long time for a Senator Chamberlain. The state is to be congratulated on the lustre he has wreathed around the name of Oregon at Washington—Portland Journal.

FRANCES MCGEE

The citizens of Burns mourn the death of a highly respected pioneer lady. Mrs. Frances Elizabeth McGee passed away at the home of her son, Roy, Thursday night. The pastor of the Nazarene church conducted the funeral and was assisted by Rev. Tickner of the Baptist church and Rev. Wicherson of the Presbyterian church. A beautiful tribute was paid her Christian faith and character by the ministers during the service. The writer had known and respected Mrs. McGee for over thirty years and feels a personal loss, even though she had lived her three score years and ten.

The following obituary was read at the funeral:

Miss Francis Anderson was born in the state of Mississippi on the 21st of June 1850. With her parents she moved to Texas when about two years of age and was married to Dr. M. J. McGee in 1868. Dr. and Mrs. McGee, with their seven children moved to Harney County in 1887 where the husband and father died within a month of their arrival leaving her alone with the care of the large family the youngest of whom was two and a half years of age. From this time she dedicated herself to the family, laboring long and faithfully that they might be kept together, educated and trained for useful citizens. In this she succeeded in a remarkable degree.

The early part of this week she was stricken with an affliction of the bowels that caused intense suffering and her spirit took its flight from the home of her son Roy McGee in Burns at eleven o'clock on the night of Thursday the 4th, November. The children that were living in other parts of the state had been summoned so that she was comforted by the presence of all her immediate family at the time of her death. Her age was seventy years four months and fourteen days.

The immediate relatives present to mourn their loss were Mr. and Mrs. Roy McGee, Mrs. Lois McGee, Mr. Carlan McGee, and Mrs. Geo. Sizemore, Mr. Claude McMillen Ethel McGee. Many other relatives also paid their last respects to one they loved and respected.

Mrs. McGee gave her heart to God when a young girl united with the Methodist Episcopal Church in Texas and lived a consistent Christian throughout her life. She was associated with the Church of the Nazarene in Burns from the time it was organized. Her last hours were quiet and peaceful though marked by intense suffering.

The funeral was held in the Church of the Nazarene in Burns at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of Friday the 5th, November. Many of the friends, neighbors and old residents of Harney County were present to mourn and tender their sympathy to the bereaved family.

The body was interred in the cemetery at Burns.

WAYSIDE OBSERVATIONS

L. E. McDaniels County Agent

The election is over and the country is either saved or doomed for another four years according to your political faith. However in the case of Harney County things look pretty good since we now have the Rabbit Bounty and the Biological Survey working with the County Agent to clean up the pests which will clear the way to prosperity by allowing a chance for full crops.

It is immaterial who or how we get the rabbits—the principal thing is to GET THEM.

The best and cheapest way to get them providing conditions are right is with poison. The poison can be had from the county agent at the wholesale government price. He will also let you have the poisoned grain if you haven't the hay or vegetables to use. Lets get busy now.

Here is how you can get them with poison.

1. Take 1 Ounce of strychnine, dissolve by boiling in 8 quarts of water (If the strychnine is Alkaloid use 1 quart of strong vinegar and seven quarts of water). Pour the poisoned water over 12 to 14 pounds of fine alfalfa hay or the hay leaves and mix till the water is all absorbed. Place in small piles around fenced stacks or in pens on the range where the stock cannot get at it or if in a section where there is no loose stock it can be placed along the rabbit trails in the brush.

 2. Take 12 pounds of potatoes, turnips, carrots, or beets and chop in small squares and sprinkle one ounce of strychnine over the mass thoroughly from a pepper shaker and distribute in the same manner as the hay or grain. The stock are not as liable to pick up this type of bait as they are the hay or grain.
 Speaking of poisons it will interest many who have tried to poison coyotes with strychnine and have them go away and die where they couldn't be found to know that they can drop them practically in their tracks with the following preparation:
(Strychnine-Cyanide Mixture)
 Mix equal parts of powdered strychnine alkaloid and granular cyanide (the latter is called cyanide-chloride mixture — Mallinckrodt) After thoroughly mixing place three grains of the mixture in a No. 2 capsule which you can get at any drug store. The three grains will fill the capsule about three fourths full.
 The capsule should be placed in a small ball of sugar and lard as the lard will melt with the first warm weather and make the capsule harmless to dogs.
 The poisons should be mixed in the OPEN AIR since the fumes of the cyanide are very dangerous.
 If any of your dogs or other livestock get strychnine try an equal mixture of Castor oil and Peroxide. A teaspoon full of each is the right
