East Oregonian: A most disgraceful and disgusting exposure of the lowest and meanest imaginable thievery has been unearthed at Spokane Falls. It is nothing less than that two or three members of the City Council and a police officer had successfully conspired to steal a large portion of the contributions sent to the stricken city after the great fire a few weeks ago. In-galls, an employee of the relief committee, had been detected in robbing relief funds, and on his capture and return he "squealed" on the others. Waters, one of the sneak-thieves, is not only a member of the Council, but a Territorial Commissary-General.

At Rosalia, Kas., so telegrams of Sept. 23d state, Henry Bloomer and his wife left their three-year-child, while they went to work in the fields, with Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Edwards. The same evening it was missing and the neighbors searched two days without finding it. Suspicion of foul play was aroused against the Edwards. A part of a mob took charge of the man, and another of the women. Both were repeatedly hung to extort confession; the man made none; the woman of a very nervous disposition, was frightened at first by dread of hanging into confessing she had accidentally killed the child and the body was in the creek. Search failed to prove her words, and she was hung twice until nearly dead, and would have gone up a third time had not the child's father interceded in hope of learning of the whereabouts of its body from her. Both were put in jail more than half dead, and the Sheriff keeping a mob of 500 to 1500 people at bay till Saturday, a day over a week after the child disappeared, when the little one was found alive and well at a farm house where it had been all the time. The prisoners were released, the child restored, and a chance of the leaders of the mob being prosecuted.
