Eventually it is proposed by the War Department to reduce the 140 military posts to at least half that number. With Indian troubles a thing of the past, there will be no reason for scattering our small army all over the country.

The Elko Independent says: For the first time within the memory of the oldest inhabitant the Ruby range, Humboldt Mountain, was entirely free from snow, and for the first time since the country settled was no snow was visible from Elko.

A novel point for discussion is before the legal fraternity: An infant in arms has brought suit for damages, in Pennsylvania, against a street railway company for injuries received before it was born. LATE STATE NEWS.

-Gen. E. L. Applegate was appointed Agent for the Indians at the Klamath agency, Oct. 1st.

-Vale Atlas: The Pacific Live Stock company started three herds of horses to Marysville, Cal., last week. There were 1,000 horses in each herd, and 1,000 were started every other day. This week they were to start 300 head of work horses for the same place.

-States Rights Democrat: Col. Hong's arrival here is suggestive of the almost insurmountable trials that have already met in building the Oregon Pacific to the Cascades mountains. Nineteen years have already passed since the Colonel arrived in the Valley, and for the intervening time has been bent in doing and getting ready to do it. It has been slow work. The silver lining is approaching, and when Boise City shall have been reached the result will be so enormous that the intervening obstacles will have been forgotten.

-The Burns Herald says: There is an out cry in most of our exchanges for girls to do housework. Wages, $2.50 to $3.00 for private housekeeping." The above is too true all over Eastern Oregon, and it is a great surprise to us that girls will remain in the East and work for 75 cents to $2.00 a week, and work hard, and be treated as negroes are treated at that, when by writing to this country many people would be glad to make a yearly contract with them at wages as stated in above article. Besides nearly all the girls who do come out here are in a short time wives of good and well-to-do men, who are worth from ten to twenty thousand dollars, while if they remain in the East if they marry it is some poor devil, and they continue to be poor and slavish. Horace Greely said go west young man," but we say 'come west girls.'—Malheur Gazette.

Eastern Oregon's Fossil Wealth.

The following concludes the report of its summer trip to the John Day country by the Princeton college expedition:

"Could we reproduce a view of that ancient Oregon when John Day lake existed we should have found ourselves in a very strange animal world. There were little three-toed horses hardly larger than donkeys, rhinoceri, camels peccaries and a great assemblage of large, fierce, cat-like, dog-like and hyena-like animals, not to mention hosts of little rabbits, and squirrel-like creatures. The animals of this time were all very small, the largest being the entelodon, a beast not unlike the hippopotamus in size and general appearance. As the list shows, this assemblage had a very oriental character. The climate was perhaps rather milder than the present, and the forests, of which the leaf beds of Bridge creek give ample illustration, were like those now found in the warmer parts of the United States. This wonderful museum of a buried world has been sealed up by subsequent lava floods, and is now accessible only on the sides of canyons and valleys, where streams have cut down through the overlying masses. The result of our summer's work was nearly two tons of the fossil remains of these animals, a striking proof of the vast number of them which have been preserved."
