Mrs. Jones.
 "Money thunder! money all the time. Do you know Mrs. Jones that no man in my circumstances can stand this everlasting drain on his money purse? 'Dod blast' the all-fired 4th., I wish it was sunk in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean.
 It is almost an eternal torment, money for this, money for that, money all the time. Little Sam must have this, little Abe Lincoln the other, and Grover Cleveland a 'brand new shirt' and coat with big brass buttons, and our girls must out shine every one else's on the great liberty car. Sophie I say it is an eternal torment from year to year. When you get through with one 4th., the thought is ever in your mind that a year hence will be another strain on the purse strings and nerves of the hen-pecked husband. I sincerely believe, madam, that if the truth were known many men owe their presence in lunatic asylums to worry and dread of 4th of July celebrations. The worry caused by the everlasting demand for money and other exactions preparatory to the 4th and the dread of the next independent anniversary has caused the digging of many premature graves now filled with husbands whose wives make up the corps of widows who did more work and spent more money preparing for the event than they ever dreamed of expending for the comfort and happiness of their deceased husbands when alive." Thus Jones delivered himself when his wife asked for "ten cents" to buy a small amount of candy and nuts for their little girl to eat while riding on the liberty car at the coming 4th.

"Do you feel better, now, after having relieved your pent up feelings and scored one more idiotic outburst for Jones," replied Sophie very composedly. "Nebby do you expect to gain anything by such displays of your ungovernable temper. What wouldn't I have given to have had a few members of our woman's right's society in the next room to witness our 'skeleton in the closet' but our skeleton is weak and thank the Lord I manipulate the screws and can stop its 'squeak' when ever I desire to do so."

"Madam," said Jones, "there are seven or more devils to every female, and how very thankful men should be that the propagation of your sex continues at the ratio it does, because if you were decreasing in numbers the devils would have to find a lodgment consequently increasing the number to each one of you, which in a few years would make life a burden to men and happiness would be a thing of the past and disorder and anarchy reign supreme"

"How very complimentary you are, Nebby, I am sure this conversation if I choose to repeat it to my lady friends will make you a host of admirers among them and gain for you a very enviable reputation with our sex."

"To thunder, with your sex," said Jones, "what man with a grain of common sense, wants your esteem.
 How many stark crazy maniacs are put in irons and straight jackets and taken to places of confinement every day made so by your devil-ish insinuating machinations to ruin the happiness of man? Madam how many murders are daily committed through the evil influences exerted by your sex? How much misery are you responsible for?

 and then to pose as saints reformers and christians and argue that you are martyrs to the whims and caprices of men.

"Indigestion, dispepsy, torpid liver," said Sophie, "you are ailing, Nebby, your system needs renovating, take the contents of a bottle of Sanfords Liver Remedy, before you become the cynosure of all evenly balanced minded people and especially the ladies."

"Madam," said Jones, "I want no medicine, but you, just like your sex when cornered with truths and such truths that you cannot deny or refute, you take refuge in subterfuge to evade the question at issue and hide behind artifice and sarcastically cast reflections on the state of our physical condition hoping thereby to silence our tongues, and get relief from hearing unwholesome truths injurious to the purity of female encomiums which through deception, your sex has been able to impose upon the world"

"Such a storm of indignation, such a tirade of abuse, all caused by asking for the paltry sum of one dime to buy candy for a child," said Sophie. "I am sorry dear husband your finance is so low, and to what extremities you must be reduced to get your regular allowance of beer and number of cigars daily consumed by you. Husband dear, please forgive me and go and play a game of billiards, it will only cost you a quarter, to smooth your ruffled temper, and while absent put a dollar or two in the pool box on your favorite horse, and if you see any "big bugs" don't forget to take them into the nearest saloon and treat to cigars or whiskey you know the great benefit to the health of yourself and friends it is, and therefore let me insist on you not forgetting these few charges which if you would be happy you'll not neglect. The ten cents to the child spent for her pleasure don't amount to anything, if she does cry and whimper a little what does that signify to you, or your warm hearted generous friends of the masculine gender, the heroes of the world, the infallible dear lovable creatures."

"Making fun are you?" said Jones "that is the natural outcropping of the inward devils who prompt all your satanic efforts. Madam, women are no good, and the less men have to do with them the better we fare."

"Ha, ha, ha!" laughed Sophie.
 "how humiliating, how very mortifying to masculine nature to feel so strong and still so weak; yet the fact remains patent, physically your strength is much greater than ours but when it comes to actual power your sex, in our hands, is similar to the philistines in the hands of Sampson, ha, ha, ha! He, he, he! We've got you Nebby, we have you fowl, and how you do kick and squirm, fret and stew, but you can't help your dear selves, you must come to us for succor and comfort. Storm and rant against our sex to your hearts content, but your actions in life, your demeanor towards us, and your whole course, proves conclusively that you honor and respect our power, if you do fear to acknowledge it."

"Honor, respect 'too dle-dum' acknowledged power 'stuff' and nonsense!" exclaimed Jones. "You arrogate to yourselves power you never did, never can, neither was it ever intended you should possess; a man just as well break rock on a Macadamized road at forty cents a day hoping to make a fortune, as to try to beat reason and common sense into the brain of a woman, but you can have the ten cents.

 Will you want any more money? if so say so."

"That's all today, my dear," said Sophie, "and in fact I did not particularly desire that today, but wanted to call your attention to it so you could save a dime for that purpose. Men are frail creatures still they have a few redeeming traits."
