KIDDIES' STRATEGY WON

BORZAGE OVER

While shooting exterior park scenes at the studio for "Children of Dust," the Frank Borzage—First National feature—which comes to the Liberty Theatre on Friday, Dec. 26, a bunch of children had the time of their young lives watching the young director—but they had to pay!

Frank Borzage was busy directing some scenes with half a dozen youngsters of the street as players.

One of the juveniles had a bright idea for some diversion between scenes so went outside and found some children who were anxious to see the studio.

"Wanna git in?" questioned one of the urchins.

"Sure—how kin we?"

"Gimme a penny an' I'll take yer troo—yek kin see Borzage-gee and all the act-ers—they're making real movies from Noo York."

Soon the director noticed that his gang of Gramercy Park youngsters had mysteriously grown from six to nearly thirty six.

"Hey, Bunny," he yelled to his assistant, "where'd his regiment come from?"

Bunny went on a still hunt for a hole in the wall, but came upon the youthful financier working his Burns speech outside.

When Bunny went to oust the children he met with such remonstance that Borzage allowed them to remain and watch the shooting.

DO YOU LIKE "WAR STUFF"?

There is a revival of interest in the World War, especially America's part in it, according to Forrest Halsey, prominent scenario writer, who went to Washington compiling data used in Gloria Swanson's newest Paramount picture, "The Humming Bird," which deals with the life in Paris from 1914 to 1918.

"The war department is swamped with requests for information about the war from young boys and girls," writes Mr. Halsey. "These youngsters at the time of the war were too young to take an active part in it and they are just now evincing a tremendous interest in what happened in France, especially after the first American troops arrived there in 1917. Requests for data and film come to the war department from all parts of the United States, mostly from high schools.

"Producers of motion pictures have been afraid of what is termed 'war stuff' because they have felt that there was an apathy on the part of all those who had anything to do with the war. Perhaps there is this feeling among the older persons but the new generation is certainly showing great avidity for information on the subject.

In "The Humming Bird," starring Gloria Swanson and coming to the Liberty Theatre Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 27-28 are shown authentically the great taxi-cab rush from Paris to the Marine in the dark days of the war, the bombing of Paris and the frantic armistice day celebration in the French capital. The youngsters of today will get as vivid a picture of the war background in this picture along with an compelling dramatic story as it is possible to put on the screen.

FIRST FLIGHT THROWS

SCALE THAT'S REAL

Those who have flown in an airplane, those who have yet to make their first flight, and those who have vowed they'll never risk their necks in one will find an overflowing measure of mirth in "Going Up." Douglas MacLean's screen adaptation of the New York musical comedy success, which will be at the Liberty theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

The funniest moments of "Going Up" come as they should at the finish when Mr. MacLean, posing as the celebrated aviator author, is forced to fly a machine against a famous French ace. Yes, you guessed it, a girl's heart and hand are at stake. There are many other parts of the screen comedy that are almost equally hilarious. Mr. MacLean goes through every laughable stage of anguish before he finally calls into the air and his agonizing expressions furnish enough hilarity to last a week. "Going Up" confirms the opinion formed on his previous efforts that Douglas MacLean is one of the best light comedians in the movies.

O. A. C. SHORT COURSES INCLUDE POULTRY WORK

The first poultry short courses to be offered at the college are included in this year's program which has just been announced by A. B. Cordley, dean of agriculture. The work will be of the most practical nature, one half the student's time being devoted to work with the college flocks, and in visiting successful commercial plants near Corvallis.

The full program of winter short courses which include 11 subjects in five departments of the school are listed below. The courses are open to anyone over 18 years of age who has had an eighth grade education.

Dairy Manufacturing, Jan. 6-31; Dairy Herd Management, Jan. 5-March 20, Fourth Annual Canners School, Feb. 2-20; Poultry Husbandry, Feb. 2-March 14; Land Classification and Appraisal, Feb. 2-7; Farm Mechanics, (Six courses) I. Junior Farmers Need Club Leaders

That club leadership must be increased properly to train the boys and girls of the nation who decide to remain on farms and become the bulk of American agriculture is shown in a survey of the club work of the junior farmers just completed by Benjamin H. Darro, director of the boys' and girls' club work of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation.

According to the report of the Foundation, based on a count by the Department of Agriculture, 722,408 projects were begun in 1923 by 459,074 boys and girls, a number which is less than 6 per cent of the farm youth of the nation of club age. Of these projects 429,746 were completed by 249,416 club members. Girls completing their work outnumber the boys three to two, there being 159,194 girls and 99,222 boys. The report also indicates that 55.6 per cent of the enrolled girls finished their projects, while only 52.9 per cent of the boys completed theirs. The high point reached in 1918, as shown by the accompanying chart, was due to the expansion of club work in connection with the slogan of the day: "Food will win the war." After the crisis was over there was retrenchment and club work suffered.

"Many of the 8,000,000 boys and girls engaged in club work hope to leave the farm," said Darro, "but 80 per cent of them will remain in the country, experience has shown. All who stay on the farm should have the benefit of the inspiration and training club work affords. If we are to provide this for the junior farmers of the nation, we must rapidly increase the number of county club leaders."
