NEWS IN BRIEF.

THE NEWS OF THE WORLD AS CULED FROM EXCHANGES.

The Faithful Wife.

Ninety-nine women out of every hundred who stand before the marriage altar and promise to love and honor and cleave to the husbands of their choice, "in sickness or in health," in adversity and prosperity, through thick and through thin, mean exactly what they say, and they'll do it with or without encouragement or corresponding fidelity on the part of their husbands. It is wonderful how a woman will cling to a man who is unkind, untrue, unfaithful and cruelly abusive. She will hang on to him and be true to him in a manner that will make it go hard with him on the day of judgement if he does not repent of his sins before that time. I met one of these faithful wives down town on the afternoon of one of those raw, cold days we have in May. Her husband is a big, surly, hateful, bull-dog sort of a creature, who deserves to be tied to a whipping post every day of his life. He never speaks a kind word to her. He never spends an evening with her. He begrudges her every one of the few dollars he gives her. He finds fault with her everything he ever heard that he strikes her. But no one ever heard her speak his name in other than the most respectful and kindly and even affectionate way.

The morning of the day I refer to had been mild and sunny, but it had become very raw and cold and a drizzling rain was falling. Her angelical husband's office is near my own and when I met her she said:

"I have been to my husband's office, but he is out and the door is locked, and I want him to have his overcoat. He came down town this morning without it, and I was so afraid he would take cold that I brought it to him. Would you be kind enough to let me leave it in your office and I'll slip a note under his door telling him where it is. He will be almost certain to take cold without it."

Now that woman had ridden over two miles in a damp and muddy and crowded horse car, to bring that sort of a man his overcoat. When I gave it to him I casually remarked that she was a jewel, but I don't think that he gave any thought to her touching evidence of affection for him. He will some day, in this world or in another.—Detroit Free Press.

A treaty of reciprocity has been successfully consummated between the United States and San Domingo. The treaty was negotiated by Manuel J. Galvin, minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary on the part of San Domingo, and John W. Foster, special commissioner, on the part of the United States. The treaty was signed June 4, and will go into effect September 1.

Suicide.

In Webb City, Mo., John Thomas an old man who has devoted some time to the study of electricity, was found dead in his workshop July 29, having killed him self in order to test the correctness of his theory of electrocution. His theory was to place one electro tube over the pit of the stomach and the other on the back, passing the current thro' the great ganglion of the pneumogastric nerve, causing instant paralysis of the heart and lungs. When found he had constructed an ingenious apparatus and the strength of the current was shown to be only 1200 volts. There was no burn or blister.

A Brutal Husband.

LOUISVILLE, July 30.—Two hundred armed men are after Jim King, of Morganfield, Ky., and if he is found, there will be a long rope and a short shrift. King married a beautiful young woman a year ago, but soon began treating her with great brutality. Last week he set a spring gun in her trunk, expecting it would kill her. The gun only snapped, and then he made her the victim of some villainous abuse. She escaped, and he was put in jail. Last night a mob broke down the doors and took him away, but by great good fortune he escaped, running the gauntlet of a hundred shots.—East Oregonian.

Raging Flames.

Sonora, Cal., July 27.—The forest fire has assumed large proportions and has destroyed the marble works. It swept over McPherson's place, leaving ruin in its wake. It next swept over P. M. Triest's, J. C. Keele's, the Cold Springs and several other places, all of which succumbed to the destructive element. Then the Columbia brewery was destroyed. From here the fire rushed onward and at this writing is near and partly around Columbia. Men from this place have gone to lend their services toward helping to save Columbia, and still the cry comes for more help.—S. F. Examiner.

Presidential Forecasts.

It is unlikely that Mr. Blaine's condition will now be made known. But it is unreasonable to suppose that he will be a candidate for the Presidential nomination. If this assumption be correct, there is no doubt that the President will be re-nominated. Except Mr. Blaine, he has as yet no serious competitor. Should Mr. McKinley be elected in Ohio by a large majority, he might be pressed. But the probability is that the President will be the more available candidate, and that he will be placed upon a platform of the McKinley tariff, reciprocity, the late silver letters of Senator Sherman, the result of the Bering Sea controversy, and the good work of the Civil Service Commission.—Harper's Weekly.
