—When a town and town officers neglect the common duties of enforcing good order and behavior and arrive at that degree of insubordination, as to allow men drunk or sober, to make, either night or day, hideous with yelling, cursing, and vulgarity, so much so in fact that ladies if it be necessary for them to go on the street are compelled to hear this infamous blasphemy and blackguardism, we say it is time we should take in our shingles as a respectable town. Ladies are actually afraid to go up or down the main street on account of the freedom allowed drunks or roughs. It is high time respectable people should move out and go where they are properly protected from insult.

In connection with the Hardware is the tin shop under the management of young Ralph Geer who is ready at all times to do repairing, or any work his trade calls for.

—The sun may cease for a time to shine—and it did the other day when it was raining—the engine, in John Sayers mill may cease to perform its duty, water may cease to quench the thirst of the man, who has been tipsy; preachers may cease to eat yellow-legged chickens, but Lee Caldwell will never cease to keep on hands constantly the best brands of liquors, which he courteously dispenses to his customers.

—Hon. Henry Blackman, who was visiting our town and county, for several days, left on the Cannon City stage, yesterday morning. We find Mr. Blackman to be, since the election, the same genial, talkative gentleman, and just as ready to shake hands and inquire after the "ladies" as he was when in our county electioneering. We prophesy that he will make his mark in the Senate chambers of Oregon, this winter.

—The Oregon Blade gives information of the death of D. W. Scott, from the kick of a mule. He was in company with John Simms and Milton Oglesby. While crossing the Dooley mountains, he was kicked in the stomach by a mule, from the effects of which he died. He is the Scott who gave bond for his appearance before the grand jury of this county, next term of court. We presume his death will relieve his landmen.

—Where trade is good and your town thrives, every one says, that town must advertise if you notice a business man with hanging head, looking as if he was almost dead, go to the gentleman and softly advise, call on your paper and advertise. Then if the "Bluey" will take the hint, in the next issue he will see his business in print, he will hold up his head and look very wise, because—"why—"you know" I advertise.

—Have the parties promising the county, a county building made their promise good? We heard that such was not the fact. And we were also told that the county would accept the donation if a genuine deed should be given to the property. County court convenes the 8th of next month, and if it is the case, that the donation of a building and a deed to the same has not been tendered to the county, it should be done without further delay. Burns should make her word good.

Gods blessing to humanity— So says an Oregon Pioneer Ninety Years Old.
Forest Grove, Or., March 19—I have used the Oregon Kidney Tea and obtained immediate relief. It is Gods blessing to humanity. I take pleasure in recommending it to the afflicted. I am now nearly ninety years old, came to Oregon in 1842 in the employ of the Hudson's Bay Company, and since I began using the Oregon kidney tea I enjoy good health.

DAVID MUNROF.
COMMUNICATION.
WASHINGTON, D. C.
"Whom the Gods would destroy they first make mad." The republicans are now experiencing the truth of this quotation. Only a little while ago they settled their personal differences by the exchange of epithets that would make a fisherwoman blush, followed by a general "set-to," on the floor of congress, and now one of the leading Ohio republicans denounces the republican senate as a "colossal aggregation," as Barnum would say, of ignorant and arrogant millionaires, who have bought their senatorial seats as they would any other merchandise.

More than this he intimated that respectable and honest democratic senators, and there are none other, disgrace themselves by sitting in the same chamber with these political parasites, and he declared that such men as Webster and Calhoun would have shuddered at contact with men who had nothing to recommend them for senatorial honors but their ignorance and their wealth. So much for generalization.

If his assault upon the senate was bitter, and bitter because everybody knows it is true, Kennedy fairly danced when he trained his batteries upon the great republican leader, Boss Quay. How he did thunder out the charge that he is an unconvicted felon except at the court of public opinion, and that he was the monster of corruption the democrats have so long pictured him. This man to whom the republicans have looked down is now denounced by one of his own followers as a Judas Iscariot.

And the end is not yet. Thus far Kennedy refuses to apologise and will not consent to the expunging of his remarkable speech from the Record. He says that what he said was true, and he sees no reason for eating his own words. Meantime the republicans are using all their persuasion to patch up the little family row.

In the senate matters are more equally. Senators talk under their breath and declare that the dignity of the body must be asserted and maintained. But one man is hopeless. Quay beyond a doubt fears an investigation into his past political life. He cares little for any campaign irregularities, but dreads an inquisitorial raking over of his management of Pennsylvania finances. Many of his associate declare that he must demand an investigation both from personal and political reasons, but he, poor man, feels that what they advise is a necessary course, for his good name will prove his undoing. No unhappy man, therefore, stands in the senate to-day, than Matthew Stanley Quay only yesterday a political God, but now arraigned by one of his own party as an escaped criminal and a Judas.

In one instance at least, republicans in the Senate have the monopolists to look out for themselves, and cast loads with the democrats to relieve the tariff laden people. This was done by a sufficient number of western republicans combining with democratic senators to put binding twine on the free list. It is not deceived though, ye agriculturists. The House under McKinley's lead will most assured put it back in the bill at its original tax figures, and when the tariff comes to conference the Senate will yield to the House for the same old reason "to save the bill." Thus will the tax on landing twine be restored and the twine monopoly be protected.

Cannon, of Illinois, has secured an unenviable distinction through his pointed reference to those delinquent members who left house to defeat the land bill. No man but to handle other people's money you know, particularly when there is plenty of it. The manufacturers whose visions have wonderfully increased by reason of the McKinley bill, are expected to put up enough to save the men who have made them. As yet, though, I am informed that contributions come in slow. They are waiting to see how much of a prize the McKinley bill will be. Hence Quay's anxiety to settle tariff matters his way. "Bob."
