NEWS IN GENERAL
 FROM OUR EXCHANGES.

SHORT NAPS.

If I mistake not, Sir James Crichton Browne, in the course of a recent address, remarked upon the curious elasticity of our brain as regards sleep. He cited the case of people who rarely slept well or much and who, nevertheless, are able to carry on intellectual work with ease and ability. I suppose there is a "habit" of brain in the matter of sleep as in other respects, and while ordinarily we demand a fair quantum of absolute rest, some of us contrive, as a habit, to get along with a minimum of somnolent repose. This subject was lately recalled to mind when I happened to be dining alone with a well known surgeon in busy practice.

My friend is a man who, like myself, journeys over the length and breadth of the land. He had just returned from a long and tedious journey, tired and fagged. We sat down to dinner. Between the courses he fell sound asleep, let us say, for three minutes—not more, certainly. After each nap he woke up, ate his quantum, and went off again into slumber. I said nothing, but watched him closely. I observed that after each awakening he grew brighter, the tired look disappeared, and by the time dinner was at an end Richard was himself again. I joked him on his installments of sleep. His reply was characteristic.

"Don't you know," said he, "that it isn't a long sleep which is needed to refresh an active brain? Nerve tissue is repaired easily with very little sleep which is needed to refresh an active brain? Nerve tissue is repaired easily with very little sleep if you also take food. "Of my own experience the remark holds good; and it reveals a very curious and in some respects anomalous condition of the brain and its ways."—London Illustrated News.

She Has Discarded Skirts.

Miss Eugenia de Forrest, an actress who makes her home in San Jose, Cal., has received the sanction of the authorities of San Jose to wear men's clothes in public, and proposes to obtain a legal right to appear in the same garb all over the country. She made her appearance on the streets of San Jose a few days ago in a double-breasted sack coat and waistcoat of dark material, trousers of a striped pattern, and a derby hat of the latest style. In her hand she swung an ebony cane. She says she is realizing the dream of her life. She is tired of skirts, and as her stage appearances are mostly in male parts she knows the greater comforts of male attire.—New York Herald.

A Presuming Creature.

Gus de Smith—At the ball the other night you only danced once with Miss Esmeralda Longcolin. Johnnie Masher—I can't afford to encourage that girl. What do you think I smell whenever she is around?
 "Onions?"
 "Worse than that. I smell orange blossoms. She means business, hence I must discourage her. She is not able to support a husband. How presuming the girl are getting to be nowadays."—Texas Siftings.
