OREGON TAX LAW

The senatorial committee on assessment and taxation, which has been in session in Salem for two weeks, practically closed its session late Friday evening.

The county assessor shall appoint an assessor for each precinct, or where the precincts are small, assessors can attend to one or more precincts, independent of county officers, and must give bonds.

The State board is made up of one member of each judicial district, to be appointed by the governor until the next general election, to report to the Secretary of the State, who reports to the county clerks when the changes have been made.

According to a statement given by the National Democrat, and this statement was taken from the report of the municipal authorities of New York City, the census of that city is 1,972,214 more than the count as taken by the Federal authorities.

The census was so conspicuously inadequate that the New York Tribune found it necessary to make apologies for the discrepancy. That paper accounted for the difference in the count by stating that census taker Porter and his assistants were not qualified for the work, a charge which every intelligent reader knows to be false and groundless.

The census of the State of Illinois shows an increase of 740,935, that of Louisiana only an increase of 170,882, and of Mississippi only an increase of 153,290.

In the case of the State vs. King, which cost the State $6000 and the verdict according to the verdict of the jury, not a seducer. Now was it a case of seduction? If not by what name would you call such a case? If seduction, did the young man, King, seduce the girl, or did the girl seduce the young man? What does men think in the decision of the jury who are raising families? Men who have grown daughters, and the arch fiend of hell, who is ever ready to invade the sanctity of the happy home circle and in order to gratify his own base passions destroy the peace, happiness and respect of a happy family, which, until that time, we found together and cared for each other by the strict laws of the land.

Some argue that under certain conditions young men are justifiable. Why there are no conditions or circumstances under which men may be placed that will "in the least" excuse them for such conduct. The respect they should have for themselves their mothers, sisters and families, (if they have any) and that respect they should have for their would be victim and her family should constrain any man with a particle of honor to pursue a different course of conduct.

Does any of our readers know of a case, or have any of them ever heard of a case, that to their own certain knowledge the man is not to blame? Taking for granted what your answer will be, we then say the man should suffer the full penalty of the law for his own voluntary transgression. It is so ordered that a woman has to suffer for her folly, she loses her self-respect, the confidence of her family and friends, and the assassin of her honor which every woman should hold more sacred than anything else—not excepting her life—is made to feel himself innocent, of any crime against society or the laws of his government, by the action of the court and jury.

Take for illustration a case of stolen diamonds amounting to thousands of dollars, it is proven in court that the diamonds were not properly guarded; does that justify the thief, who stole the diamonds? Does the court and jury acquit the prisoner for that reason, declaring, by their verdict, the thief to be innocent of the crime? A woman's honor is more precious than diamonds and if she loses it, (as we have already said) she suffers for her folly, but the man often goes Scot-free just because—well we suppose—just because he's a man.

JOHNNY PARTIN, who was arrested by the sheriff of this county, some time ago, charged with having stolen a mare. Not being able at the time of his arrest to give bonds, was confined in the Harney jail. We are glad to learn that his father gave the necessary bond this week for his release. We say we are glad of his release from prison for this reason; we do not think the boy is to blame. His mother (now dead) ordered him and his little brother to go and get the animal, the brand being his mother's, the boy believing the mare to belong to her, not having the least suspicion that he, in following her instructions, was committing a felony.

The mare remained in the possession of Mrs. Partin for nine months unmolested, then other parties claimed her, took the animal, and since the death of Mrs. Partin, had the boy arrested for the larceny of the mare.

MR. BEATTY'S TOUR OF THE WORLD.

WASHINGTON D. C. Oct. 29th 1890. The republican in their desperation to save themselves from the defeat which seems to be awaiting them, have thrown discretion to the winds, and the scenes around the departments remind one of the times when Jay Hubbard, Dorsey and Star route fame, and others of the same stripe, were compelling the clerks in the Government service to give up a regular percentage of their salaries to the corruption fund of the "G. O. P." Money is being openly demanded of the clerks and in plain language they are told that if they fail to chip in they will lose their places. The Obions and Indianians have taken the lead in the lull-dozing of the hapless employees. Mr. Harrison is fully aware of what is going on, and he says not a word to stop this shameful and outrageous violation of the law; the members of the Civil Service Commission know all about it, and do nothing, except to draw their salaries. It is apparent that if enough votes can be purchased the republicans will retain their grip on the House of Representatives, and it is the first time that any one of the party has been so openly demanding the purchase of votes.

The process received by the House, on the 29th of September, 1890, is a bill to amend an act approved July 1st 1870, in relation to the purchase of votes, which the republicans depend to carry the doubtful districts, but the democrats still hope that the House of the American voters will be persuaded by the bill, that will be preferred by their opponents on election day.

The Secretary of the Interior, who is accused of being the author of the mounting letter sent to Mayor Grant, in answer to his request for a recount of the population of New York City, by the chief clerk of the Census Bureau, has refused a second request made by Mayor Grant for a recount, all of which makes it plain that it was the intention of the republicans from the start to steal at least one Congressman from the democrats of New York City. The same policy has been pursued in the South where every State is given a smaller population than it should have, in order to keep down its Congressional representation and its representation in the electoral college. The republicans are playing a bold game, but they may carry it too far. The facts will be fully exposed by the democrats when the appropriation bill comes up this winter.

The patronage of the Internal Revenue Bureau is being used in an unscrupulous manner to defeat the election of the democratic nominees in West Virginia. Representative Wilson, who has rapidly come to the front on the democratic side at the House by his pluck and ability, passed through Washington this week. He said: "The Internal Revenue gang are hot after me, and the struggle as a result is close in my district. Men are drawing salaries from the Government whose sole duties are to work against me. I have the facts in my possession, so certified and sworn to in some cases, and they cannot be controverted, and in other districts in the state it is equally as bad." It will not be surprising if Mr. Wilson makes an exposure of this whole business when Congress meets, whatever the result in his district may be. It will be a national loss to the democratic party if Mr. Wilson is defeated.

It looks as though Mr. Harrison's nerve had failed him and that the idea of calling an extra session of Congress for the purpose of passing the Force bill and the apportionment bill had been abandoned. It is still possible that he may issue the proclamation calling it after the election, and very probable should the democrats carry the House, as they will if there is an honest vote cast and their voters go to the polls.

There are no new developments in the scam-lee for the place of the late Justice Miller on the bench of the Supreme Court. Attorney General Miller has returned from his visit to Indiana, but it has not transpired whether he succeeded in his effort to make a bargain that would result in the withdrawal of the opposition of the republican leaders of that State to his nomination to the vacancy. That opposition was strong enough last year to defeat his aspirations, and if it should be exerted it will do it again, but if a deal has been or can be made the Attorney General will get the prize.

The republican District Attorney here has advised that the crime of the recent republican Postmaster of the House, Wheat, in taking bribes, is not punishable under the law, because the law does not recognize the status of Congressional employees. Quar isn't it?

Boat Ford Items.

BOAT FORD, Oct. 30th, 1890. Dr. Embrue has added a brand new chimney to his residence, and its a charming structure. The doctor is an expert in the stone masonry business, and all who chance to pass Dr. E's residence, should, by all means, stop and see this gigantic structure, which very much resembles the ruins of Pompeii.

Adam Robbins, and son Adam, have moved to the lake.

William Robbins will winter on his ranch, in the R-D-S field, and keep his stock there.

John Embrue will locate near Harney lake in the early part of November. The citizens of Boat Ford can well afford to lose John from their midst as the lake is a particular joy for a recreation.

John Bazel has returned from the John Day country, where he has recently been in search of fruit and flour.

Road work is now in progress in this vicinity, and in the near future a new bridge will be across the Silvies near Dr. Embrue's residence.

Not long since, while Pent Embrue was visiting at Mr. Bazel's, Bent's favorite pup, Ben Harrison, got drowned in Bazel's well. This sad affair has caused a dark gloom to spread over the entire community, and one and all sympathize with the principal mourner, over the loss of his pup. That pup sopped the brink of the well. He made a misleap and in he fell. His head on Bent to lose his pup, but he had to give the dear one up. And hold fast to his dear old dog. Who can eat more hash than any hog.

The Banyard Bros and Mr. Clark are in the act of turning a portion of Silvies river into the Embrue slough. Constable Hays is on deck. With six or eight to fill a peck. Squire Embrue holds in his paw A leather backed task, called law.
