—Mrs. Judge Miller is still very ill.

—M. R. Biggs has moved into his new office.

—Mr. George Shaw is very sick at the residence of Mrs. J. C. Parker.

—Cal McPheeters returned from La Grande last Friday.

—Chas. Lillard and Will Jacobs, of Silver Creek, were in town two or three days last week.

—James Mahon, Frank Matney and several other Harney men were in Burns last Saturday.

—James Blaine and John Switzer are putting up very nice furniture. Persons desiring furniture will lose nothing by giving either of these gentlemen a call.

—The weather still continues cold but that does not stop improvement; Prof. Newell is improving his residence. W. N. Jorgensen is putting an addition to his business house and Mr. Mahaffy is putting up a residence.

—James Mahon is interesting himself in getting contributions for a roller mill to be erected at Harney. A good flouring mill is certainly very much needed in our county and while we desire very much the erection of one at or near Burns, we are not selfish enough to oppose an enterprise of the kind at any point in the county, but all such undertakings "God speed." We hope Harney will be successful for the country demands it and the people deserve it. What motive or encouragement is held out to our farmers to develop and cultivate our land? If farmers cannot get wheat ground into flour, why should they work hard and raise grain to be an incumbrance? It does not pay to raise grain here and haul it to mills, probably one hundred miles, it pays better to buy flour and not bother with raising wheat.

—Jack Dalton alias Jack Miller, who is now in the government jail at Juneau, Alaska, for killing McGinnes, writes to a friend here that "there is always two sides to a question." He says in substance that the man whom he killed was engaged in the mercantile business and trading for furs brought in by the Indians. That he (Jack) thought of opening a trading post with the Indians and had gone to a very heavy expense this winter making a road from Juneau across the mountains into the Indian country, his object being to trade for furs. This move, on his part, exasperated the merchants of Juneau to such a degree that they did everything possible in opposition, going so far as to threaten his life and put Indians on his trail to kill him. This was more than the temper of Jack would allow, and when he entered the store of McGinnes and accused him of his base and cowardly actions, McGinnes came at him with an ax. Jack clinched him and drew his pistol and the fight ended in the death of McGinnes. He writes court will convene there in a short time, and he is satisfied he will come clear, as he was compelled to kill his man or get killed himself.
