

THE HERALD

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1888.

W. C. BYRD,
OR S. W. BYRD | - - - - -

Speaking of the contest for the next republican Presidential nomination, Mr. Benjamin Harrison seems to have an idea that he is "in it." The idea is not, however, shared with the bosses of his party.

NOTHING brings speedier wealth than a good patent. If you have an idea, write describing it, to Messrs. C. A. Snow & Co., Patent Solicitors, opposite U. S. Patent Office, Washington D. C., and they will inform you free of charge whether it is patentable. Read their advertisement in this paper.

THE Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee has at last succeeded in getting its text book imprints—it will doubtless prove very valuable and interesting to the hangers on around the committee rooms at Washington, and, owing to the nearness of election day it will not circulate much further, more's the pity.

If the ladies who intend buying or have already bought the material for their winter dresses could vote at the congressional election, republicans would be mighty scarce in the next House of Representatives. Dress goods have been largely increased in price on account of the higher duties imposed by the new republican tariff law.

ACCORDING to the New York Press good republican authority, the workingmen of this country must not expect to be benefited by the new tariff law for a long time to come, and it ingeniously advises them to be patient under their increased living expenses. This advice might be more generally taken by the working men if they did not fully realize that the same law which is making them poorer every day is piling up unequalled wealth for the favored manufacturer.

WILL Mr. Harrison take care of his old law partner and present Attorney General, by appointing him to the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Samuel F. Miller, on the bench of the Supreme court? He will if he has his own way, but the Attorney General is not popular with the republican losses because as U. S. Treasurer Huston says, he takes no interest in "practical politics," and it is not probable that Mr. Harrison will be allowed to have his own way.

AND now it seems that the World's Fair is to be classed with the numerous things injured by the new tariff law. The latest European advices say that the majority of the manufacturers refuse to send any exhibits to Chicago, taking the ground that it would be a useless expenditure of money for them to do so as the duties imposed by the tariff law are so high as to practically shut their goods out of American markets. Without foreign exhibits the World's Fair will be a travesty upon its name.

MR. HARRISON may or may not ask for the resignation of Commissioner of pensions, but among honest men, no matter what their political opinions may be, there is no difference of opinion as to what he ought to do. Commissioner Raum, according to his own statement, is unfit to be at the head of a Government bureau through which two-fifths of the nation's enormous revenues are disbursed and if Mr. Harrison condones the Commissioner's offenses by keeping him in office he will become personally responsible for them.

THE farmer or other head of family who pays anywhere from ten to fifty dollars, or more, according to the quantity purchased, for the winter clothing of himself and family than the same would have cost him last year, has a practical illustration of the meaning of the "protection" extended to him by the new tariff law enacted by the republican majority in congress for the special purpose of enriching the already wealthy manufacturers who furnish the republican party with its campaign corruption funds. It is for him to decide whether by his vote whether he endorses the robbery or not.

During a meeting last week, the Hon. C. R. Breckinridge was fired at and the one who escorted Mr. Breckinridge to the lot I after the meeting was knocked down with a single shot. The republicans do not publish this outrage, but if a negro or a negro lover gets egged or a coat of tar and feathers, you will see it in every republican paper in the United States.

SAMUEL P. Miller, senior Justice of the Supreme Court of the U. S. was stricken with paralysis, Friday night, Oct. 10, and on the following Monday night died. He was in the 75th year of his age and had been an Associate Justice for 28 years. Justice Miller leaves behind him a spotless reputation as a judge, and he will always be remembered as one of the ablest of the men who have constituted the eminent tribunal, the Supreme Court of the U. S.

THE republican party has done a great many things that would not stand inspection by honest eyes, but we find it hard to believe that its leaders would countenance a scheme to deliberately falsify the Census returns for the purpose of retaining control of House of Representatives and of gaining votes in the electoral college. That they will manipulate the census returns for such a purpose we believe; but for the sake of American honor we trust that their is no truth in the falsification scheme as published in the new York World.

The chilly blasts that come from the mountain and float over the valley, remind the citizens of this country that winter is close at hand, and that for this season we can no longer bask in the summer sunshine.

Everyone who are ill prepared to receive a hard winter, vow to be better prepared for the next winter, but summer comes and brings ease, comfort and plenty, and we are apt to forget our woes during the winter, and let in no letter fix for the next than we were at the beginning of the last.

No necessity this coming winter for stock to suffer for the want of hay in Harney county; we have plenty and to spare; our neighbors in adjoining counties, if in need of feed, we wish them to drive in their stock. Hay can be bought in Harney very reasonable.

We hope outside parties wanting feed will avail themselves of this offer and drive in their cattle.

HERALD'S WASHINGTON LETTER. WASHINGTON D. C. Oct. 22d 1890.

There's little to all things, even to republican and unity. Mr. Harrison, after a rather stormy discussion in which his cabinet was nearly equally divided, has reached the conclusion that it would be certain defeat to his party at the Congressional elections for him to issue a proclamation convening Congress in extra session for the sole purpose of passing the Force bill, and the Congressional apportionment bill, two measures intended to perpetuate the power of the republican party. This conclusion is another victory for Mr. Blaine over the Reed wing of his party—Mr. Blaine has never wavered in his opposition to the Force bill.

"Mr. Flower and the democratic Congressional Campaign committee," said a member of that committee to me, "are all right, and the democrat who abuses Mr. Flower for his management of the campaign does not know what he is talking about. From the day on which he was elected chairman of the committee to the present time, he has not made the slightest move without first consulting Senator-elect Brice, chairman of the National committee, and Senator Gorman, and nothing has been done without their approval. Now if those two men do not know how to conduct a campaign no one in the democratic party does. Of course Mr. Flower has been to a certain extent hampered by the lack of money, but that is nothing new to democratic campaign managers. The democratic party has never had a large corruption campaign fund, and I hope it never will. If we cannot win without purchasing votes I prefer to lose. But unless all of my information is at fault we shall carry the House in spite of the protected manufacturers' money, with which the republicans are so plentifully supplied."

Ex Senator Kellogg, over the republican Moses in Louisiana, sees no prospect of his party carrying the House. He says: "Business men and politicians with whom I have conversed—all republicans declare that the new tariff law will operate to the disadvantage of the party and will lose us the House in the ensuing elections. It will have a tendency to drive away the farmer vote when that class ascertains that the cost of many articles of prime necessity is directly increased by reason of the McKinley bill. A rise in prices all along the line seems to be expected, and as that means additional burdens for the consumer, great complaint is inevitable. It seems quite reasonable therefore to expect that the democrats will carry the House. In Louisiana I don't think the republicans will win a single Congressional district."

Strange things happen here. Yesterday W. W. Belknap, who resigned as Secretary of War in Grant's cabinet, in order to keep from being impeached in connection with the selling of Indian Post-treasuries by his wife, was buried with military honors in Arlington cemetery, the War department was closed in his honor and the building heavily draped with mourning. This thing of closing a Government department on account of the death of some man who years before was at it head is a senseless custom at best, and what mockery in this case.

The funeral services of the late Justice Miller were held in the Supreme Court room yesterday afternoon, and last night the remains, accompanied by a distinguished escort left on a special train for Keokuk, Iowa, where the interment is to take place. The serenade for the place he left vacant is already quite lively among the republicans. Attorney General Miller, on account of his personal relations with Mr. Harrison, has the inside track, but it is by no means certain that he will get the prize. Secretary Noble would gladly take it, but "Corporal" Tanner says he will not, if his soldier influence can prevent it. Senator Edmunds would not object, although he would only have about eight years to serve before he became eligible for retirement, but they say the East isn't in it. Senator Spitzer and several other gentlemen have friends here working in their behalf, and the Indiana folks who are opposed to Attorney General Miller are trying to do something for Judge Gresham.

Mr. Harrison did not express any regret because the Court of Paris did not remain in Washington long enough to call on the President, in fact there is reason to believe that certain members of the administration were instrumental in hurrying Count off to prevent that call.

Determined Suicides.

A large per cent of the patients entrusted to the care of the authorities at Oregon's insane asylum are ever on the lookout for an opportunity to commit suicide. It is a thought that is ever with them. They are making the attempt almost daily. Many of them show great cunning in their plans. A short time ago one man made an effort that required great nerve and patience. He slept on a woven-wire mattress, and at some time he had succeeded in breaking one of the wires. This he unraveled from the woven coil and broke off, giving him a wire several inches in length, with jagged ends. With this he bored a hole in his throat, near the main artery, and was making an effort at self destruction that would have been successful in a short time had the attendant not interrupted the patient. He had gouged an ugly hole in his neck and was working away with his rude implement of destruction with a will and determination that if directed in any other cause would have accomplished much. Patients often secrete pieces of glass, which they pound up and attempt to swallow. They also try to get hold of knives and from the dinner table they take meat bones, which they try to sharpen and use in cutting their throats. The task of an attendant is an endless one. He never knows what moment his charges will make some attempt at suicide and he must constantly be vigilant.—Salem Statesman.

Feaver, Oct 14.—Acting Governor Melbourne, of Wyoming, has received a letter from the interior department asking about the whereabouts and safety of a herd of seventy buffaloes that escaped from Yellowstone National park several weeks ago. The missing herd has been seen several times lately in the Big Horn region and it is now thought to be ranging in Red Desert, between Rawlins and the Shoshone Indian reservation. A big party of hunters went out to attempt their capture last week. The state officers expect to organize, under the direction of the interior department, an expedition to round up the herd and drive the animals back to the park. W. H. Connecticut is a democratic State. Rhode Island is a democratic State. Massachusetts and New Hampshire are doubtful. In the late Vermont election the republican majority was cut down one half. The State of Reciprocity Blaine and Prohibitory Tariff Reed is the only corner of New England where the republican grip has not been seriously loosened. An epidemic of tariff reform broke out in New England in the summer of 1889, and has been growing ever since, and its growth was not checked when the republican manufacturers asked for bread and got stone. The republicans will not fry much fat out of the New England iron and woolen manufacturers this year or in 1890.—National Democrat.

Frank Slavin says of John L. Sullivan: "I have eaten more men in one year than Sullivan has in his whole career. John would have never been known if he had come out in the last two years. In his time he had nothing to fight. All his performances have been stumping men in the first 4 or 5 rounds. His fight with Kilrain was a disgrace to any man who has a reputation, and the go with Mitchell was a Punch and Judy affair. Let Sullivan put up or shut up, as regards who is the best man, to day. The third class is his corner in the fist world."
