A Joke on Bill Nye.

When Bill Nye was in Kansas City lecturing, recently, this little joke was played on him: There is in that city a man who laughs so sonorously and unremittingly as a foghorn, although he manages to cover a wider range of tones in this operation than does that deep lunged, mournful songstress. This remarkable individual was slyly provided with a front seat at the lecture. The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, in telling this story, says: It took some time for the subtle wit of Bill Nye to bore itself into the adamant of his understanding, but suddenly the humorist told one of his irresistible stories, and the expected laugh came. The man spread out his legs, lay back in his seat, threw back his head, and roared out his consternation-spreading laugh. High and far above all other laughter rose the volume of this laugh. It sank, it rose, it repeated, it redoubled on itself. The laughter of the rest of the audience was stifled but the man in front showed no signs of wearing or letting up. A blank, dazed look, like that of injured innocence, came over the face of Bill Nye, who says he will get even with his persecutors the next time he goes to Kansas City.

A couple of men were talking about their respective wives the other day at the club.

"You have a very sympathetic wife, I should say," remarked one.

"I don't know about that," hesitated the other.

"Well I only judge by what I saw from my house the other morning when you slipped and fell on the steps as you were coming out with her. Why, I saw her actually crying over it."

The other man didn't look pleased at all. "Yes," he admitted reluctantly. "She cried, but not over my injuries. I sat down flat on that confounded dog of hers."

"Indeed? I didn't hear him howl."

"Well I should say not. The dog weighs—or did weigh—two pounds, and I weigh 200!"

Chicago, April 22.—The painter's union ordered a strike at Phil D. Armour's residence, and the men quit work. They explained to Mr. Armour the cause of the strike. The contractor put on several non-union men. Mrs. Armour learned of this, ordered the non-union men to leave, and told them they should be in letter business than taking the places of union men.

Tommy—Maw, teacher wants to know the difference between "effects" and "consequences." Mrs. Fig—I think I can answer that. When your father came home from that banquet last night he felt the effects of it, and to day he is suffering the consequences.—Indianapolis Journal.

Free wool is not so much of a bogie man to Oregon sheep raisers as formerly. The wool men have got the wool out of their teeth. They now see that the protection promised by the McKinley law was a fiction. An open market is what elevates the price of wool.

JENNIE: "How is it, Kate, that you always seem to 'cut in' to the best new thing? Do what I may, you always seem to get ahead of me."

KATE: "I don't know. I certainly do not make any exertion in that direction."

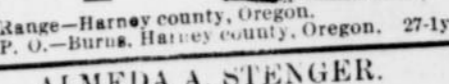

JENNIE: "Well, during the last few months, for example, you have taken up painting."

without any teacher; you came to the rescue when Miss Lathrop deserted her Desarte class so suddenly, and certainly we are all improved in taste and in your instruction; I heard you telling us, 'James last evening how he also made mistakes in playing (as usual); you seem to be up on all the latest 'fash' and know just what to do in every circumstance; you entertain beautifully; and in the last month you have improved so in health, owing, I am told, to your physical culture exercises. Where do you get all of your information from in this little out-of-the-way place—for you never go to the city?'

KATE: "Way, Jennie, you will make me say, I have only one source of information, but it is surprising how it meets all wants. I very seldom hear of anything new but the next few days, bringing me full information on the subject. Magic? No! Magazine! And a great treasure it is to us all, for it only furnishes the reading for the whole household; father has given up his magazine that he has taken for years, as he says this one gives more and better information on the subjects of the day; and mother says that it is that makes her such a famous housekeeper. In fact, we all agree that it is the only really FAMILY magazine published, as we have sent for samples of all of them, and find that one is all for men, another all for women, and another for children only. While this one suits every one of us; so we only need to take one instead of several, and it is worth the money it comes in, for it is only $2.00 a year. Perhaps you think I am too lavish in my praise; but I will let you see ours, or better still, send 10 cents to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 11th Street, New York, for a sample copy; and I shall always consider that I have done you a great favor; and may be you will be cutting us out, as you say we have the reputation of being the best informed family in town. If that be so, it is Demorest's Family Magazine that does it."
