HITTING THE PIPE.

A Den in Walla Walla Where Youths and Maidens Smoke Opium.

The Walla Walla Statesman learns from authority which cannot be doubted that an opium joint exists in that city which is the resort of a number of young and respected citizens, sad to relate, the habitues of this vile and disease breeding quarter are not confined to the male sex. The reporter's informant states very positively that a number of young girls belonging to respected families have been enticed hither and the habit contracted. Whether the "joint" is still in operation is not known for certain, as the former tenant has vacated the premises, but up to a short time ago it was known to have admitted young men and women of this city and it was only a few days since that a pipe and tools were found in the room by the owner of the building, who had rented it for a far different purpose. The room used for this loathsome purpose is in the very center of the business portion of the city over Main street, but the operations of the devotees and the devotees and the unprincipled promoter of the "enterprise," were so quietly conducted that even the officers had no suspicion of the existence of such a scandalous practice within the shelter of one of the best business buildings in the city, and it might have continued indefinitely but for an accidental discovery and the information given by a Chinese employe on the premises. There is no doubt but that the discovery has led to the removal of the "joint" to some safer quarters in the city but where cannot be learned.

It is a deplorable state of affairs indeed when such a detestable practice can exist among civilized people and indulged in by youths and maidens who are otherwise recognized in society circles—a secret, uncivilized and unhealthy practice, which creates an appetite that must be satisfied at all hazards and at last drags the victim down so low that where "respectable" opium dens can not be resorted to the habitue, male or female, does not stint at reclining on the same hard couch with a Chinaman and "hitting the same pipe," supplied with opium from his leprous fingers.

Assaulted His Employer.

William Atkinson, an employe of a well known hotel, assaulted his employer, Morris G. Davis, on Wednesday night, with a knife and was only prevented from carving him into mince-meat by the latter's agility in dodging and keeping tables and chairs between himself and his assailant. The trouble occurred in a rum house on Ninth street where Atkinson surprised Davis in company with his wife, who is also employed at the hotel as chambermaid. Atkinson has suspected that all was not right between the pair for some time past and when Davis left the hotel shortly after his wife had left for home he followed them. Davis succeeded in making his escape without receiving any serious injury.

Atkinson who made the attack upon Davis when the latter was surprised by him in his wife's room on Ninth street, has not, evidently, allowed his righteous wrath to cool down, judging by the letter he sent to Mr. Davis. The letter is a brief one, but very much to the point, as will be seen from the following copy:

Mr. Davis—You can keep this. I will kill you on sight, so keep your gun loaded. I will give you a show, but I mean this. W. A.

Atkinson and his wife, Mary, who were discharged by the clerk of the hotel by request of Mr. Davis. It is also said that Atkinson and his wife have separated since the episode, and their present whereabouts are unknown.—Sunday Welcome.

Management of a Daughter.

First—You can't do it.
Second—Give her her own way; it will save her the trouble of taking it.

Third—Pay for her dresses, if you can afford to. Her dressmaker will sue you if you don't.

Fourth—If she takes a fancy to any man you do not want her to marry, tell her you have set your heart on her marrying him and swear she shall never marry any one else. You can then give her a free hand, and she wouldn't have him if he was the only man you want her to marry, kick him out of your house, order the servants never to admit him, distribute mantraps and spring guns and set logs all round your grounds, lock her up in her room and vow if she marries him you won't leave her a penny. You will not have to wait long after that for the elopement.

Sixth—If she has no voice encourage her to sing whenever you give a party. It will attract attention to her and give your guests an excuse for complimenting her.

Seventh—If you are a poor man teach your daughter how to dance and play the piano. She can learn cooking and dressmaking and those things after she is married.—Philadelphia Times the associate of gamblers and thieves, known as "Aspen Jack," was found dead September 13, 1893, in a lodging house. His face was black and blue and covered with scuffed blood, as if he had been strangled. It was supposed that he was murdered by his criminal associates when they learned that he was a Pinkerton detective, as he had evidence on which they would be sent to the penitentiary.

Irish Jimmy Sharon.

DENVER, April 6.—Jack Crowder,

"Irish Jimmy Sharon," a gambler, who was found dead last week, occupied a room next to the one in which Crowder was murdered, and the detectives have concluded that he also was murdered, because, when intoxicated, he dropped remarks indicating that he knew who killed Crowder.—The Bee.
