

THE HERALD.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 15, 1892.

D. L. GRACE, Editor. NELLIE GRACE, Literary Editor.

FOR COUNTY SEAT OF HARNEY COUNTY. BURNS.

The San Francisco Examiner began its 50th volume last New Year's day; in its issue of that day it said no better thing than this: "What we are proud of, is publishing the best newspaper, not the biggest."

We have cause to say that the Examiner is both the best, most enterprising publication in the West, as well as the biggest. The Daily Examiner is to THE HERALD, published 140 miles away from any railroad, or telegraphic communication with the outer world, what the telegraph is to the Examiner.

If our readers would subscribe for the Daily Examiner, we could use our general news columns for original and selected stories and poems. THE HERALD and Daily Examiner 1 year only $7.10.

The Century for January—in the "Life of Lincoln," a graphic account of his last day and his assassination, the fate of Booth, and the great funeral pageant are given, illustrated by a view of the box in Ford's Theater; fac-simile of a play bill found in Lincoln's box; the funeral car; the monument; and a fine portrait of his successor, Andrew Johnson. There is much that is new concerning the flight and capture of the assassin.

A portrait of Prof. James Boyce forms the frontispiece and sketch of Prof. Boyce's life is in the body of the work.

One stone, 61 centuries old, is among the ruins lately discovered in Bubastis, Egypt, is an illustration of Amelia B. Edwards' article on that subject.

Jefferson's Autobiography is of deepest interest to any reader of this excellent number of The Century.

An illustrated paper by Henry James, on the noted French caricaturist, Daumier is a lively contribution.

The second of the "Present Day Papers" is by Rev. Dr. Dike, and has to do with "Problems of the Family." Incidentally some startling statistics with regard to divorce in the United States are presented.

Prof. Fisher publishes a paper on "The Gradualness of Revelation." Another of Timothy Cole's engravings of the Old Master is given—the artist chosen being Andrea Mantegna—with accompanying articles by Mr. Stillman and by the engraver himself. A curious and valuable paper is that by Prof. Edward S. Holden, of the Lick observatory, telling of a recent discovery of his, concerning "The Real Shape of the Spiral Nebulae."

The fiction of the number consists of new chapters of Mrs. Barr's "Friend Olivia," and Stockton's, "The Merry Chanter"; also, complete stories by Mat. Crim and John Heard, Jr.

The poems by Rev. T. T. Munger, Mrs. Louise Morgan Still, Margaret J. Preston, Florence Earle Coates, Helen Thayer Hutheson, Charles G. D. Roberts, and (in Eric-a-Brac) by James Whitcomb Riley, Edward A. Oldham, and others.

Among the editorials is one on the care of the Yosemite Valley, followed by three Open Letters from visitors on "Destructive Tendencies in the Yosemite Valley."

The Detroit Free Press has been advertising for some time a little gift it was intending to present its subscribers for the new year 1890, and since our last issue, we have received a sample of the Souvenir, and will endeavor to describe it:

This Souvenir is almost the exact size of the handsome new "Household," with colored cover; the front, a beautiful child in furs with an armful of holly, the words "Detroit Free Press Souvenir, 1890," is as artistic to a printer's eye, as the design of the entire cover with its leaves, flowers, berries and birds to the lover of the pictures.

A wild aerial winter flight, "Mad December," a female form, reveling in night, snow, frost, and cold—the face a poetic study. Two little darkies, "Joining to the Christmas Tree," "Baby's Picture," "The Angels," a devotional copy of a famous painting; a lovely presentation of gentle, loving "Ophelia," "Blarney and the Marney-Store," a "Roman Maiden," the "Snow Queen," engravings of the buildings erected at the Paris Exposition by the respective nations. Argentine Republic, Mexico, Algeria, and India, are chaste works of art, fitly presented; but "Grandpa's Spoiled Pet" comes right home to the human heart, the old child of 80 imitating the rebellious, distorted face of the young spoiled child in his lap; Poe's Cottage; "Out in the Cold" gives us Cupid and a Maiden warming their chubby hands. The spirited painting by Powell of Perry in a ship's boat carrying his colors from the Lawrence to Niagara, is given on next to the last page, where "Out in the Rain" is a figure piece. Even the advertisements are fine, especially Harper Brother's family scene, where father with the Weekly, mother with the Magazine, little son with the Young People, and daughter with Bazar, are spending a delightful winter evening together, and an elderly gentleman is standing on the street corner reading through his eye-glasses on a bulletin board "The Weekly Detroit Free Press, and The Household. The great weekly family paper. Famous for its wit and humor, spirited sketches, and literary excellence. Entertaining and instructive. The most noted writers contribute to its pages. One dollar a year. Subscribe at once—The Free Press Company, Detroit, Mich." It has taken considerable space just to mention the beauties of the Souvenir, much less describe each, as we started out to do.

The revival of interest in the novels of Elizabeth Stoddard lends importance to the announcement that the wife of the poet will contribute a short story—"Polly Dossett's Rule"—to Harper's Magazine for January.

A threatened bread riot in Tegum.

Dom Pedro is ill from loss of his throne and his wife.

Dr. Peters has been heard from, and is sound and well.

The American squadron has sailed for Gibraltar, 31st ult.

Troops were called out Dec. 31, to aid in quelling the race-war in Angelina county, Texas.

A lawyer, J. B. Lester, was sentenced to the penitentiary for life, for larceny, at Spokane Falls, Wash.

Two trains on an Indiana road, came into collision, Dec. 31, near Kokomo, killing several and injuring many persons.

Efforts are being made in New York, to effectually prevent further landing of leprosy Chinese on any pretense whatever.

The millionaire coffee merchant, J. O'Donohue threatens to afflict his friends with an autobiography, before retiring from business.

Dec. 31, at Toronto, Ontario, two working men were crushed beyond recognition, by seven and a half tons of iron falling upon them.

EAST OREGON HERALD and The Public Domain only $3 a year. Settlers, this is your chance, if you want to know all about public land questions.

ROSEBURG REVIEW came out in grand style, January 2d, with a big eight-page boom paper for Douglas county. The contents are carefully written, selected, and made up. The people of that county evidently take pride in sustaining a paper so ably conducted in their interest.

In Harper's Magazine for January, Katharine S. Macquoid, the author of "At the Red Glove," etc., tells the story of an inexplicable ghost. The title is "A Night at Onseley Manor." H. M. Paget has drawn the illustrations.

We will send the National Democrat and THE HERALD to any address within the United States for $3 a year. All paid up subscribers to THE HERALD are entitled to the benefits of this offer.

The regular subscription price of the National Democrat is $1.50 per year, and it is well worth it. It is published weekly in the city of Washington, and each issue contains eight seven-column pages of reading matter. Send to this office for sample copies.

It has the endorsement of leading Democrats; it contains all the Washington and National news; its record of Congressional proceedings will be full and complete, and it is in every way a worthy exponent of sound democratic doctrine. Subscribe now and secure this staunch organ of the party of the people. THE HERALD and National Democrat for $3 per year in advance.

FROM WASHINGTON, D. C.

WASHINGTON, D. C., JANUARY 9, 1892.

Ex-Speaker Carlisle is just now about the busiest man in Washington. A few days ago he thought that the Republicans of the House Committee on Rules—Messrs. Reed, McKinley and Cannon—would not dare report the rule to the House giving the Speaker authority to declare a quorum present whenever the necessary number of members are in the Hall, whether they vote or not, which rumor said they had decided upon; but now he has learned something that makes him believe they will, and he is hard at work gathering material to make the fight for his life against such iniquitous rule. It is particularly unfortunate that Mr. Carlisle's democratic colleague—Ex-Speaker Randal—continues too unwell to give Mr. Carlisle much assistance in the fight that he proposes to make, first before the Committee on Rules, then before the House, and lastly before the courts. Mr. Carlisle thinks a passage of such a rule by the Republicans of the House would be as great a usurpation of power as Oliver Cromwell was guilty of when he closed the English parliament by force, and that such a rule would be a violation of sacred rights guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States. It is needless to say that Mr. Carlisle will be ably supported by every Democrat in the House in fighting a rule that would give Speaker Reed as much power over legislation as is possessed by the Czar of Russia. This is a free country and minorities have rights that must be respected.

Representative Seney, of Ohio, left here Christmas day for home to take part in the senatorial fight. Judge Seney is a candidate, but he has not a word to say against any of the other candidates, all of whom are his personal friends. The Judge says he has no barrel to tap; but that he is in the fight to stay until it is ended. If the democratic members of the United States House of Representatives had to decide the matter there would be no doubt of Judge Seney's election. Public opinion here still believe that Mr. Brice will win, but it is by no means as unanimous as it was several weeks ago. Rightfully or wrongfully the election of Mr. Brice will give the republican newspapers an opportunity to cry "boodle," which they will not neglect, hence many Democrats that personally favor Mr. Brice are hoping that a poor man may capture the prize.

Senator Windom has a grand opportunity to show what he is made of when he comes toward the exclusive right of taking seals in Alaskan waters for twenty years from May 1, 1890. The advertisement inviting proposals is now out and the proposals will be opened January 23, 1890. For the last twenty years this right has been held by the Alaska fur company, and every member of that organization has become a millionaire, in ways that the least said are soonest mended. This same company will expect to renew their contract, and from the time given by Secretary Windom from the date of the advertisement to the opening of the proposals—less than one month—it looks as though Mr. Windom were not averse to its doing so.

Mr. Harrison is said to favor the nomination of Mr. Blaine in 1892. If Mr. Harrison wants to side-track Mr. Blaine effectually he has only to make this fact officially known. For some reason or other the people of this country have never taken kindly to administration candidates of any kind, and there is no reason in the world why an exception should be made for Mr. Blaine. It is only as an anti-Harrison candidate that Mr. Blaine could get the nomination.

"Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." The Republican leaders, in spite of protest from members of their own party, have determined that the House Election committee shall report a Federal election bill to the House. It will never become a law, many Republicans will oppose it. How the Democrats feel about it may be understood from the following remarks made by Senator Pugh: "It will be impossible to pass such a bill. As for myself, I will remain in my seat night and day to prevent the Senate from passing such a bill and all the other democratic Senators will do the same. This is the most vicious of all the republican attempts to violate the constitutional rights of the States, and it will be resisted to the last by the Democrats."

In the "Editors Drawer" of Harper's Magazine for January Charles Dudley Warner will discuss the reasonableness of the chewing-gum habit.

Anna C. Brackett, prominent in New York educational circles, has written for the January number of Harper's Magazine an article entitled "A Woman on Horseback." "There are books in plenty on riding," she says, "but most are concerned chiefly with men, and a woman studies them almost in vain to find any practical hints which will help her. I propose only to speak in a practical common-sense way of riding for exercise, fresh air and rest." No one could be better qualified than Miss Brackett to treat this subject; she is herself an accomplished horsewoman, and may often be seen riding in Central Park, New York—a distinguished example of "a woman on horseback."

Mr. Harrison has reason to feel proud over the New Year's reception at the White House, for it was a very brilliant affair. Mrs. Cleveland would have been greatly flattered could she have heard the many regrets expressed at her absence, and the hopes expressed that she would again be at the head of official society in Washington.

Justice Lamar has declined, owing to pressing official duties, to deliver an address before the citizens of Richmond, Virginia, on the life and character of Jefferson Davis, but great pressure is being brought to bear on him in hopes that he may reconsider. It is doubtful whether there is another man in the country so well qualified to speak on the subject.

The House committee on Ways and Means still continue to give daily hearings to parties interested in the new tariff. The various trusts have been well represented so far, much better than the farmers and other consumers. The democratic members of the committee are paying strict attention to the hearings, and ask many embarrassing questions, particularly when those cheeky individuals that want the tariff raised on certain articles in which they are financially represented, are giving their views. Both Mr. Carlisle and Mr. Mills are taking copious notes the results of which will probably be seen in masterly speeches when the bill gets before the House which the Republicans say will be in February.

Washington is not suffering from "La grippe" in fact it has never had a single authenticated case, although one might have supposed from reading the local papers and the Washington specials in outside papers that it was epidemic here. In saving there has been no case of "La grippe" in this city our correspondent is backed by a round dozen of our most prominent physicians.

Senator Blackburn is the recipient of many congratulations on his unanimous renomination by the Democrats of the Kentucky legislature. Kentucky will never be better represented in the Senate than she is at present, and the people of that State seem to know it.

Advertise Your Neighborhoods.

Del Norte is one of the brightest, liveliest little towns in Harney valley, and gets along socially better than the majority of small places. It keeps its progress and the doings of its citizens before the public in a spirited manner by sending communications to the county newspaper nearly every week. This shows enterprise and the desire to build up, while other points are only talking of writing up and advertising their neighborhoods. What has become of Saddle Butte? Where is our Blitzen correspondent? Is Boat Ford completely wiped out of existence? Has Springer no wide-awake writer? Blanton ought to be heard from. The Red-Shas bright writers if they would send in a few items each week. Is our lively Harney correspondent froze up? Poverty Center is almost forgotten. So is Catlow. Silver Creek speaks now and then. Silvie valley ought to keep pace with other points. Upper and Lower Island has many writers to advertise them. A word now and then from Wright's Point would be read with pleasure. Also, from Anderson valley, where we have intelligent subscribers. Send us a line from Diamond, friends, as you used. Drewsey is one of the best points in the county, and readers would enjoy a couple of paragraphs from "Lou's" gifted pen every week telling of daily life in Drewsey.

THE official that receives appointments from either party, serves his party best, by giving the people his best service. Whenever he goes out of his way to do a neighbor on the other side a bad turn, or neglects any of the duties for the performance of which, members of both parties are paying him salary, he is making a record against the ability of his party to put the right man in the right place.

THE New York Weekly.

The publishers of that sterling home journal, the New York Weekly, are this season making an offer that exceeds in liberality any we have seen. The ordinary price of the paper is $3.00 per annum, and it is well worth it, but to introduce the Weekly to homes where it is at present a stranger, we are authorized to announce that subscriptions for four months will be received for one dollar, and you will be presented, free of all expense, with a copy of any one of Street and Smith's Select Series of popular American copyright novels, The Secret Service Series of Detective Stories, or the Sea and Shore Series. These books are neatly bound in elegant lithograph paper covers, contain from 300 to 500 pages, and retail for 25 cents each. A sample copy of the New York Weekly and a complete description of the books will be sent free to any address, upon application to the publishers, Messrs. Street & Smith, 25 to 31 Rose St., New York City.

Remember this is only a partial offer. All of these books are copyrighted, and cannot be procured from any other publisher. A free copy of the Merry Almanac is sent with each sample copy. It contains some of the wittiest sketches of the day, and also the opening chapters of several of the books mentioned above. Remember this is sent free to all on request, to STREET & SMITH, 25 to 31 Rose St., New York City.
