

Jingoism has again taken possession of Mr. Harrison, and it is said, although the wording of the communication is carefully withheld, that he has sent a very saucy note to Lord Salisbury, demanding an immediate and specific answer as to whether he proposes to renew the modus vivendi, his last communication not being at all satisfactory. Some of Mr. Harrison's friends call this last communication an ultimatum, but it's dimes to straws that Mr. Harrison did not intend that Lord Salisbury should put that construction upon it. There is no occasion for the sending of an ultimatum. Nearly a year ago this Government was notified that Great Britain would not renew the modus vivendi this season, and yet it pretends to feel great indignation because Lord Salisbury declines to change his mind. Let Mr. Harrison quietly order a sufficient naval force to Behring Sea to maintain the rights we claim there, and the whole country will back him up, and Great Britain will not interfere, simply because it is none of her business; but if he continues to try to stir up the people needlessly he will find himself deserted even by his party.

SENATOR Chandler brought out by questioning Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Nettleton in regard to his connection with the expenditure of the Government immigrant station, the astounding fact that the man who has been Secretary of the Treasury during the absence of Secretary Foster knows nothing whatever about the business of that department, but depends entirely upon a clerk of that department who has been detailed to act as his private secretary, for the information upon which his official acts are based. In other words whenever Gen. Nettleton has been acting Secretary of the Treasury, the business of that great department has been completely in the hands of a clerk. If the clerk in question knows enough to be trusted with such an enormous responsibility, he should be made Assistant Secretary, in order that he might draw a salary commensurate with his knowledge, and something else should be found for Gen. Nettleton, if it is absolutely necessary that he should be taken care of.

NO MAN ever promoted from the House to the Senate was more enthusiastically congratulated by his colleagues in the House and his colleagues to be in the Senate, than has Senator Mills been.

Mr. Mills will not resign his seat in the House until he has voted for the free wool bill. Then he will enjoy the unique distinction of voting upon each of the greatest questions before this Congress—the tariff and silver—once in the House and once in the Senate.

HAS Secretary Blaine resigned? He has been well enough to take a long walk, such as no sick man would have undertaken; but he has not been to the State department, nor was Lord Salisbury's dispatch or Mr. Harrison's answer thereto submitted to him before they were sent to the Senate. This has an odd look; and besides, an official stated to-day that Mr. Harrison had not called on Mr. Blaine at all during his sickness, although his house is just across the street from the White House.

THE republican leaders are greatly disappointed at their failure to get any campaign material out of the debate on the Bland free coinage bill, which they vainly tried to make a partisan measure of. Members of both parties were represented on both sides of the debate, and it was the same when the vote was taken. Members voted as their constituents desired them to, without regard to politics.

THE House Judiciary Committee has decided that it would be injudicious for the House to pass Representative Enloe's bill for the protection of witnesses in Government employ who may testify before Congressional investigating committees to irregularities existing in the Government departments, because of there being a doubt of its constitutionality.

SENATOR Cullom, who is basing his hopes of getting the Presidential nomination of his party almost entirely on his facial resemblance to Lincoln, is said to be trying to get Col. W. W. Dudley to undertake the management of his boom and its barrel attachments.

SENATOR Turpie, of Indiana, made a personal explanation in the Senate last week denying in toto the recent statement of Judge Woods concerning him, and also denying that friendly personal relations existed between Judge Woods and himself.

THE Senate has passed a bill appropriating $18,750,000 for the improvement on the Mississippi River, not than $3,750,000 to be spent in any single year.

PEOPLES PARTY.—Its young voters know—peeping into the government stocking for candy.

PEOPLES PARTY.—Closing scene after the election.

COLUMBUS, O., March 26.—The defeat of Governor McKinley in the election for temporary chairman of the state convention last night was the most audacious and vindictive act of the long continued Foraker Sherman fight. The Foraker men evidently deliberately planned to humiliate the governor for the part he took in the senatorial fight. The Sherman men at first intended to make Speaker Lay chairman, but in the interests of harmony consulted the Foraker members, and finding them favorably to the governor, they suggested him and then were dismayed to see the governor defeated by Representative Charles P. Gorrikin, a Foraker leader, whose name was sprung at the very last minute. It is predicted that the Sherman men who will probably control the Cleveland convention, will not permit Mr. Gorrikin to preside.—Ex.

The Druggists

In Lowell, Mass., agree in saying that they sell more of Hood's Sarsaparilla than of all other blood purifiers. For instance:
 F. C. GOODALE: I sell more of Hood's Sarsaparilla than all other blood purifiers.
 A. W. DOWS & CO.: Hood's takes the lead of all other sarsaparillas.
 C. F. BLANCHARD: We sell more of Hood's Sarsaparilla than of any similar.
 MARSTON & SHAW: With us the sale of Hood's is 9 to 1 of any other kind.
 F. & E. BAILEY & CO.: Hood's Sarsaparilla is one of the best medicines.
 CARLTON & HOVEY: Hood's Sarsaparilla is one of the best medicines we have. Its sale increases every year.
 F. P. MOODY: We sell twice as much of Hood's Sarsaparilla as of anything similar.
 G. A. SWAN: Hood's is the most popular sarsaparilla of the day.
 THIRTY OTHER druggists speak similarly. This popularity at home, where Hood's Sarsaparilla and its proprietors have been known for many years, could not continue if the medicine did not possess merit. And these facts should certainly convince people in other sections of the country that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a good, reliable medicine.
