Prof. Falb is now laid in the shade. August the 30th has past, Juniper, Saturn, and other planets inhabiting space, have not, as predicted by the Prof. caused this grand old earth of ours to get bastedly drunk, heave her bottom side to the top, and by the heavy pressure brought to bear upon her certain parts by reason of the drunk, cause a portion to sink out of sight and in the agony of the "puke" as can be vouched for by parties who, "have been there" hump her back and dump New York City into the ocean and many other capers predicted caused by this bacchanalian freak of our grand old earth, which has been, since we can remember a sober, industrious body, tending strictly to her own business. This prediction of Falbs constitutes a basis for a grand damage suit, because the dignity and the heretofore unshuffled character of this earth, has been grievously wronged and insulted.

A Shooting Affray.

Two Men Killed.

At the Tex Saloon, in this place, now under the control of Bailey and Reed a tragedy occurred on the 5th or rather the 6th, which cast a gloom over the town and country and resulted in the death of T. H. Glaze and Bud Howard. A feeling of resentment existed between Bud Howard, T. H. Glaze and Loren Parker caused by something that happened on the day of the 5th the three met in the aforesaid saloon and the trouble began, there were eight shots fired, after the firing ceased it was found that Glaze and Howard were both killed but Parker escaped. All three of the parties engaged in this disgraceful and wholly uncalled for tragedy are well known in sporting circles in this state and other places. Bud Howard was known to be a dangerous man when provoked and Till Glaze is also known to have been a man of the same stripe and when angered was a terrible man to abuse and brow beat all who crossed his path.

Jack Parker on the other hand is not considered bad and from our acquaintance with him we would take him to be an unoffensive and generally courteous and very well behaved young man, but when drinking we presume like most of others who indulge in that course, the worst of all curses, strong drink he says and does things a sane man would blush to think of.

We are truly sorry for the young man that he allowed himself to be drawn into this trouble and God knows, we hope it will be such a lesson to him that he will eternally vow, and keep the pledge, to let the cursed stuff alone that results when taken into the stomach in crazing the brain, and not only him but all others here take warning and be a man and not let the crafty instincts which are common to the human family get the mastery.

The jury brought in two separate verdicts, which are as follows:

We the jury impaneled a d-worn to inquire into the causes of the death of T. H. Glaze, whose dead body now lies before us, and whose death occurred on the night of Sept. 5, 1894, find that deceased came to his death by a gunshot wound or by gunshot wounds, the weapon causing said wound or wounds being at the time in the hands of Bud Howard.

Wm. Hogan, Foreman, Stephen Woods, V. S. Curtis, I. Jewett, John Craddock, Abe House, Coroner's Jury.

The second verdict read: We, the jury impaneled and sworn to inquire into the causes of the death of Bud Howard, whose dead body now lies before us, and whose death occurred on the night of Sept. 5, 1894, find that deceased came to his death by certain gunshot wounds, the weapons causing such wounds being in the hands of T. H. Glaze and Jack Parker at the time said weapons were discharged.

Wm. Hogan, Foreman, I. Jewett, Stephen Woods, V. S. Curtis, Abe House, John Craddock, Coroner's Jury.
