

SECRETARY Carlisle, doubtless thinks he was instrumental in winning a victory in Kentucky.

But there is much deception surrounding that kind of success. Money can accomplish wonders for the time being, especially when lavishly spent.

The next presidential election we predict will condemn the present administration. The Kentucky convention indorsed the Cleveland regime, because Carlisle begged it piteously to do so.

The members of that convention to-day, at heart, bitterly oppose the administration, but Carlisle heretofore has been an idol of Kentucky or rather its people and his influence is very great with them.

The people of the United States are opposed to the single standard of gold. A majority of the representatives in congress and United States senators have been in favor of free coinage of silver ever since 1878.

A majority of the people of the United States in both the old parties desire a return to the finance of the days of our republic prior to 1873 at which time the liberty of our people received a blow which now threatens to annihilate our present government and turn over to a monied aristocratic anarchical corporation the blood-stained victories of our forefathers and that independence declared by them on the 4th day of July, 1776, and which we are all, as American freemen, going to celebrate tomorrow.

Is it a mere form we are going through because of habit? The democratic and republican national conventions have for years put a plank in the platform persuading the voters to look forward to a speedy remonetization of the favored metal of the people.

Each 4th of July some of these big guns who promise so much and do so little for the people, deliver an oration replete in the good things this glorious government intends doing for its subjects and the fame of our forefathers when they first launched the liberty ship, but dwell lightly on the present doings of our administrations and congresses, leading the people into the common error of believing "there's a good time coming."

Now this "good time" can be brought about by the people if they will no longer submit to party leaders and no longer suffer themselves to be "gulled" by these leaders, but vote and work as their own consciences dictate.

Vote for yourselves, that is, your own interest, not for party leaders who advocate something which you believe to be detrimental to your interest and an injury to our liberties.

WE infer from information gained from our exchanges that the monetary conference will certainly be called in the near future. If the conference does assemble and no definite action is taken, how will it effect the cause of bimetalism? Like conferences heretofore have had a tendency to befog and mislead the people.

Why does any nation consider it a duty to consult other nations regarding a question of very vital importance to its own people? Or to acknowledge the consultation to be all right and a matter of courtesy, why should any nation able to live within itself and its exports so valuable as that of our government, be for a minute and a half, debating a measure of so much importance to its people as that of the remonetization of its silver? A monetary conference is good so far, that is, it agitates the question giving it an importance, commensurate with its significance and real worth to the people. Still such conferences if not held in good faith, but as a blind, only add power to the money syndicate, which, if let alone, can only end in the down fall of our republic and the establishment of an oligarchy fearful to contemplate.

But let us still hope the people of our country are so much imbued with free and independent patriotism that the right of self-government will assert itself and our people and country saved from a living death and serfdom which beggars description.

The restoration of silver is at this time the most important step to be taken by our people towards crushing the damnable money syndicate that is sapping the life blood of our republican institutions.

Other legislation is necessary, we admit, but let the people proceed to undo the great wrong of 1873 and restore silver to its rightful and proper place and that will be such a stride in the right direction as will cause the money anarchists to open their eyes. It will be a bomb in the camp of the enemy that will create a panic to the undoing of the most damnable scheme to undermine the liberties of the people ever perpetrated. What is so praiseworthy to the people at large is detrimental to the money kings. The poorer they can keep the people the more money and power for them. This stands to reason and there is no denying it.

Are not the people of the United States more intelligent than to suffer themselves to be gulled by the Rothschild money syndicate, which has for its object no other purpose than that of causing the abject slavery of our people?

THE evening of the 25th ult. Venus and the moon were very close together or in conjunction.

The phenomena was very beautiful, indeed. There was not a cloud in the sky, which made the conditions of observation very favorable and if there were other stars in the firmament visible to the eye, the exceeding beauty and brilliancy of the moon and the magnificent planet, Venus, seemingly perched upon its point, attracted the attention of the observer so much that their light was obscured and the splendor of the vision that had all at once burst upon our view was all we could see. A vision which in all probability will not be witnessed again by any one now living.

The star seemed to rest for a short while lovingly upon the point of the moon apparently with the greeting, "dear old moon we may never while time lasts, have another opportunity like the present and let us affectionately greet each other and thank God for our splendor and brilliancy"

It was a sight long to be remembered and the planet Venus, also, the moon will hereafter have a greater attraction for us than ever before.

Persons who sympathize with the afflicted will rejoice with D. E. Carr of 1235 Harrison street, Kansas City. He is an old sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, but has not heretofore been troubled in this climate. Last winter he went up into Wisconsin, and in consequence has had another attack. "It came upon me again very acute and severe," he said. "My joints swelled and became inflamed; sore to touch or almost to look at. Upon the urgent request of my mother-in-law I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm to reduce the swelling and ease the pain, and to my agreeable surprise, it did both. I have used three fifty cent bottles and believe it to be the finest thing for rheumatism, pains and swelling extant. For sale by druggists.

If King Solomon was alive he would now say: "Go to the traveling man, learn his ways, and be wise." Mr. C. W. Battell, a Cincinnati traveling man representing the Queen City Printing Ink Co., after suffering intensely for two or three days with lameness of the shoulder, resulting from rheumatism, completely cured it with two applications of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. This remedy is gaining a wide reputation for its prompt cures of rheumatism, lame back, sprains, swellings, and lameness. 50 cent bottles are for sale by druggists.
