

Attempting Big Things

Big things are only accomplished by those who try them. No obstacle is too big to be overcome by the fellow who tries.

A big bank account may be one of the results of your efforts.

Abraham Lincoln

Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday is celebrated this month, believed strongly in thrift and practised it. He was not stingy, but careful. He struggled to pay his debts, worked hard and saved. Although practically penniless as a young man, at his death he left a comfortable estate.

The young man who begins with his first earnings and saves part of all he makes will have the money to take advantage of the business opportunities that come later. We have many such young men among our patrons. Won't you join them?
