ABOUT 1,000 CANDIDATES.

"VENGEANCE IS MINE."

COPPER NEEDS SALESMEN.

FORD, NOT INTERESTING.

IF DAUGHERTY TALKED.

How many sturdy Americans willing to serve their country are now planning to be President, do you suppose? There was a general feeling that McAdoo had the Democratic nomination unless Al Smith could get it away from him.

But a little oil makes a great difference in the political situation, and now anybody has a right to hope.

Many an ambitious American is spending his dollars now, handing them to "political experts" in return for Presidential promises.

There are probably at the least one thousand "serious" candidates at this moment.

Friendly warning to big men inclined to injure business and scare little stockholders in revenge for the Senate oil investigation.

DON'T DO IT.

It won't pay you in the long run, and, besides, it is written, "Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves... vengeance is Mine, I will repay, saith the Lord."

Public officials have had a warning, learned a lesson. Some will get more than a lesson. Valuable truths have come out; others are coming.

On the whole it's a small thing, which really doesn't amount to much more than catching little Willie telling a fib. No reason for breaking up the family. Send Willie to bed and let business go on.

Another copper concern, the Inspiration Copper Company, followed the example of the big Anaconda, and skipped its dividend. That means bad salesmanship and not enough advertising. If the copper men would explain, through advertising in plain language, what copper means and what it SAVES in building, no company able to produce copper at 20 cents a pound, or better, need lack business.

The House at last will take up Henry Ford's Muscle Shoals offer. It seems hard to get anything moving when no gentleman "on the inside" is to get any money in a scratch or any "loan" from a friend.

Ford offers millions to the Government, cheap fertilizer to the farmer and, most important, demonstration of the use that can be made of water power. But that isn't enough to interest gentlemen accustomed to "private talks," "private codes" and "private financial arrangements."

Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, says the national debt has been reduced $933,000,000 in the last year, and four thousand eight hundred millions in four and a half years. Your glorious country now

"Tanlac Finest Tonic For Elderly People"

H. Munich Tells Of Recovery From Run-Down Condition, Was As Weak As Baby Tanlac Restored Strength.

"Tanlac is the finest tonic on earth for elderly people and I'll bet I have recommended it to a hundred of my friends," is the characteristic statement of H. Munich, highly respected citizen of San Francisco, residing at the Fairfax Hotel, 3900 Third Street.

"Sometime ago a severe cold left me in an awfully run-down, weak-oned condition. My appetite was knocked out completely, there was hardly a thing that I could eat and I was not only considerably off in weight, but I came near being as weak as a baby.

"Well, if anything builds old folks up and makes them feel young again, Tanlac certainly does. It gave me such a rousing appetite I can hardly eat enough to satisfy me and have gained seventeen pounds. My strength has also come back and I'm so hale and hearty that I feel like working all the time. Tanlac beats anything I ever saw."

Tanlac is for sale by all druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40-Million bottles sold.

owes $21,781,966,852. It takes a big and prosperous country to owe as much as that. And while we ought to pay off rapidly, we COULD owe five times that amount, and more, too, and not be bankrupt.

Men and women with more self-confidence than intelligence intend to produce in New York a play, "All God's Chillun Got Wings."

In this play a white woman falls in love with a negro, marries him, and, kneeling before him, kisses the negro's hand. A full-blooded negro of unusual intelligence will play one part, a white woman will play the other.

There is perhaps no law that can stop this foolishness, but common intelligence and decency should step in. IF ONLY FOR THE SAKE OF THE NEGRO RACE.

The dullest mind connected with that theater must know that to show a white woman falling on her knees and kissing a negro's hand is a bad thing for the colored people, of whom there are tens of thousands in New York—to say nothing of millions elsewhere.

Attorney General Daugherty declares that "if some Senators do not resign he, Daugherty, will cause some splash."

Mr. Daugherty knows the difference between a "splash" and a little ripple. The public will watch for the splash with interest. The Attorney General could reveal more about the real character of certain officials than half a dozen oil investigations. He knows what senators and others are trying to do, whom they are trying to shield, and whom they seek to prosecute.

Publication of Mr. Daugherty's private information would cause a "splash" indeed.

There is even worse news about whales than about bees. Whales are not coming up from the South Pole as they used to come, offering oil from blubber, whalebone from their mouths, and proof of evolution, in the two little hip bones concealed in their fat carcasses—although they no longer use the legs to which those hip bones were once attached.

The whalebone doesn't matter, for ladies now go loose around the waist as a rule. But the whaling industry is in bad shape.

TWO-MINUTE BIOGRAPHIES

Where-Froms of Those Principals Now in Washington Spotlight

Sen. Thomas James Walsh Thomas James Walsh, from Montana, was born at Two Rivers, Wis., June 12, 1859. He was educated in the public schools and graduated from the University of Wisconsin. During his early manhood he was a school teacher. He located in Helena, Mont., as a lawyer in 1890, and immediately became identified with the democratic organization. He ran for congress in 1906 and for the United States Senator in 1910. He was elected in the Senate in 1912 and re-elected in 1918. He has a national reputation as a thoroughly grounded lawyer and is an authority on the United States Constitution. He is noted for his initiative and perseverance and never starts anything he thinks he can't finish. He is acknowledged to be chiefly responsible for the progress of the Teapot Dome scandal inquiry. He is respected by all his colleagues in Congress and admired by many. Mr. Walsh is a widower and a Catholic. He wears a stubb mustache, stiff bosomed white shirt and suspenders.

Edward B. McLean Edward Beale McLean is the owner of the Washington Post and Cincinnati Enquirer which he inherited from his father. He is 42 years old. Was outside pale of Washington's inner political society until President Harding took office when he became the president's most intimate Washington friend. He is free and easy in manner and is fond of sports. He lives in a palace in Washington that resembles a public library. When the Teapot Dome scandal broke he admitted that he had loaned Albert B. Fall $100,000, but "remembered" later that he did NOT loan Fall the $100,000. He married Evelyn Walsh, daughter of Thomas J. Walsh, mining magnate.

Harry M. Daugherty Harry Micajah Daugherty, U. S. Attorney-General, was born at Washington Court House, Ohio, on January 26, 1860. He had a high school education and was graduated from the University of Michigan with the degree of LL.B. in 1881.

He began the practice of law in his native town and moved to Columbus, Ohio, in 1892. He built up one of the largest practices in the State. Always active in politics, but the only office he held was a member of the State Legislature, 1890-1894. He directed President Harding's primary campaign for President in 1920. Lost his own State. He predicted that Harding would be nominated by a little party of bosses in a smoke-filled hotel room when 1920 Chicago Convention reached a deadlock. His prediction was filled. He was made Attorney-General of the United States on March 4, 1921. He aided in getting Morse out of the Penitentiary for a fee. He is married and a Methodist. (Note: Micajah is a like Hebrew word and means "who is like Jehovah.")

Harry F. Sinclair Harry Ford Sinclair, petroleum magnate, was born at Wheeling, West Virginia, on July 6, 1876. Moved to Kansas with his parents when a baby. He was educated in the public schools of Independence, Kansas, and graduated from the School of Pharmacy, University of Kansas in 1898. He clerked in his father's drug store in Independence, and in 1901 got into the oil business on the ground floor when the oil boom started in Kansas and Oklahoma. He displayed a genius for organization and exploitation of oil properties. He consolidated all of his properties into the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation in 1919. He served as a "dollar a year man" in Washington during the war. He moved to New York after amassing a huge fortune and bought a racing stable. He developed Zev and built up the most profitable establishment on the turf. His oil interests are now interests. He is married and is an Episcopalian. His home is at Great Neck, L. I.

Edward L. Doheny Edward Laurence Doheny, petroleum magnate, was born at Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, on August 10, 1856. He was graduated at the Fond du Lac High School in 1872. Went West and prospected for gold and silver in the mountains and in the plains for twenty years with indifferent success. Met Albert B. Fall prospecting in the Southwest in the '80s and got into the oil business in 1892. He started on the road to fortune by discovering oil wells in California. He was a pioneer in exploration of the oil fields of the Tampico district of Mexico and noted for his ability to pick men who could put exploration of the oil fields in the Tampico district under the limelight, but he was a diffident driver in business. He was put in nomination for Vice President of the United States at the Democratic Convention in San Francisco in 1920, but the vote was lost in confusion. He lives in a palace in Los Angeles.

Albert B. Fall Albert Bacon Fall was born at Frankfort, Ky., on November, 1861. Self-educated with some assistance from country schools. He went to the Southwest as a boy and taught school and also studied law. He was admitted to practice in 1889. He worked as cowboy, farm hand, prospector and miner in Texas and New Mexico. He located in the latter State where it was a territory. Served as a member of the New Mexico Legislature, as a Justice of the New Mexico Supreme Court and Attorney-General of New Mexico. Invested his first savings in a New Mexico ranch and in mining lands and gradually enlarged his holdings. He was elected to the United States Senate in 1912 for a term expiring in 1913 and was re-elected 1913 and 1919.

He resigned from the Senate in 1921 to become Secretary of the Interior in President Harding's Cabinet.

KEEPING CLEAN

Cleanliness covers the whole field of sanitation. It is the beginning and the end. Uncleanliness is one of the deadliest of removable causes of disease. Filth is dangerous because it may contain the germs of disease. Cleanliness or absence of dirt is not merely an aesthetic adornment, but is above all a sanitary safeguard of importance which has been learned by hard experience. Personal cleanliness is more important than public cleanliness. Avoidance of personal filth is far more necessary than for example cleanliness of streets, back yards, and the like.

And yet it must be remembered that public supplies are public dangers. A polluted water supply infects no matter how scrupulously clean the residents of a city may be with respect to their persons.

An adequate water supply is absolutely necessary for the preservation of health. No obstacle should be placed in the way of providing the community with a pure water supply. One of the most important uses of water is probably its cleansing properties. Super-cleanliness is the first step toward efficient disease prevention.

Clean bodies and clean cloths are essential of personal hygiene. Cleanliness is promoted by prepping prior to bathing. The function of the skin in removing waste matter is not great, but a healthy skin demands frequent bathing. Warm cleansing baths followed by a cold shower or swim stimulate a normal individual and increase his resistance to disease.

The importance of washing the hands before meals cannot be too forcibly carried home to every individual. There is an accumulation of filth and infection in almost every type of work and health demands that everything that touches the food supply shall be absolutely clean. The hands, face, and finger nails should be kept clean, especially before meals.

Internally, water is valuable in that it promotes elimination. Water is the great solvent and carrier of material from place to place in the body. Blood is nearly all water and carries food and oxygen to the muscles, brain etc., and waste matter from the kidneys and lungs. Your blood demands a continuous supply of water. If sufficient water is not provided constipation will result. The improvement in individuals who habitually drink little water is often remarkable when they systematically drink water in sufficient amounts.

How much water should an average normal person drink in a day? A good rule is six glasses, one on rising, one at each meal, one in the forenoon and one in the afternoon. Larger amounts should of course be taken when freely perspiring. Free water drinking between meals and when the stomach is empty especially before breakfast will do much to prevent constipation and assist in efficient elimination.

You Need Not Fail

Not all of our successful men are to be found in great cities. One such is Harold W. Cochran, who, at the age of thirty-five is the biggest man and the richest man in the little post-village of Clarion, Pa. He owns the corner grocery store.

As a boy, Cochran was extremely poor. His family lived on a small farm on the outskirts of Clarion. His start as a trader came when as a boy he broke a button off his trousers. He picked the button up, put it in his mouth and discovered he could whistle through it. That day he traded the button to a playmate for soap coupons.

knife, and then traded the knife for a cheap watch. The town grocer gave him a job as errand boy at one dollar a week. Because of his pleasant smile, suave manner and infectious good nature, the townfolk grew to know him and to give him individual orders for groceries when he came to their homes. When five years later he opened a little "hole-in-the-wall" grocery of his own, two-thirds of the townfolk came to him to trade.

Cochran's success came through clever advertising. One day his store received unexpectedly ten crates of very ripe strawberries. He knew they wouldn't keep until tomorrow, pleaded with them to buy the berries and in an hour's time had sold out. This suggested to him the idea of appealing personally to his customers and he started a letter campaign. And the goods he sold were always better than his description of them.

Today he is the only grocer in the town and the richest man. So large is his business that he employs scores of clerks. His home is a palace and he is often spoken of as the "wizard grocer of Pennsylvania."

Editorial And the Band Plays Annie Laurie

Now we have a resolution in the United States Senate asking for an investigation to fix responsibility for the world war. If we only get another set of Senators to settle once and for all time the disputed age of Ann, we will be all set, and the rest of the Senate may be able to devote a little time to the nation's business.

For example, we might consider legislation that would make impossible the raking in of great fortunes overnight as a result of stock manipulation coming, as it always does, on the heels of "Washington disclosures." Tom tom beating, sweet music to the financial bandit, has started the ball of ruin rolling periodically for years. Since the oil drums have begun to beat great fortunes have been made and lost. Perhaps we might find out who is getting the money RIGHT now.

Not more than a week ago a stock drive was made that stopped only on the verge of panic. The insiders cleaned up. The next day they cleaned up again. They pushed the market up when the little fellows with five to a hundred thousand dollars had every reason to expect it to continue to go down. It is safe to say the market will now be rigged day by day for months to come. In the midst of ruined homes and the crash of hopes of the unfortunate men and women lured by the glamour of speculation into the Wall Street maelstrom, an investigation into the world war would surely prove encouraging. Once let a Senate Committee decide that question and every ruined man and woman in the country would be happy. Away with such balderdash, you Senators. Get down to work.

New York City has a dead line. No known crook may travel below that line. The blackjack man may not invade the restricted zone until he has learned a more skillful method of procedure. Perhaps we might reverse gears and forbid the Black Horse Calvary leaving Wall Street and prevent them invading the rest of the city and the rest of the country. The great hauls come from rigging the market on inside information. The game is all played, however, before the public gets any cards. When the outsiders begin to operate the band is playing "Home, Sweet Home" and the little fellows are left applauding on the sidewalks. Oil sensations past, present, and to come, will provide enough excuse for a thousand financial raids in the next few months.

Of course, this might be scotched, but the need of the hour is to find out who started the world war. Let us have the truth at all hazards. Then, and not till then, can we start on the Boxer uprising and the American Revolution.

There has always been great rigidity in laws dealing with legitimacy. The illegitimate child cannot inherit. Wouldn't it be better to compel both father and mother to leave all their money to the illegitimate child? This would protect the innocent and make prospective wrongdoers think twice.

Football often has been compared to war. This is a serious matter. We should have a Senate Committee to find out who invented football.

What is the matter? There has not been in sight for more than a month a single starving nation for us to save. This will never do.

SELF-DEPENDENCE

I don't mind havin' assistance when there's difficult jobs to do,—Me and my neighbors exchanges chores which multiplies power, by two. . . . Good gineralship will double teams when the sweat commences to roll—but a feller's religious conclusions must spring from his inward soul!

And, I never pine for advisers—in questions of politics. . . . I never indulge in compounds that's explosive as soon as they mix. . . . For I can detect an impostor the minit I hear him bray—so I do my political thinkin' in my own, individual way.

There's virtue a-plenty in team-work, when emergencies may require, but—there's mighty little of "team-work" in follerin' a party liar. . . . It's safer to base yer judgement on what the evidence shows, and to never let no political crook put his iron ring in yer nose!
